Handsome Store.

The many passing Water Street Saturdays night were struck with the handsome and brilliant appearance of the K. & A. Store, better known as the Young Man's Store, 286 Water Street. The proprietors, Messrs. Kearney and Atkinson, have taken over the building and have renovated and embellished it.

The flat formerly used as a residence by Mrs. M. F. Smythe is used as a showroom for the Smythe Sewing Co., while the rest of the building is devoted to the reserve stock of the K. & A. Store. The entrance to the residential section of the building was taken over and converted into a window, and this was what was meant by the ad. in the Telegram—"going through the wall," and which was so much commended. The removal of the door gives them 4 feet more front space and they have now three windows where formerly there was but two. The store has been beautifully decorated and painted, fitted with mirrors, is lit with 20 100-candle-power Tungsten electric lamps, and is finished in pitch pine, while the fixtures are in light oak, the counters in hard pine and spruce, so that the whole interior is tasty, bright and attractive. A feature of the store is two beautiful new glass showcases which are brilliantly lighted inside and reflect the elaborate display of goods contained in them. The store is well ventilated and heated, contains a large and varied stock and the proprietors who are pushing young men already find their trade increasing. The Telegram wishes them success in their enterprise.

Surprised Thief.

On Saturday night shortly after 9 o'clock Mrs. Dobbin, wife of Mr. Jas. Dobbin, saloon keeper, of Water St., had occasion to go into the store after coming downstairs from the living apartments, and was astonished and not a little alarmed to find a man in the shop and helping himself to the contents of the till. Mrs. Dobbin screamed and the man rushed out through the hall door which he had found open and through which he had entered the place as it had been accidentally left open. Mrs. Dobbin gave chase up Water Street and later Const. Lawlor engaged in it and overtook the thief and quickly rushed him to the police station. He had stolen $2 and was recognized as one Sparks, of Carter's Hill, who has on more than one occasion done time for larceny.

Delayed Ship.

The s.s. Adventure was ready to sail for Sydney Saturday but was detained in port up till to-day waiting for her firemen. Eight men were signed to go in the stokehold but only three of these turned up, and in consequence the ship was delayed in the stream all Saturday night. The steamer's whistle was constantly blowing but did not have the desired effect. Delegate Woods was communicated with and all day yesterday was trying to round up the stokers, but without success. The owners are indignant over the unnecessary delay caused, and five other firemen have been engaged to make the trip.

Old Man Hurt.

By the schr. New Trial which arrived here yesterday we learn that Mr. Stephen Reid, aged 66 years, while in the country some distance from his home at Heart's Delight, last week suffered an accident which disabled him and from the effects of which he would have perished if two boys did not providentially pass by and render him assistance. While walking through the woods he slipped and falling on a stump broke two ribs. He lay on the ground suffering great pain for a long while, and would not have been able to get home but for two boys named Wiseman who accidentally passed by the spot where Mr. Reid lay. Dr. Adams attended to him when he was brought home. Had he been further in the country he must have remained undiscovered and died from pain and exposure.

REPORTED MISSING.

—Yesterday afternoon the parents of Willie McGrath, five years old, reported at the police station that their boy was missing from his home on Pleasant Street. The police officers were told to keep a sharp look out for the lad.

People You Have Heard of Before.

William J. Burns, the sleuth who ran down the McNamaras, is one of the best and wittiest after-dinner speakers in America. Representative James Francis Burke, who is now a wealthy lawyer of Pittsburg and the Republican "whip" in the national House, started out in life as a poor boy. His greatest sorrow in childhood was that when his school-fellows amused themselves at recess by floating their shoes on a pond, his footwear was so full of holes that he could not take part in the sport. Thomas C. Noyes, president of the Washington baseball club, cannot think unless he has his feet higher than his head. Habitually he sits on his shoulder blades—which is hard on the set of his coat. John R. McLean, owner of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Inquirer, is a collector of rare tapestries, and thinks nothing of sending an agent from Washington to an old castle in Europe to pick up a dingy piece of work two yards square. One of his representatives not long ago became extremely indignant because he could not buy at any price a mantle-piece in the famous Blarney Castle of Ireland.

President Taft's favorite dish is beefsteak. All this talk about him liking opossum and other fine dishes is nothing but stuff and nonsense. He eats more beefsteak than any man in this country. Major Frederick R. Burnham, the famous scout and explorer, is a small man with a face that looks as mild and harmless as a child's. He now lives a peaceful life on a ranch in California, but it was not so many years ago that he was commissioned to capture or kill the Matabele "god," Umilino, in the mountains of South Africa. He was the first white man who ever entered that cave and he killed the god.—Woman's World for March.

