A LITTLE CUT KILLED THE

BABE.

Pontiac, March 24.—The little son of Joseph Tynton, aged two and a half years, met with a peculiar death Sunday. He fell over a chair Thursday and cut his tongue, which bled profusely until it was stopped up. Sunday the wound broke out afresh, and, despite all the doctors could do, the little boy died before night. Loss of blood and the shock killed him.

BLEW OUT THE GAS.

Marquette, Mich., March 24.—"Blow out the gas" is the brief explanation of the death of two men at the Bay View Hotel here Saturday night. One of the men was known by the name of Wm.

Hunt, but to a friend he, some time ago, stated that his name was Hargraves. According to his own statements, Hargraves' family were highly respectable and of considerable wealth.

Of his comrade nothing can be ascertained. He was known as "C. P. R." and maintained the strictest silence as to his history.

say Tragedy—Evidence Offered.

Lindsay, Ont., March 24.—A provincial detective arrived here last night to investigate the circumstances of the shooting of James Agnew on Tuesday night last. The inquest was continued last evening and the journers till Wednesday, to permit of additional evidence being offered.

A good deal of time of the jury last night was taken up with arguments between counsel as to whether the Carney boys could be compelled to give evidence or not, and whether certain statements made by the boys after their arrest to the chief of police could be received as evidence. Patrick Carney, who is held as an accessory to the murder, was sworn, but refused to make any statement on the advice of his counsel.

Miss Ellen Marron, a maid at Logie's farm, where John Carney, who is accused of the murder, worked, identified at the inquest the trigger of a revolver which was found by the police at Logie's. John Carney's revolver had the trigger missing.

Constables gave evidence as to the arrest of the two Carney boys and the finding of the murdered man's watch at the Carney house. Plaster paris casts of the foot-prints of the supposed murderer were produced, and John Carney's overshoes, which he is said to have worn on the night of the murder, were also exhibited.

Mrs. Carney, the mother of the boys, testified that her son Pat was home on the night of the murder shortly after 9:30, and did not go out again, and this evidence was corroborated by Alexander Petrie, who testified that he drove Pat in the direction of his home about that hour on Tuesday night.

"City of Churches"

Will be London's Synonym in the Near Future.

If the Citizens Continue to Build New

Churches and Beautify Existing

Ones—Astounding Retrospective List—More to Come.

The last half-dozen years or so has made a wonderful difference in the church architecture of London. The new buildings and additions to old buildings have been remarkable, and even yet the movement for modern churches has not abated. Londoners have seen new churches going up almost every year, and have come to look upon the process as a matter of course. When the two large churches at present being built are finished, London will have the most modern churches in Canada, and will probably have more comparatively new houses of worship than any other city of its size in America. Of course, the causes which necessitated the rebuilding of the two largest Methodist churches in the city were not the most desirable, but good has even come out of fire. The congregations have been moved to unprecedented exercises and their zeal has been quickened under the additional burdens laid upon them. And now as they see the stately piles taking the places of the old buildings, they have come to regard the destruction of the former churches as a sort of blessing in disguise. The work in connection with the First Methodist Church will cost about $60,000, and that of the Dundas Center about $45,000—no inconsiderable amounts for any congregation to raise over a year ago the Anglicans spent $55,000 or more in rebuilding St.

Paul's Cathedral and erecting the present accessible and imposing structure—Bishop Croft's Hall. The old Sunday school building was torn down, and the grounds tastefully rearranged, so that the present buildings and grounds bear no resemblance whatever to those of a few years ago.

The winter just ending also saw the completion of a modest and comfortable Anglican church in East London, which takes the place of the wooden building which for many years had served as a place of worship for the St. Matthew's congregation. It was at one time the chapel and dead house of St. Paul's Cemetery, and will now be turned into a carpenter shop and dwelling.

It is also not so very long ago—the foundation stone was laid on May 24, 1894—since the beautiful building now occupied by the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church was built.

Other city Presbyterian churches have also shown signs of activity in the building line—Knox Church, South London, last year completed a series of alterations and improvements almost equal to an entirely new building. The year before the same building spirit came over the congregation of the King Street Presbyterian Church. Their building was enlarged and the ground built upon to the street front, with the most advantageous results.

In 1893 the old frame church that did</
