

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."

—Miss GUILA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

When one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all.

SEYMOUR GOURLAY, M.P.

The fiery fighter from Nova Scotia closed the recent session with final jab at his ancient enemy.

Seymour Gourlay, M.P., was in at the death. The fiery fighter from Nova Scotia made the last speech of the Parliamentary session, and was able to have a final jab at his ancient enemy, Uncle Sam. Gourlay of Colchester, is a unique figure in the politics of Canada. He is first a Canadian, and then a Britisher, but owing to the conduct of Lord Alverstone, his British proclivities have suffered diminution. Gourlay, it will be remembered, was the gentleman who told the House that he was ready to take his wife and family into the trenches to fight the Yankees. Gourlay it was who valiantly protested against our being handed over to the United States in sections. Gourlay has now but one object in life, and that is to further the cause of Canadian independence. He will preach the new evangel at all times and will hold up before his auditors the horrible prospect of annexation if we do not insist on doing it ourselves.

Gourlay, however, has other claims to greatness. He is certainly the most remarkably dressed man in the House of Commons. This summer it was his habit to appear in frock coat, white flannel trousers and yachting cap. That was a combination fit to scare any tailor into con- viction fits. But Gourlay is not the kind of man to worry about sartorial details. He desires to be clothed, and anything that clothes him will do sufficiently well. Some day, no doubt, that frock coat will come up the walk of Parliament enclosing the manly torso of the statesman from Colchester, while bicycle knickerbockers will induce his legs. Nobody, it may be remarked, will be astonished any more that anybody would wonder at anything Gourlay might say. As for his sartorial eccentricities, Hon. George E. Foster was almost as bad in his way. It was the custom of the then Minister of Finance to turn up at the House of Commons with white trousers and black morning coat, with black derby hat. This was a combination that impelled a jealous Liberal to remark that the Minister of Finance was so industrious that he forgot to dress as his salary permitted him to do.—Toronto News.

FIDO WAS IN BAD FIX.

Caught in the Revolving Door at the Post-Office.

The turnstile at the entrance to the London, Ont., postoffice was the scene of considerable excitement the other day. A well-known butcher had just entered the postoffice. He must have wanted to cash a cheque before the savings department closed, for he went up the steps and bumped into the turnstile as if the success of his business depended upon it.

He apparently did not notice that his little dog followed him up the steps, but he did at a moment later. The dog had a lie-around-all-day look about him, and did not realize that if he wanted to follow his master through the turnstile he would have to do it in a hurry to go in through the collar. He did look a little bewildered at the tugging of the rubber strips on the door, but he had no doubt thought the door was only some huge fan to keep the busy post-office officials cool. As it came slopping around as people came in and went out, the brown hair on the back of the dog commenced to stiffen. He jumped at a conclusion and at the door at the same time, and some one who was coming out had the same conviction as the dog did. "Just as the latter jumped the man who was coming out gave the door a vigorous shove. It went about two inches and then stopped. The meditative friend of the kennel had been caught in the works, and commenced to make his predicament known immediately, too, for a steam calliope wasn't to be compared with the notes the dog got rid of for a minute. Fido did not like the idea of being fanned by a fan of that sort, and the people inside did not like the idea of Fido being fanned, either. Among them was the dog's owner. He is known as an ingenious man, and in an instant hit upon a scheme. It must be remembered that Fido is a stout dog, and could not come out of the space in which he was confined without a struggle.

"Ask him how old Ann is, and he'll wilt," suggested one of those looking on. But the man who owned him knew better than that. He wanted to save the dog.

"Going up to him he merely said: 'Fido, aren't you ashamed to make a public exhibition of yourself?' This made the dog feel small, and he was soon able to extricate himself.

Holds Niagara in Check.

The coffer dam of the Electrical Development Company of Ontario at Niagara Falls is nearing completion. All the heavy, dangerous work in the rapid water was a thing of the past, the workmen now being engaged near the shore. The construction shaft had been completed to its full depth of 160 feet; the construction tunnel was now about 850 feet under the Falls, and half way out to where the construction of the main tunnel would commence. The contractor for the wheel pit and coffer dam completed entirely around his work, the ground cleared, and buildings and machinery installed ready to commence work in the wheel pit, which will be continued night and day until completed.

