After some preliminary business, the Chairman addressed the meeting to the following effect, remarking that the meeting had been convened chiefly for an object in which all their hearts must be deeply interested, viz., the testifying in the most becoming manner their appreciation of the value of their late pastor. I shall not ask, he said, whether we are sensible of the advantages we not help wishing that some of his anonymous assailants, he said, whether we are sensible of the advantages we enjoyed in the ministry of the late Rev. Mark Willoughby, for the question would be supererogatory. I take for granted that the feeling of regret for his loss is universal.

A regret founded on personal and on general grounds.

These reasons seem quite sufficient to warrant me in concluding that we all felt the advantages of having a Minister like Mr. Willoughby; and if so, a spontaneous feeling would naturally arise in our minds of showing that we honour worth like that we have lost and are grateful for the benefits we have received.

We are now, therefore, met to consult not whether a monument shall be erected to the memory of our late Minister, for to that every one will say, ves—but to consult of the convention, and acknowledged the honour conferred upon him in a short but pertinent address. The attendance of members of both orders was unusually large.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Rev. Mr. Haight read the Report of the Missionary Committee of the Diocese of New York. There are 33 mission stations in the diocese, and 24 missionaries.

Mr. John A. King introduced the question of admitting the convention, "said Church."

Minister, for to that every one will say, yes—but to con-sider what kind of monument would be most appropriate. On this occasion permit me, who, perhaps, have known Mr. Will On this occasion permit me, who, perhaps, have known Mr. Willoughby as long as any in this room, to say a fewwords of him as Pastor of this congregation.—Mr. Willoughby, as you know, was not educated for the ministry; nor, I believe, did he accept ordination till after it had been repeatedly offered him, nor till his friends had urged upon him the acceptance of it. It has been supposed by many that he was ordained with a title for Trinity many, that he was ordained with a title for Trinity Church, but such was not the case. His ordination had Church, but such was not the case. His ordination had no reference to this Church, nor, I believe, did he contemplate taking any fixed charge, but intended to have continued his itinerating labors as General Agent for the British America and Newfoundland School Society—an office which he had held for several years with very great office which he had held for several years with very great to give to the Church in this diocese advantage to the cause of education and religion. only some time after his ordination, that he was selected by Major Christie, and urged by him to fill the situation of Minister, and it was not without much hesitation on his part of the reaverful consultation with friends in his part, and with prayerful consultation with friends in whom he confided, that he finally consented to assume the responsibility.

The success which attended Mr. Willoughby's ministry is a strong proof, that shining talents, or extensive and therefore the best kind of Minister. Aware himself possessing those prominent qualifications which ten too eagerly sought after, and ready to acknowledge his deficiency, he was the more strenuous in the performance of those duties which he had the power to fulfil; and God honoured his zeal and devotedness by permitting him to build up a large and attached congregation; to found one of the largest and most efficient Sunday-schools in this Province; and to devise and carry out by means of visiting and missionary operations many plans for the temporal and spiritual benefit of his fellowmen not only here, but in other parts of the Province, and even in distant lands.

By many it was thought that an indispensable requisite for a successful minister, is oratorical power—and no one can doubt the utility of that important gift—but Mr. Willoughby proved clearly that the want of it could be supplied by less showy possessions. I well recollect the doubts and misgivings with which his appointment was first heard of by those friends with whom Major Christic usually consulted, but to whom he had not referred in selection. lecting Mr. Willoughby. His deficiency of oratorical powers, was thought an insuperable bar to his success as a minister. Yet, what have we seen since? A church filled. filled to overflowing—a congregation firmly attached to him, and liberally supporting him in every good work; and his sermons, plain and unornamented as they were, delivered with little other attraction than his own earnest desire shining through them, to make them useful, were istened to with pleasure and with profit.

In contemplating what he has accomplished, we may use the words of the Prophet—"Not by might, nor by how... power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts"—and we know that he abounded in that which could not fail to call down the blessing of God upon his labors, viz., PRAYER;—and hence the great secret of his success for God has said—"Them that honour me, I will honour."

