Gerrymandered Speeches.

Col. Tisdale denies that he sneered at the London mechanics, and the Hamilton Spectator swears that he didn't, and appeals to Hansard for proof. The trouble with the newspaper reports of parliamentary discussions is that a speaker has no opportunity to revise his speeches in them before they go to the public, whereas when he or the reporter makes a blunder he can have it corrected in Hansard before it is printed. This privilege is sometimes very convenient.—[Hamilton Times.

AN INTERESTING WEDDING. we Salvation Army Officers Married in the Barracks-Capt. Miller, of Woodstock, Welcomed.

During the last two days the local corps of the Salvation Army have been holding special meetings, in which they have been assisted by Brigadier Philpot, Major Baugh, Capt. Heilt and Lieut. Keeler. Last even special meetings, in which they have been assisted by Brigadier Philpot, Major Baugh, Capt. Heift and Lieut. Keeler. Last evening the service was of an unusually interesting nature. It had been made public that two well-known army officers were to be married, and the barracks was crowded, although an admission fee of 10 cents was charged each person. The usual hallelujah service was first engaged in, and the soldiers on the platform were most enthusiastic.

Brigadier Philpot, of Toronto, then read the conditions under which two members of the army might be united in the bonds of matrimony. Adjutant Thos. Michael, of Toronto, and Lieut. Clara Busby agreed to the terms, stood up, and before they sat down again were declared man and wife. The ecremony was a very impressive one, and the love the young couple have for each other was evined by the solemn manner in which they took the vows and answered the questions. Lieut. Busby is a young woman of preposeessing and pleasant appearance. For some years she has been a noble worker in the cause of the Salvation Army. During the ecremony she was attired in a plain black dress, and was attended by her sister, Miss Busby, of Oakville. Adjutant Michael was for about a year and a half stationed in this city. He is also a valued member of the Army. Capt. Heift was best man last evening. The young couple received the hearty congratulations and best wishes of their many friends before and after the conclusion of the meeting.

During the evening Capt. Miller, late of Woodstock, was introduced as the new captain of the Londen corps. He is a young man, but has been in the Salvation Army for a number of years. He met with a hearty welcome and reception.

CARON'S CONVENIENT IGNORANCE. The Postmaster-General Knows Nothing

About the Late Premier's Letter to McGreevy.

Ottawa, May 16.—"I never knew of the existence of the letter until I read it in the newspapers," was all that Sir A. Caron would say to the reporter who sought an interview with the Postmaster-General today regarding the letter of the late Sir John Macdonald to Hon, Thos, McGreevy, "You would not care to say anything on the subject for publication?" urged the newspaper man, with a feeling that the matter was a rather delicate one to touch on.

"No, I have nothing to say about it."

—The Wellhouse orchard of Kansas is becoming known the world over. After the trees have come into bearing the ground is sown to clover. This is cut every year when the seed is ripe and allowed to remain on the ground. The trees are low-headed, trained in pyramidal form, with limbs starting out about one foot from the ground. Most of the insect enemies are destroyed by spraying with london purple. Almost five-sixths of all the fruit thus grown can be reached by the pickers while standing on the ground. In the packing-house the apples are carefully assorted by hand. Three and even four grades are made. All unfit for use are left in the field or fed to hogs. The yield on the 225 acres in 1890, was 79,170 bushels.
