A few days ago, the driver of a stage coach between two portions of the Ottawa, unnavigable for steam vessels, but which the government is now readering navigable told me that he came to this district in 1841; with one dollar in his pocket, and I learned from a gestleman with whom he had originally worked as a common absource when he first came out, that he is now worth. £1000, and has a capital farm. On my expressing surprise that a man like him could have an average of savings of £80 a year since he arrived, I was assured that, so far from this being a solitary case there was, hardly an frishman who is industrious and temperate—the latter is just us necessary as the former quality—that is not, more less in the same position.

Tun Roston Atlas states that Mr. McKay, of East Boston, is now at work upon a clipper ship of 2,400 tons, the model of which is much sharper than the Sovereign of the Seas, and is considered more beautiful. The ship is intended for the Australia trade, and is owned by Messre. James Baines & Co., of Liverpool, England. Mr. McKay says that she will ontail any vessel he has yet built, and he will do his best to make her a perfect ship. She has very bollow lines, and her ends will be as nearly alike as practicable. Mr. McK.'s recent trip in the Sovereign of the Seas suggested, several important improvements in the modelling of clippers.

It will be recollected that some fifteen or twenty years ago, the Dorking fowls stood very high in England, and for delicious meat nothing coald well exceed them; since which time they have been quite cellpsed by the East India importations, and of late years, the Cochin Chinese, patronized by Queen Victoria; have stood to an the pinnacle of fashion's dunghill. But they, too, appear to have had their day, and to be destined soon too pase into that great throng of things that " have been." We observe that at the great poultry exhibition of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, lately held at Glouester, public opinion, and the verdict of the judges most distinctly pointed to the Dorkings, as the most useful and profitable bird for an agricultural establishment. Perhaps they may be superseded another year. But the real truth is just becoming admitted, that the poultry manin—the Cochin fiver—is actually dying away—at least in England—the same will follow here. At the same exhibition, the principal standard of the content of the condition is and the successful weighed, respectively, forty-one, forty, thirty-nine and half, and thirty-nine lbs. each —something more than "fancy," here—three was solid reality.

An awful catastrophe occurred on Wednesday evening, on the route of a non-commissioned officer's escort of the lat Depot from Birr to Athlene, in charge of an artillory soldier who had deserted. The whole party commenced drinking, and the prisoner observing their disorderly state at Rosenellis, where they again drank in a public house, and the opportunity it gave him, struggled to release himself, but was knocked down, and though manacled, one of the soldiers pointed his mucket, and shot the helpices man, who was their prostrate under two of the party.

Sr. Erkanon's Court.—We shall give a summary of what took place at the sitting of the Supreme Court at St. Eleanor's on the 4th inst., in our next. In the mean time, we have to report that there was but one record case tried, Conroy as Pippy, for libel; verdict for Plaintiff, Damages £15. There were some appeals of no great interest. We would recommend to Mr. J. J. Pippy, to consider well the language used by his Counsel Martin J. Wilkins, Eq., when defending him in the case of Couroy es. Pippy.

"The Plaintiff, Gentleman, is not injured by the publication of this libel, for it is contained in language so gross, so extravagant, and so false that it carries its own antidate with it." Let him also apply these to the last editorial, and try if it does not come under the same description.