Farewell to Rev. James Bell

The C. M. B. C. presented an address to Rev. James Bell yesterday and bade him farewell. The Lay Chairman, Mr. C. B. Dicks, made the presentation, and the Secretary, Mr. C. E. Whitten, read the following address:—

ADDRESS
To the Rev. James Bell, F.L.G.C.M., Senior Curate Cathedral Parish, From the Cathedral Men's Bible Class:

Dear Mr. Bell,—The undersigned, in common with your many friends in this city, and on behalf of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class, over whose work and meetings you have exercised such loving care and interest since you came amongst us some five years ago, desire to assure you of our sincere and heartfelt regret at your departure from the Colony.

We would wish that no such departure should take place, but that it had pleased Almighty God that you might continue your work and labours in this Diocese. We shall look back with fond and happy memory on the many pleasant occasions on Sunday afternoons, and at other times during the past five years, when we have listened to your words of counsel and encouragement.

The success which has attended the Class during the period you have been with us, and the excellent attendances at the Sunday afternoon sessions, are in a very large measure due to your tireless energy and enthusiastic leadership.

While we feel that each of us is losing a personal friend, and the Church one of our best workers, we also feel that our loss will be a gain to others, for we are sure that wherever your new work will be taken up, it will not be characterized by "marking time."

We ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift as a slight token of our love and esteem, and we pray that yourself and Mrs. Bell may be happy and abundantly prosperous and blessed in your new home.

On behalf of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class, we are,

Yours sincerely,
C. BERTRAM DICKS,
CHAS. E. WHITTEN,
FRED G. REID,
W. H. GOODLAND,
J. M. LAWRENCE,
JOHN A. WHITE,
GEO. SUMMERS.
St. John's, Nfld., April 14th, 1912.

In reply Mr. Bell assured the C. M. B. C. of his hearty thanks and again expressed his regret at leaving. Mr. W. H. Goodland also spoke of the loss which the Parish and the Class would sustain in the resignation of Mr. Bell. The gift which accompanied the address was a purse of gold. We extend to Mr. and Mrs. Bell good wishes for a continuance of success in their new fields of spiritual and social labour.

CURES:
INDIGESTION and
in all its forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headaches. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing." "I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a feeling of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems not worth living."

Why suffer from all these symptoms? when STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION 'A' will cure you.

The Theatre.

At the Casino Theatre on Saturday night the Selman Stock Company reproduced the "Light that Failed," which was witnessed by a large audience. The staging of the piece was well done and all the parts were ably sustained. To-night this talented troupe will be given an opportunity of displaying their histrionic ability in the initial offering of "Out of the Fold."

NOT BADLY HURT.—In the accident which Mr. John Neville sustained when his horse bolted a few days ago, he was not so seriously injured as reported and is around attending to his duties.

No Authority to Sign.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice a note of thanks published in the Twillingate Sun on Saturday, 6th inst, and I presume has been sent to city dailies, purporting to be an expression of thanks from the citizens of Twillingate to the Reid Bros. for the Sanitaria gift. That note was signed by eight or ten individuals only, who would like the outside world to think they were authorized by the citizens so to do on their behalf. Such is not the case, and such actions on the part of a few individuals places this town in a false light, and is widely condemned here, as it would be in any well conducted community.

Magistrate Scott issued a notice calling a meeting of the citizens to pass a vote of thanks to the Reid Bros. Only about 40 attended out of a population of 3,600. Of the 40 present only 29 voted for the motion of thanks, and 15 voted against the motion. So you see those who signed the vote of thanks had no authority from the 15 that voted against the vote of thanks, and certainly no authority from those who did not attend the meeting. They may have authority from the 20 that voted for the motion and not a soul besides. And yet those eight or ten individuals would have outsiders believe that they signed on behalf of the whole citizens of Twillingate. Oh the ways of some men are dark and crooked.

The citizens of Twillingate did not show enough interest in the Sanitaria movement to attend the meeting. The overwhelming majority of our citizens favor the opinion that they will not have very much to be thankful for in the Reid-Morris method of treating consumptives. The desire would seem stronger for the constituencies than for the sick. If not, why build five in Conception Bay and only one in Notre Dame Bay and one in Bonavista Bay?

Thanking you for space,
I am, yours,
CITIZEN.

Twillingate, 1912.

"Be Sober and Watch."

At the monthly meeting of the T. A. & B. Society held yesterday afternoon eight applicants were unanimously elected and their names added to the roll. In the absence of President Ellis 1st Assistant V. P., R. J. Power, presided and conducted his duties to the satisfaction of all present. After the general business was finished, two important matters were tabled, having for their object the betterment of members. As the hour was late discussion was deferred to a special meeting. It is hoped that a full meeting of members will be present, especially all over 40 years continuous membership. The Band Committee's quarterly report met with the hearty support of all. After some brilliant remarks from Mr. Frank Summers on the work of the instructor, Mr. N. J. Murphy, Jr., he also took the occasion to congratulate the members of the "musical corps." Rev. Father Kitchen delivered a most interesting speech. Copies of the rules dealing with the management of the proposed "Savings Bank" were distributed for the information of members by Secretary George Coughlan. The meeting then adjourned.

