

is earlier sown, spends the summer in spreading into a large bunch, and rooting firmly, by which it not only bears the severity of the winter, but sends up from each seed many more stalks the ensuing summer. The farmer should be particularly careful to sow his clover, if possible before the end of July; for it is very apt to be killed with the winter, if not well rooted, and it often happens that crops which come up well late in the fall are wholly killed, so that a single plant cannot be found the next summer.——The first week in July, sow field turnips—the early Dutch may be sown as late as the 25th.——The 20th is a good time to sow turnip raddish, and for a late crop, some salmon ditto, as late as August 10th.——About the middle of August is the best time to sow winter wheat and rye, as by being sowed early it will be better rooted to stand the severity of the winter, and be more likely to escape a blast by coming in earlier next summer.
