

alone if they offend the prejudices of others, especially of dear and honoured friends."

"I don't know but you are right, Angie; at any rate, our wedding, so far as that is concerned, shall have nothing in it to give offence to any one."

"Sometimes I think," said Angie, "we please God by giving up, for love's sake, little things we would like to do in His service, more than by worship."

"Well, dear, that principle has a long reach. We will talk more about it by and by; but now good night!—or your mother will be scolding you again for sitting up late. Somehow, the time does slip away so when we get to talking."
