OIL IN EUROPE AND ASIA. Darius Probably the First Standard Oil Magnate.

In Athens, writes F. B. Sanborn to the Boston Advertiser, I met a gentleman not long since at the Caspian Sea, near which Russian lake there have been extensive long since at the Caspian Sea, near which Russian lake there have been extensive oil wells of the Czar's subjects, all dug and, to some extent, worked by Americans. He tells me that now the American competition in petroleum is so great that the Russian oil no longer commands a living price, and that the business is greatly depressed in that part of the Russian empire. Mentioning to him the English story that the petroleum of that region had poisoned the waters of the River Volga, so that the fish are all dying, he told me that could hardly be, since the Caspian Sea abounds in excellent fish and yet is covered with oil, so that a person bathing in it, as he did, finds himself anointed with petroleum on coming out. He said that the fine Russian steamers on the Caspian have their engines run with oil from the wells near Baku, which is the Oil City of Asiatic Russia.

Herodotus of Halicarnassus speaks of oil wells in Ancient Persia, near which, at a good distance from Susa, the Persian king settled the colony of conquered Eretrians, from the Island of Eubea, whom he carried off in 490 B. C., just before the battle of Marathon. Ardericca is the name of that oil city, and Herodotus says it produced three things—salt, asphalt and oil—all from the same well—whence they were drawn with a sweep and bucket, as the old-fashioned Yankees still draw water—and as it is drawn in Greece, when the people are ioned Yankees still draw water—and as its drawn in Greece, when the people are ingenious enough to have a well-sweep, and keep it in repair, which is not always the case. The heavier salt and asphalt hardened and separated, while the lighter oil was collected in tubs and pails and tanks. So that Darius, the Great King, was at the head of the first Standard Oil Company of which history makes mention—unless Hebrew or Egyptian chronicles have something more ancient to offer.

HOMESTEAD INTERESTED

In the Progress of the Poisoning Case

—Testimony of the Principal

Witness.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—Interest in Homestead in the poisoning case increases. The principal witness to-day was Patrick Gallagher, the cook upon whose confession the charges of poisoning were made. Gallagher's testimony did not materially differ from his previous story, which implicated the cooks Beatty and Davidson and Hugh Dempsey, master workman of the K. of. L. The witness said Dempsey gave him powders to place in the coffee and tea that was to be given to the non-unionists. Dempsey said the strike of the State Street Car Company of Chicago had been broken in three days by the use of these powders. They would make the men sick, but would not endanger life. Eight or ten other witnesses who worked at the mill during the strike and who were victims of mysterious disease, were examined but nothing new was elicited. At the afternoon session Gallagher was recalled and finished his testimony, which was not shaken on the cross-examination.

J. W. Davidson, Gallagher's alleged accomplice, was called, and gave his testimony, which corroborated Gallagher's.

George W. Crail, the dispatcher of the Pennsylvania line at the power house on Pennsylvania avenue, testified that Dempsey left $75 with him for a man who called and receipted for it and signed the name of Gallagher. Court then adjourned.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

AT COLDSTREAM.

Coldstream, Ont., Jan. 16.— The Farmers' Institute here to-day was a marked success, fully 150 farmers being in attendance. Very able papers were read by Prof. Shuttieworth, D. McCrae (Guelph), and W. T. Carlyle, B.S.A.; also by such local men as Edgar M. Zavitz, B.A., and T. B. Scott. Their papers were ably discussed by the farmers of the township. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the following officers were appointed for the coming year: Alex. Grey, president; Alex. Cameron, vice-president; S. P. Zavitz, secretary-treasurer. P. Stewart and G. T. Johnson were appointed delegates to the Central Institute, Toronto. At the evening session the hall was crowded and many had to do with standing room. AT COLDSTREAM.

The Harriers.

The members of the well-known Ranelagh Harriers' Club of London, Eng., know what is best when one writes like the following, Mr. W. F. Jefferries, member of the Club, says: "I find St. Jacobs Oil the best remedy I have ever used for sprains, atifiness and bruises. It quickly removes pains and swellings, and if rubbed into the muscles, it will be found of great benefit to all athletes. I may also add that several friends of mine have found the Oil a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia."
