

FOSTER TELLS OF HUGE ZOLLVEREIN

Allied Conference Agrees to Have No Trade Whatever With Enemy

CHEAP GOODS BARRED

Preferences Given Entente Powers During Reconstruction Period and After

A gigantic zollverein, including nearly one-half of the world's population, was outlined by Sir George Foster in his address before the Canadian Club yesterday upon the "economic conference of the allies at Paris."

The delegates to the Paris conference, he said, had assembled under unusual stress and strain. The war had then lasted twenty-two months, and France had borne the brunt of the battle.

The war has been fought about Sir George continued, by Germany's effort to commercially dominate first Europe and then the world.

Then the conference agreed as to what should be the policy of the allied nations during the reconstruction period following the war.

Cheap Goods Barred. They bound themselves not to export basic resources to the central powers until the needs of the allies were fully served.

On the other hand, Belgium would find compensatory markets for what she is able to produce in the allied countries. During the reconstruction period the allied nations will conserve their resources and trade with one another preferentially to the central powers.

Don't Want Another Hell. We do not want another hell like this present war," the speaker declared, amid great enthusiasm, "and we propose to police the robbers of the world."

REPUBLICAN PINS FAITH ON WILSON

A. S. Gookin Says People Should Reward Him for His Work in Trying Times.

COUNTRY NEEDS HIM

Has Kept it From War With Honor, But Will Fight to the Last If He Must.

Allan Smith Gookin, at one time prominent in Republican organization work in New York, has written to his son, W. S. Gookin, general manager of Canada of the Vitagraph, in regard to the presidential election which takes place in the States today.

Mr. Allan Smith Gookin says: "I am going to vote for Wilson. Why? A man like Wilson will help in relieving 'T. R.' as in my opinion he deserves to be relieved."

"I have no use for these men who would have done so and so," Vanderbilt's quotation comes in here (guess you have heard me use it before). "It is not what he did do." President Wilson has made mistakes. Who has not?

"In war, in peace, in the building up of the great nation as we want to see it, the world is full of men who are doing it. It is not what he did do. It is not what he did do. It is not what he did do."

Court Enlarges Motion to Trial of Action Entered Against Company.

The City of Toronto yesterday lost a motion for an injunction to prevent the Toronto Suburban Railway Company from carrying on the construction of the line from Keele, Dundas and Danforth, until the company obtains an order from the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The company has an order from the board permitting the construction of the line including a 14-inch concrete base, laying a new rail and changing the base. The company's engineers blundered, however, in showing the concrete base as part of the company's work, so it does not wish to proceed under this order.