Mr. Willougby was particularly assiduous in visiting his flock. Missing them from their accustomed seats, was sufficient reason for a visit of inquiry; but it is especially for his zealous and assiduous attendance on the sick, that he was to be admired. He was ready, day and night, to give his spiritual assistance to those that needed it. The poor, like the rich, partook of his care; and he counted no trouble or fatigue too great, which gave him hope of bringing a soul to the saving knowledge of Christ; and many a rich consolation had he in the evidence of the success of his labour.

Mr. Willoughby was also always ready to aid those whose temporal necessities required assistance. The poor partook largely of his bounty; but to many, who could not be classed among those to whom we ordinarily apply that name, he was very liberal. Several young men while the property of the principles of the prin men, while preparing for the ministry, have owed much to his assistance. His less liberally furnished brothers In the ministry, were often benefitted from his purse.— His contributions to charitable and religious societies Were very large, for a man of his moderate income; and, in fact, he seemed to realize that he was but the steward

The following resolutions were then severally put and carried, without a single dissenting voice from among the many members of Trinity Church there assembled; indeed, never did this united congregation act more unanimously than they did on this occasion. The gentlemen who spake to the resolutions, were most happy in tlemen who spoke to the resolutions, were most happy in their remarks, evidencing what they professed, real feeling, and genuine sympathy, which appeared to strike a chord in the hearts of all present. MOVEMENTS OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL. On the 23rd ult., their Excellencies the Governor General and the Countess of Elgin honoured Quebec with a visit, and were received with every demonstration of loyalty and respect. The Quebee Mercury says that,

"His Lordship's progress was marked by the most hearty and tumultuous greetings from the moment of landing to that of stepping from his carriage, when the shouts of welcome were absolutely deafening from all parties—the English spectators vociferating that warm "hurra!" which falls so gratefully upon an old countryman's ears, and the French Canadians as loudly and as cordially intermingling their cries of "vive le Gouvernor!" REVOLTING CASE OF MURDER .-- On Friday last, Timothy and Mary Burke were arraigned at the Kingston Assizes, for the murder of Donald Burke, their son, a boy about five years of age. The prisoners were alleged to have murdered their two children, but separate indictments were preferred by the Attorney General, and the trial alluded to was on the first.

ary W. Benson, Esq., one of the Coroners for the Dis-He had been called upon to hold an inquest on the two children. The spot to which he was called is about eleven or twelve miles distant from Kingston; the body of the boy was pointed out to him; he appeared to be a boy about five years of age. Witness went away for the purpose of finding the parents of the child; he found the father sitting in the door of a barn at some distance; his wife was inside the barn; witness asked if they had any children; was answered in the negative was told by the male prisoner that they had died at sea; wit ness put a similar question to the woman afterwards; she stated that her children died on the passage from Montreal; witness then said to them both that they had better either tell the truth or say nothing about the children; he informed them that the bodies of the children had been found; the male prisoner then said that his wife had killed the children and hid them in the woods; he said no one would employ them on account of the children; the parents afterwards recognized the bodies on coming to the place in which they were; the father took the boy up in his arms and appeared deeply affected.

Cross-examined.—Witness understood that the mother made away with the children; she complained of being tired earrying away with the children, sac companies with the infant: the male prisoner said he had hard work to bring himself to it; the boy's head was apparently forced under a log and a stone against it; there was no stone on the child's head when witness saw it.

John Johnston, sworn.—Saw the prisoner on the morning of the 4th, about 6 or 7 o'clock; the woman had a child with her about three years of age; witness went to work at a job he had about three years of age; witness went to work at a job he had on the road; about ten o'clock the prisoners passed witness on the road, but the child was not with them; witness felt suspicions that there was something wrong connected with the child; mentioned these suspicions, but nothing was done until the evening, when he went to the place at which the prisoners were Rev. I, George W. Ingerson, of Lancaster, hereby certify, that I have been troubled with the Asthma foa about twenty years. Last Nov., when I began to take Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I had been unable to do anything for several months, and had not, except a very few nights, been able to rest in my bed. Almost as soon as I began to take it, I felt relieved. I have taken about two bottles. My health is altogether improved. A few returns of the Asthma, which I have had in that time, were almost immediately removed by taking the Balsam. I rest welf, and my health is, and has been for menths better than at any time previous for many years. I cheerfully recommend this medicine to all who are similarly afflicted.
