His Excellency Shannahan The Governor Visits Littledale Academy.

Yesterday morning His Excellency accompanied by Miss Dean, Mr. Fitzherbert, Private Secretary, and Lieut. Gale, A.D.C., paid a visit to Littledale.

The Vice-Royal party was met by His Grace Archbishop Howley, Rev. Dean Born, Rev. Fr. Power, of the West Coast, and the Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan.

After the interior beauties of Littledale had been seen, the bright and clever pupils of the Academy attached to Littledale provided His Excellency and the distinguished visitors with a rare, beautiful and finished exhibition of graceful acting, accompanied by very high class singing and magnificent elocution, in the rendering of the operetta, "St. Elizabeth's Roses."

Certainly the young ladies reflected the highest credit on the Academy and the training—painstaking and thorough—given them by the Sisters.

For one so young—she is but fifteen years old—Miss Jackman sings magnificently, and apparently without effort she uses her full, rich voice to the very best advantage. Miss Morris, as Prince Ludwig, Miss O'Donnell, as Queen of the Roses, and Miss Mansfield also performed in a finished manner, and indeed quite above the average amateur; whilst all who took part gave an excellent account of themselves and looked very neat and pretty in their snow-white dresses.

At the conclusion of the operetta, His Excellency paid a graceful and high compliment to the young ladies, also to Mr. Hutton and the good Sisters of the Academy. In the course of his remarks he alluded to the many entertainments he had had the pleasure to be present at in different convent schools and academies in many parts of the world, and spoke at some length upon the excellent teaching and training given by the superiors of convents; a training that fitted their young charges thoroughly to take their places in life as respectable members of society, and loyal subjects of the Empire. Sentiments such as these, and expressed by an able and experienced gentleman, such as His Excellency, are very convincing, and certainly furnish a cogent proof that education—such as is to be obtained in all convent schools, and, indeed, in all schools of a similar nature—is not only complete when it takes in not only secular subjects, but also spiritual or religious training. Assuredly it is gratifying in these days and in this age wherein there would appear to be rising up on all sides advocates of Godless education, to find such utterances or sentiments being expressed by persons of culture, of character, of experience and of very high standing. Certainly the compliments paid so gracefully, so eloquently and so beautifully by His Excellency are very gratifying; and the Superiors at Littledale ought indeed to feel justly proud. They do not spare themselves, and as they receive no material remuneration, it cannot be said of them or of any convent that gain is their object. Not their object is a much nobler and higher one—the perfect training of those given to their care as well in the great and sublime truths of religion as in the various branches of secular education that will enable them to step forth into the world equipped with a training, morally, intellectually and physically that will carry them successfully over all obstacles and temptations—a training without which nothing but disaster to the individual, to the community and to the nation can result.

And the Outharborman

We hear a lot of talk and read a great deal in some of the papers about the hardships inflicted on the outharborman, but when you take a good square look at things you find that these trials and hardships are greatly overdrawn. It isn't square to be at ways preaching this doctrine, for it makes the outharborman think that every one in St. John's is trying to fleece him. In election times it is a first rate cry to start this appeal to the outharborman, for it may have the effect of inducing them to work a vote for your side; but to keep it up day after day is to offer an insult to their intelligence. Outharborman men are like every other men, and they know when people are trying to "oil them down." It is a nonsensical practice and not likely to better their condition, but on the contrary to cause bad feeling and mistrust between the outharborman and his brothers in the city. What we want is unity and the only way to bring this about is by all hands working together. Life is one great struggle, which might be compared to a boat race, and it is no use having four men in a boat pulling together if two of the crew back water. Every man in the country must keep in stroke, be he outharborman or city man. We should all pull together, and in the end we will accomplish more than by finding fault with each other. Our papers are doing good work now and it is a pity that this splitting straws between sections of our country should appear to mar its progress. Let us hear no more of this appealing to the outharborman for, as I said before, it is only an insult to their intelligence, for the outharborman of to-day is not "too green to burn," and has sufficient pluck to demand his rights if those rights are not coming his way.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

"Nothing seemed to build up my nerves until I made use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After having used about $12.00 worth of this medicine I feel like a new man. I can walk all right, do a great deal of work, have a good appetite and sleep well every night."

