UNDESERVED BLAME

The New Westminster British Colonist... The resolution had not been passed and forwarded, because a very powerful hostility on the part of interested parties had manifested at Ottawa...

MR. CHARLTON'S BILL

Mr. Charlton is one of those statesmen that ought to have been born two centuries ago. He really does not belong to this century. His ideas on all matters connected with religion are those of an age when toleration was not preached or even understood.

The publication of newspapers on Sunday is one of the things which Mr. Charlton sets his face against, and he would make it unlawful to have newspapers issued on that day.

Our Westminster contemporary must see that under those circumstances the whole responsibility of the bill rests not with the Legislature, but with the representatives of the railway company themselves.

BRITAIN'S DRINK BILL

The drink bill of Great Britain is something terrible. We read that three million unemployed people in Great Britain and Ireland, very many of whom are miserably poor, earning hardly enough to keep soul and body together...

The quantity of British spirits consumed in 1880 was 37,182,357 gallons, and of foreign spirits 8,582,310 gallons. Our fellow-subjects across the Atlantic maintain the same habits...

But this showing is not so discouraging to the temperance people as it appears to be at first sight. It is evident that the inhabitants of the three kingdoms drank less in 1880 than they did in 1880, because they could not help themselves.

The Rev. Dawson Burns, D.D., Secretary of the United Kingdom Alliance, deprecates the great consumption of strong drink by his fellow-countrymen, and makes some comparisons to show how deplorable is the waste that drinking causes.

It will also be seen that we seem to be progressing all round. The share of the Bank, £20 paid up, are now selling at £40, and consequently will pay present buyers 5 per cent. which is highly satisfactory.

The remedies which the reverend gentleman suggests for this state of things are improved education and advanced legislation. He says: "By education I do not mean the general instruction given in schools and colleges, but that education which imparts a species of conscientiousness to a higher general education."

There is danger that the educators in their zeal to convince those whom they instruct of the danger of intemperate drinking, will make statements which the young observer would find not so strictly in accordance with fact and experience.

It occurs to us that Mr. Charlton is a little inconsistent when he directs his legislative attention against newspaper publishers alone. If it is to be a crime to issue a newspaper on Sunday in the hours of the early morning, it is surely wicked to read a newspaper on Sunday.

A Case for Teetotalism. Gibbons' Teetotalism (Gibbons is guaranteed to be teetotal) is guaranteed to be teetotal. Price, 15 cents.

THE BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

It is announced that the Bank of British Columbia directors have recommended that no more of the bank should be taken in London at 60 Lombard street, on account of the increased business of the bank, and further, we are glad to see that the capital of the bank is to be increased by $300,000.

Such conduct can only be accounted for in one way. The directors of the bank are not so much interested in the welfare of the bank as they are in the welfare of the shareholders.

THE ENGLISH REFORMATION AND THE REV. MR. KINGHAM. To THE EDITOR.—The deposition of the Catholic hierarchy by the civil power, under Henry VIII, his son and younger daughter is so well attested by historians of every class that Protestants and Catholics alike are astonished to find that the same is still being taught in the Roman Catholic faith.
