ANOTHER RECRUIT

"Hiram," said Mrs. Johnson to her better half as she looked up from her evening paper, "there's been a great deal said about the tariff in the papers for weeks past, but you haven't seemed to be interested."
"No, I haven't taken much interest," he replied.
"But I wish you'd take a little now. I see a good deal about ad valorem. What is the meaning of it?"
"It's a sort of a tax, my dear."
"I thought so, but just what kind of a tax? I see in one place here where ad valorem is connected with cigars."
"Yes. It means that cigars are to be cheaper. The tariff puts a duty of 10 per cent. on cigars, and then ad valorem steps in and knocks 15 per cent. off."
"But what for?"
"So that 15 cents per pair can be added to the price of every pair of women's stockings."
"And then your cigars are to be cheaper and my stockings dearer!" shrieked

Mrs. Johnson, as she hung down the paper.

"That's it. Old ad valorem knows his business."
"And there are some other folks know their business, Hiram Johnson, and I'm one of them. I said only yesterday that it was nonsense about women wanting to vote, but this has changed by mind. Tomorrow I join the ranks, and we'll have our rights, and we'll vote and vote and vote until we make old ad valorem and all the rest of you feel sick."

A tickling or dry cough can be quickly loosened with Dr. Shop's Cough Remedy. No opium, no chloroform, nothing unsafe or harsh. Sold by all Druggists.

HER IDEA.

Estelle—I hear Tom attempted to kiss you last night.
Eunice—Yes, and if he doesn't succeed any better in other things he attempts, he'd better lay down and die.

PERMANENT PAVING IN MILL, GERMAIN AND PARADISE ROW

Ald. Potts then read the following resolution which he wished to be regarded as a notice of motion.
To His Worship the Mayor and Members of the Common Council:
Notice, I will move at the next meeting of the common council in August the following resolution: That the bills and by-laws committee of the council be instructed to prepare a bill to be presented at the first meeting of the local assembly at Fredericton empowering the city of St. John to make the rate of taxation from the year 1910 to 1915 inclusive not to exceed $1.00 per $100.

Ald. Baxter thought it would be a good thing and seconded it.
Ald. Kelley thought instead of limiting the tax rate they ought to limit the issue of bonds.
Ald. Potts agreed to a suggestion of Ald. Baxter to have the bills and by-laws committee take the matter up, and the council adjourned.

CONSUMPTION IS INFECTIOUS

Every Precaution Should be Taken to Prevent Its Spread.

Persons coming into contact with consumptive should inhale Catarrhose several times each day as it is a powerful destroyer of disease germs, and renders them innocuous. Catarrhose is a most efficient preventive and may be thoroughly relied upon to promote expectation, soothe the cough, and benefit in many ways too numerous to mention. Both the direct and scientific point of view Catarrhose is the most valuable addition to the armament against consumption. It is not a stimulant, but warmly applauded, and we advise any of our readers troubled with coughs, bronchitis, throat weakness, catarrh, etc., to use Catarrhose frequently.

ANOTHER AERONAUT IS DASHED TO DEATH

James Corcoran Killed While Making Balloon Ascension and Parachute Jump at Portland, Me.

Portland, Me., July 5.—Mistaking the promiscuous firing of revolvers by the crowd below as a signal for the climax of his aerial act, James Corcoran, an aeronaut, 28 years old, of Lowell (Mass.), cut his parachute when but a few hundred feet from the earth at the fourth of July celebration here late today and was dashed to the ground, resulting almost instant death at the feet of 5,000 horrified spectators.

Corcoran was employed by Prof. Joseph Laroux, of this city, with whom the municipal authorities had contracted to make two balloon ascensions and parachute jumps today.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Corcoran had his arrangements all completed for ascending from the eastern promenade. Three parachutes were attached to the hot air balloon for a triple jump by the aeronaut. As is always customary, it was arranged that Corcoran should cut loose with his parachutes when he heard a certain number of revolver shots from Professor Laroux on the ground, the latter to give the signal when the balloon should have reached a height sufficient to make the triple jump possible, approximately 5,000 feet.

Corcoran had barely left the ground before promiscuous firing of revolvers began, but Professor Laroux failed out to him to keep on. After a few hundred feet up it is hard for an aeronaut to judge correctly his exact height, as he swings on the bar and so when Corcoran heard a second fusillade of shots from the ground it is believed he was certain the signal had come for him to cut away in the parachute for he was seen to drop from the balloon, although he was barely 500 feet in the air.

The distance was too short for the parachute to open properly and Corcoran dropped in a straight line, gaining speed as he neared the earth until his body struck the ground on the site of the proposed monument to the late Thomas B. Reed, about 1,000 feet from where the ascension was made.

Corcoran was still alive when his body was picked up, but unconscious. It was found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull, a compound fracture of the right leg and other injuries, from which he died in a short time.

Corcoran was married and leaves a widow and one child.