Shoal Hr. Notes.

On Easter Sunday evening the annual meeting of the Daisy Mission Band—a branch of the Woman's Missionary Society—was held here in the Methodist Church. The meeting was presided over by Miss L. Taylor who performed the duty in her usual inimitable manner. The children who had been carefully trained by their President, Miss M. Taylor, gave quite an enjoyable programme consisting of songs, recitations, dialogues and exercises. At the conclusion of the programme Miss L. Taylor gave an interesting and descriptive address dealing chiefly with the work done by the W. M. S. in various parts of China and Japan, and also in North Western Canada. The President is a hard and enthusiastic worker which fact was plainly shown by the manner in which the children acquitted themselves. It is the sincere wish of all interested that the success which has hitherto attended "the Band" will continue.

A great many copies of the Daily News containing the address of Mr. R. A. Squires have been received and read by the people of Shoal Harbor with conflicting emotions. The style and language are certainly good—almost too good. We are not good politicians therefore we shall not be so audacious as to criticize the address generally but shall content ourselves with making a remark or two concerning that portion of it referring directly to the people of Shoal Harbor. Our people perhaps are as intelligent as the average people of the Bay, and possibly patriotic, but we scarcely think their intelligence, education and patriotism would lead them to "offer" their land for railway extension in the spirit spoken of in the address. We think the part referring to the "Bede Roll of Fame" is rather overdrawn and our people are immensely flattered to be spoken of in so complimentary a way without in the least deserving it. Our people as a whole, sir, did not offer their land, and it was only the knowledge of the futility of resistance that ultimately led them to the sacrifice of their old and prized homesteads. The "pull" will not go down and our sturdy people are rather disappointed that their representative should give utterance to such misleading words.

The winter is about over with our lumbermen and despite the fact that the winter has been very unsatisfactory, they have nevertheless secured good cuts and are now eagerly awaiting the "opening up" to begin sawing.

The foundation of a "Town Hall" was laid to-day, the "great" event was celebrated by the flying of flags.

Explosion on Steamer, Scandalous Scenes.

Special Evening Telegram. DOVER, April 7.

A terrific explosion occurred early this morning on the British steamer Cairnrona, of Dungeness, which wrecked the women's quarters, killing one child and injuring a number of women and children. The steamer caught fire and a panic ensued in which men fought for the possession of the boats, and had to be beaten back by the crew to allow the women to be taken first. A large number of passengers were landed here this evening, many of them in an exhausted condition. In all 20 were seriously injured, and no less than 50 were slightly injured by the explosion and in the panic that followed. The Cairnrona sailed yesterday from London for Portland, Me. She carried 500 passengers, most emigrants and a general cargo. By great luck the steamers Upland and Kanawha, were close at hand when the Cairnrona caught fire. They stood by and took off several hundred passengers and landed them here. Several of the first class passengers and American gentlemen give thrilling details of the accident. A number of women with children in their arms were sitting on a hatch when suddenly a violent explosion hurled them to all parts of the deck. The hatch was blown to fragments. Some of them were shockingly injured, and one child was killed outright. Rushing up and down screaming and wringing their hands, their terror was increased by the volumes of smoke which poured from the burning hold. The captain and officers made ineffectual efforts to calm them, and the signals of distress were sent up. Another explosion occurred in the engine room, and injured several of the engineers. The Kanawha and Upland steamed quickly up and the captain decided to transfer all the passengers. This was accomplished quickly but was accompanied by scandalous scenes. Scores of men tried to rush the boats, and many of them fought with the women, tearing and dragging them aside, and trampling them underfoot. The crew battled against the panic-stricken emigrants, using fists, and feet and anything they could find. Not a few of the frantic mob of men were felled to the deck before the fainting women and children could be got into the boats.

The Roosevelt Incident

Special to Evening Telegram. ROME, April 7.

Some of the prominent ecclesiastics who were received by the Pope to-day managed to introduce the subject of the Roosevelt incident. To these the Pontiff expressed the deepest regret that he had been prevented from meeting and speaking with the former President, but he gave utterance to no opinion regarding the negotiations of the deadlock that followed. The incident continues to be a live topic of discussion, and is emphasized by what the Liberal press calls the new mistake of Cardinal Merry Del Val.
