It is explained that the immediate construction of the extension of the E. & N. line on Vancouver Island was undertaken on an agreement being made by the government that a bill would be passed. The ministry take the position that this assistance was a wise ages to the province in having work commence at once in supplying work to the unemployed and in developing the island. The government met the company in the matter and agreed to introduce a bill granting exemption from taxation for a term of years. While this will be the explanation general public will not be slow to note that the C. P. R. in extending the E.

The bill will also apply, it is reported, to a portion of the V. V. & E. ine now held by the Great Northern and under construction, owing to the policy of the Dominion government, For a portion of the V., V. & E. the question arose as to whether th pany was entitled to a provincial subsidy voted some years ago. The pro-vincial government refused the liability to pay the subsidy, while the company it is claimed, pressed its right to co lect. A compromise was reached whereby the advantages of continuing the work were obtained and the company forfeited any right to the subsidy by this exemption proposition now

These are two propositions upon which the government framed the policy of exemption from taxation, ac-cording to those best informed in government circles.