The members of Coronation and Mount Purple Loyal Orange lodges will take part in the celebration on July 12 and will come to the city by salmon motor boats, arriving together about 10.30 a. m. It is expected there will be about fifteen boats in the flotilla.

TRAGEDY ENDED A BOSTON BOAT RACE

Six Crews Started in an Eight Oared Race and All Boats Swamped—One Oarsman Drowned

Boston, July 5.—The climax of an eventful rowing regatta came late this afternoon when Edward Morley, an eighteen-year-old boy, rowing at No. 3 in the St. Alphonsus eight, of Roxbury, was drowned while clinging to a tow rope to which he had been attached by two boat-mates when they were forced to go after another comrade in danger of drowning, after their frail shell had capsized. At the same time the five other boats crews which had been contesting in the junior eight-oared race, the last event of the New England Amateur Rowing Association's 23rd annual regatta, was also struggling in the water, two others beside that from the St. Alphonsus Association requiring assistance to prevent drowning, while the others did not swamp until crossing the finish line. In the excitement little interest was taken in the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" crew of Boston had won. The six crews which were in the race and which were flooded by the waves chopped by a northwest wind, were the St. Alphonsus Association of Roxbury, the West Lynn Boat Club, of Lynn; the Riverside Boat Club, of Cambridge; the Columbia Rowing Association, of East Boston, and the Kalamet Boat Club, of Worcester.

During the day's events, extending over six hours, upwards of a dozen boats were swamped and while the drowning of young Morley was the only fatality, others were averted only through the vigilance of power boats.

The race of the junior eight promised to be a most interesting one. They had covered a mile or more of the mile and one-half course when the Columbia crew was swamped and the committee boat went to their assistance. At the same time between the mile mark and the finish the St. Alphonsus and Kalamet crews were thrown into the water, the latter being in the lead at the time. Running the assistance of the St. Alphonsus shell, a steam launch struck her amidships, cutting the hull in twain and forcing the oarsmen to struggle in the water without support. Morley, at No. 3, was unable to swim, as was the coxswain, John Troy, R. Croswell and J. Kellier in the forward section went to Morley's assistance and supported him to the launch, where he caught hold of a tow-line. Then they returned for Troy and helped him aboard. In the meantime Morley gasped and sputtered at the end of the rope, filling his lungs with water and was drowned, his companions thinking him in the boat. Not far away and watching the extrication of oarsmen and boats were Rev. James Corr, another priest of the Mission church, Roxbury, spiritual directors of the St. Alphonsus Association, of whom the dead boy was a communicant.

MIGHT OF THE MITE

(By H. J. Kellogg)

Sing a song of microbes,
Lurking everywhere;
Swimming in the water,
Sailing through the air;
Biting to your clothes,
Clinging to your nose,
Creeping up your nose,
Diving in all crevices,
Stirred in every cake,
Swallowed in the pastry—
Hence the stomachache,
Boiling in the soup pot,
Baking in the bread,
Dancing on a needle,
Prancing on a thread;
Billions on a banknote,
Trillions on a greenback,
Used to pay your rent,
Cancer on a sunbeam,
Patches on a note,
Forty thousand ailments,
Philip the good fellow,
Read the daily paper,
You'll have a doubt,
Microbes as they creep,
Spread the seeds of gout,
Tropically the fever,
Make you have the shivers,
Mark your face with freckles,
Kill a cat's nine lives;
Give us ear and toothache,
Give a horse the heaves,
Roup and rip the throat,
Toughness to the beavers,
Microbes cause the catarrh,
Raise the storm at sea,
Cause the dread cholera,
Cause the summer panic,
Cause the stilly bonnets,
Make the price they cost;
Cause the family quarrel,
Cause the auto smash,
Give the chauffeur awful nerve,
Give the people their fun,
Microbes may be vicious,
Still they like their fun,
Got into a rhymester,
See what they have done.

DOING AN ERRAND

"About 10 years ago, when I was living in a village in Illinois," said the red-headed man, "I had business to call me to London. My getting ready for the trip was the talk of the place, and a day or two before I started, I was visited by a farmer, who was an Englishman, and who said: 'If you are going to London would you mind seeing my brother Jim and telling him that his brother Tom over here is well and doing well, and wants him to write often?'"

"What is your brother's other name?" I asked.

"Smith, sir—Jim Smith."
"I told him I would keep an eye out for the Smith family, and he thanked me and withdrew. In due time I arrived in London from Liverpool and as I took a cab at the depot, I queried of the driver: 'Do you happen to know anyone in London named Smith?'"

"I'm a Smith myself sir," he replied. "But a Jim Smith."

"I'm a Jim Smith," "But a Jim Smith who has got a brother Tom in America," "I've got one, sir," "But a Jim Smith whose brother Tom in America is a farmer in Illinois and wants to be written to often."

"That's me again sir, and here's the proof of it. I'm just going to mail him this 'ere letter."
"And hang me if he didn't show me a letter ready for mailing and prove his case on the spot. He was the first man I had spoken to in London, and he was the Jim Smith I had been told to look out for."
