

“ fishing-ground ; and he related the following anecdote, as he was an eye-witness to the circumstance, which took place last autumn :—

“ In Chedebucto Bay, contiguous to Fox Island, in the eastern part of Nova Scotia, where the Indians have been in the constant habit of fishing, and supplying the white fishermen with their manufactures, peltry, &c. for several years, they have been expelled in the most brutal manner from that fishing ground by the white people, who entered their camps, defiled their women, abused and beat the men, and, in fact, conducted themselves in such a manner as to prevent the possibility of their remaining any longer. My friend assures me, that he has purchased from those Indians, during his visits to that place, more than 300 barrels of mackerel. He described them as strictly honest, sober, and intelligent.”

Since the publication of Mr. Bromley's Appeal, the fishing place which he speaks of is reported to have been restored, by the authority of the government of Nova Scotia.

A female correspondent of Mr. Bromley (p. 35), the lady of a military officer, mentions her endeavours to persuade an Indian to cultivate the soil, and states, that “ his grand objection to settling was, the fact of some Indians having done so, and planted potatoes, when a white man came (with a grant of the land she possessed) and took it from them.” Upon this Mr. Bromley
