

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JUNE 7, 1889.

Acadia's Anniversary.

Acadia College has reason to be proud of her past history. Last summer, when the friends of the College celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of this successful institution, no wonder such enthusiasm was awakened at the recollection of the past and the realization of the present; no wonder, in contemplating the obstacles overcome, the successes wrought and the victories achieved, great hopes were entertained and predictions made for the fifty years to come.

The closing exercises of the Acadia Institutions commenced under most favorable auspices. The weather Sunday morning was beautiful and Wolfville looked her prettiest. At 11 o'clock the Baptist church was filled to hear the delivered by the President of the College, Rev. Dr. Sawyer. The text was Mark vi. 2. After a brief introduction, treating of the somewhat varied accounts of the evangelist concerning Christ's visit to Nazareth, the speaker proceeded to unfold in a clear, concise way the great truth contained in the text. The Saviour's own townsfolk were offended at Him. His preaching was to them a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence. It was a time of transition. The new was appearing and gradually superseding the old, to which in a measure it was antagonistic. Not that there was fundamental disagreement, but because the embodiment of the well established, the people, represented the truth they held in distorted shape.

Mr. Miller gave a strong plea for the preservation of our forests. Palestine the land which flowed with milk and honey when Joshua invaded it, has since those days greatly changed in the nature of its soil. This is owing to the fact that the forests have been destroyed. The cedar of Lebanon no longer grows in this once fruitful region, as it did in the days when the Palmist lived and sang.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A noteworthy feature of the week's exercises was the service held in Assembly Hall in commemoration of the life and services of the late Dr. Crawley. As requested, Judge Johnson, of Halifax, had prepared a paper in which he reviewed the long life of his teacher and friend and his connection with the educational growth of the Province and the rapid increase of the Baptist denomination. The paper was a masterpiece of effort and as read by his daughter was heard with deep interest through the fifty minutes required for its delivery.

Music by male voices from the Hill was given during the evening.

The closing exercises of the Horton Collegiate Academy were held in College Hall on Wednesday afternoon at 2.50. After prayer by Principal Oakes, who presided, the following programme was successfully carried out:

March from Tannhäuser, Spindler, Misses Seabourne and Newcombe. Piano Solo, Allegro in F Sharp, Mayer, Miss Bessie Harding.

Dr. Jones presented the graduates with their diplomas and gave a thoughtful and earnest address to the class. He said that the importance of a course of study did not consist in its length but in the manner in which it was passed.

Thursday morning dawned fresh and beautiful after a refreshing shower during the night. The morning threatened more rain, but the day proved to be all that could be desired.

Printed notices containing further information as to conditions of proposed Contract may be seen and blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Office of Horton Landing and at this office.

was "Pictures," written by Mr Saunders. This essay displayed much originality and was one of the best essays delivered. He spoke of the great imperfection man makes when he attempts to copy from nature. God has been painting his sublime thoughts in nature; man has been attempting to imitate them.

The music furnished by the young ladies of the Seminary was of a high order and well received.

At the close of the exercises addresses of an interesting character were given by Prof. Tufts, Dr. Hall and A. McLean. Horton Academy on the whole has just passed a very prosperous year.

After prayer by Rev. J. W. Manning the following programme was carried out, Dr. Jones presiding:

Procession March, Sidney Smith, Annie M. McLean. Piano Solo, Allegro in A, op. 120, Schubert, Annie O. Margeson.

Virtue by Herodity, Leander A. Palmer, Dorchester, N. B. The Life and Letters of Thomas Carlyle, Milfred B. Crawley, Sydney, C. B. The Educational Method of Physical Science as applied to Social Science, Fred O. Hartley, Carleton, N. B. Music

Plato's Republic, Charles H. McIntyre, Springfield, N. B. The Measure of Civilization, Wellington H. Jenkins, Cady's, Queens, N. B. The first essay, "Science and Poetry," by Henry T. DeWolf, was well written and delivered. The speaker showed that poetry and science were more closely allied than they appeared to be.

"The Educational Power of History" was spoken upon by Hugh S. Blackadar. He pointed out the great enrichment history gave to the world and concluded that history as an educative power surpassed all others in that without history the world could not advance as it has by profiting from the failure and successes of the past.

Judson Kempton was the next speaker and his subject, "Cicero's Political History." He described the condition of Rome at the time of Cicero's advent, and dwelt upon the great benefit Rome received by his life. The suppression of Cato's conspiracy, for which he was styled pater patriae deservedly renders his consulship immortal.

Mr. Palmer spoke of the "Virtues by Herodity." Completion, size, physical strength descend from generation to generation; virtue descends in a like manner. A man born of religious parents can more easily resist temptation than he who is not.

"The Life and Letters of Thomas Carlyle" was the subject of Mr. Crawley's essay. A beautiful picture was given of Mr. Carlyle's Home Life, and showed that beneath his asperity a tender tone and noble heart was found.