OBITUARY.

PATRICK BYRNE.

The death occurred yesterday at the Asylum for the Insane of Mr. Patrick Byrne, brother of Mr. Peter Byrne, formerly conductor with the Reid Nfld. Co., but now employed at the station, and brother also of Engineer Joseph Byrne of the Reid Nfld. Co. The deceased was stricken with the illness which proved fatal on Thursday last. The remains were enclosed in a handsome casket, by Undertaker N. J. Murphy yesterday and sent by train to Holyrood for interment. The deceased, who was well known and liked, leaves two brothers and two sisters, one of whom is Mrs. D. Bartlett, of Pleasant Street, to mourn him. The Telegram extends its condolence to the bereaved relatives.

Rambling Notes for 1911

BY I. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER III. A CONTINUANCE OF THE INCIDENTS OF CHAPTER II.

Among the gentlemen members of the party there was one clergyman, and one prospective lawyer. We were, therefore, in good company and with a representative of both Law and Gospel in our midst we should all certainly be very good. Both of these gentlemen were very pleasant and companionable, and while they had been anticipating a feast, and found but a fast, they murmured not; but like the sensible men that they were, they simply made the best of it. And what more could be done? Blaming the leader would not remove the mistake. These gentlemen saw that, and they acted accordingly. But all people do not act as they did. Some of us cannot overlook a mistake; we rather jump at conclusions, and sharply scold the erring and the fallen. There is a big lesson to be learned yet along those lines, and the sooner society, so-called, opens its eyes to this act, the sooner will some of the ills from which humanity suffers be removed.

How many hearts are crushed, how many friends are estranged, how many bitter feelings engendered, yes! how many homes divided, because of some trivial mistake, which by a little patience and cool judgment could have been understood, and therefore overlooked? Very often things are not what they seem at first sight; and what may often appear an error, or a breach, is sometimes the very best thing that could have been done under the circumstances. The man who loses in the race may be equally a hero with the one who wins. The woman who does not just get there may possess qualifications just as competent and as worthy as the woman who does. The outward success is not all. There are battles being fought every day that the outward world knows not of; and there are victories won that are just as decisive in their character as those over which the crowd shouts out its wildest applause.

But we must not moralize too much just here; but all well, we shall do so later on, when we write some notes entitled, "Fifty Years in the Industrial World." For the present we will, therefore, continue our tale, and resume the story of our Bell Island holiday. Having in our company a prospective lawyer brings to mind the idea which some people have of law and lawyers, and as it all happened at Bell Island—though at a later visit—it will be in order right here. I was being driven from the beach to Mr. John B. Martin's store, and the driver wishing to know who and what I was asked me a few indirect questions. Now I have been taken for all sorts of persons in my rambles. Some boys at Caplin Bay had quite an argument on the matter. The first said a "telegrapher repairer"; the next avowed that "he was a miner"; the third, that "I was one of the members." At another place a kindly old lady to whom I had bowed in passing, stopped and very respectfully asked me if I was the new minister for the village. But a new feature was put on my identity when the driver turned and said to me: "Are you a lawyer, sir?" I informed him to the contrary, but at the same time remarking that though I was not a lawyer I had some knowledge of the law. "You have, have you?" he said. "Oh, yes," I continued, "in this age of books and literature it is not a difficult task to gain an insight into the higher branches of study, and to learn a little even of law." How he interpreted law, or the study of law, I really do not know, but he certainly thought that to know anything about law, one should be taken prisoner and placed in "durance vile," for he closed the query by saying "he didn't know anything about law, for he was never in custody in his life." Up to this time I had felt a little bit of self-importance, but now that my friend knew that I was a little acquainted with law, and his idea of gaining such knowledge was through the process of imprisonment, I felt that the edge was broken off my dignity, and instead of being a somebody, or of being over the humblest type as avowed by the lads of Caplin Bay, I was an ex-convict. But it did not lower me in the sight of my friend, for a few hours after I met him at the football match and he recognized me, and very graciously introduced me to his good wife. Whether he had told her of my legal propensities, and of his own idea of obtaining them, I do not know, but whether she viewed me in the light of an ex-convict or otherwise, certain it is, that she was very kindly and equally respectful.

The football match at Bell Island should be seen to be appreciated. The enthusiasm was at white heat, and the players were on their keenest. The field was very suitable, and with about seven hundred spectators the game was heartily enjoyed. But as we witnessed the game it seemed to us that after all, it was St. George's Field that we were on, instead of the Bell Island field, for there before us, with his own infimitable way, and his own alert movements, and his own peculiar popularity, was the referee—whose whistle had been so often and often heard in a hundred games at St. John's—and who was none other than our own beloved Mr. Higgins. And now it occurs to me that Mr. Higgins is a lawyer.
