The action of Bulgaria will give rise to many conjectures. It was done ow-ing probably to suspicion of the friend-liness of Roumania to the allies and to suspicion of espionage by allied agents. The Germans and Bulgarians have been greatly worried by the collection of big Russian forces in the delia of the Danube. This gives the Russians the option of attacking the enemy in Bessarabla or of advancing thru the Dorbruja with the connivance of Rou-mania and attacking Bulgaria.