One of the most magnificent sights to be seen in from the coffer dam, which is an engineering work almost without parallel in the world. It dams back the whole force of the Niagara River in the most tempestuous part of the rapids, about 2,000 feet above the brink of the Falls. Engineers from all over the United States are visiting this work, and have expressed their admiration of its solidity and also of the engineering skill shown in its construction.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure." It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pills have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Pease, Kaufman Co., Tex. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and eggs that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for years. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. An Artful Beggar.

An old Parisian mendicant was recently noticed to manifest apparent caprice in selecting the objects for his importunity. He would allow a number of persons to pass unheeded and then attach himself to others and take no denial. A bribe of half a franc from a curious spectator induced him to give his reason. "I have a code of rules which I invariably follow," said he. "Thus I never ask alms of one who has dined, as rosbif renders a man selfish, nor of stout men, as it bores them to stop, nor of any one putting on their gloves, nor of a lady alone, but always of any one manifestly going to dinner, of people walking together, as their amour propre makes them generous; of officers in grand uniforms and of people apparently seeking favor from the government, as they think that a gift will bring them luck."

Pride of His Performance.

In a downtown church, as the story goes, there was introduced a new hymn, and after the dismissal of the services the organ blower found his way to the player's bench and asked in a meek voice, "How did the music for that new hymn go this evening?" "Oh, very well; very well, indeed," replied the organist. "But why do you ask?"

"Well," said the blower, "I'll tell you the truth. I was a bit nervous and a bit worried about it, for, you see," he went on explaining, "I never blowed for that hymn before."

Too Strong.

"My boy tells me you discharged him," said the late office boy's mother.

"You advertised for a strong boy, and I certainly thought he was strong enough."

"Madam," replied the merchant, "he was too strong. He broke all the rules of the office and some of the furniture in the two days he was with us."

Hard Luck.

"Did yer get anything?" whispered the burglar on guard as his mate emerged from the window.

"No. The chap wot lives here is a lawyer," replied the other in disgust. "That's hard luck," replied the first. "Did yer lose anything?"

Serge Shirt Waist Dresses—Double and Triple Skirts.
The serge shirt waist suit is newer and smarter than the flannel shirt waist and separate skirt. These little dresses are very simple. The blouse is often made with a long shoulder yoke. From this start three graduated plaits, which come down from either side into a point at the fullness of the waist line. Sometimes pipings of plaid are introduced to give a touch of color. The double and triple tier skirts, while very smart, are somewhat trying to the ordinary wearer.

The faultless taste of the great Parisian dressmakers only adopts that mode of skirt most becoming to the wearer. To revert to a past epoch is evidently the pronounced idea shown in the principal and best known temples of sartorial art. There are many old world gowns likely to be repeated combined with modern and practical notions.

Some well known tailors are using many small taffeta buttons and small frills of silk. These adorn impartially heavy and light weight tailor makes. The cut shows a costume of checked wool goods, having a double skirt.

SMART EFFECTS.

All White Believed With Black—The Victorian Capes.

Some very pretty French hats are made of chenille combined with colored feathers. For instance, those of white chenille will be almost covered with black feathers. These are most chic worn with ermine or black and white frocks.

White cloth gowns are nearly always trimmed with the dead white Irish lace, and when anything is used to relieve this it takes the form of black panne applique in odd figures. Fine plaited costumes are very fashionable for young girls, especially for evening wear. They are finished with a bertha of lace and a figured ribbon sash. Victorian capes of chiffon, velvet and furs to harmonize are very smart with cloth street dresses. Handsome buckles, buttons and embroidery are now used more than ever.

Some early autumn mantles are in black velvet trimmed with medallions of black applique and frills and ruffles of black taffeta. The majority of these are cut after the shawl pattern and very low on the shoulder. Then there are some smart little cloth capes reaching to the waist, finished with collars of oriental embroidery.

We are wearing a good deal of black, which some are wearing white trimmed with black. White cloth, attached with black and trimmed with white embroidery, is extremely smart, and so are white beaver hats trimmed with black plumes or birds.

All the short skirts seem plaited or kilted and all the "tailor made" millinery is trimmed with birds or wings. It is a curious thing that despite so much strong feeling against the wearing of birds this fashion should have taken such a persistent hold. The cut shows a stole of sable and one of the latest muffs. The hat is of brown felt with a shaded brown feather.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

There is an old saying about the folly of locking the stable after the horse is stolen, and from this may be taken a lesson in reference to the treatment of croup and colds.

Children Have Croup,

Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds, and if there is at hand such a remedy as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to be given at the first indication of trouble, you can be positively sure of preventing serious results.

Especially people who are living at a distance from doctors and drug stores are running a terrible risk when they do not keep at hand effective treatment for the ills which are sure to attack some members of the family during cold seasons.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is, we believe, the most satisfactory home treatment for ailments of this nature which can possibly be obtained.

Though wonderfully thorough and far-reaching in its effects on the whole system, it is pleasant to the taste, not injurious in any way, and equally effective for the use of old and young.

Some people who are otherwise very particular do not seem to realize the importance of using only the best treatment for coughs and colds, but accept whatever the dealer sees fit to give them. Be sure you get Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and the results will be eminently satisfactory.

Mr. J. R. Robinson, 37 Bishop Street, Toronto, says: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine absolutely cured two of my children of croup. Both my wife and myself have utmost confidence in it. This remedy is no stranger in our home, having frequently been used before with the greatest success."

Mr. F. W. Bond, 20 Macdonald Street, Barrie, Ont., says: "Having tried your medicine, my faith is very high in its powers of curing cough and croup. My little girl has been subject to the croup for a long time, and I found nothing to cure it until I gave Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. I cannot speak too highly of it."

Mr. W. Stafford, 88 Brussels Street, St. John, N.B., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for coughs and colds, and do not think there is a better remedy known than this. It seems to go directly to the diseased parts and brings relief at once. I have such faith in this remedy and Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, that we always keep both these preparations in the house."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

Is sold by all dealers at the advertised price, 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, are on every bottle of his remedies.

Bad Tempered Women.
It is said that a bad tempered woman can cause more actual unpleasantness for the rest of humanity than all the other disagreeable features one finds in life, and the unlucky possessor of an uncontrolled temper can easily drive to ruin or to other women the men whose misfortune it is to move in her orbit. The average man prizes permanent peace and content above the happiness of possessing a beautiful, attractive creature for a wife, and he knows that a bad tempered woman and peace go not together. He admires a spirited woman, but he knows that a correspondingly strong will goes along with strong character, and he expects her to exercise it. The woman who can control herself under the most trying circumstances is the woman who holds the strongest power over men. No matter how beautiful and clever and fascinating the bad tempered woman may be or how lengthy her bank account, her power is infinitesimal compared with that of her amiable sister.

It takes time to make a watch and time to keep it running.

When a man is under a cloud you can't always convince him that it has a silver lining.

A Philadelphia woman was recently breaking in a new servant, a Swedish girl, who had not been very long in this country. She was fortunate enough to own a house which had a bath-room for the exclusive use of the servants.

"Now, Freda," she said, as she pointed out this room, "this is to be your own bath room. There's a tub and I want you to use it often."

"Vat! Git in dat place?"
"Why, certainly."
"Vit water in it?"
"Of course."
"Vy, mam, if I vas to git in dere I would git wet all over, an' I vas never vet all over in my life."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Many a man who has the reputation of knowing a lot manages very successfully to conceal his knowledge.

The Great South American Rheumatism Cure; the kind that cures in a few days the most obstinate and painful cases.
If you have a friend suffering from that horror, or from lumbago or neuralgia, it is your duty at least to offer it to him. It will relieve, with the first dose. You too.

William Marshall, of Varney Post Office, County of Gray, Ontario, writes:
"For the last year I was continually in bed. I spent hundreds of dollars in doctoring and medicines which proved of little relief. The first dose of South American Rheumatic Cure gave me instant relief. I am completely cured."

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN RHEUMATIC CURE builds up into vigor and health the most shattered systems. It is unmatched in female complaints, or general debility in either sex. Hundreds of testimonials from the cured ones.
