

of "What have children to do with Missions?" What can children do for Missions? This question will be answered at a future time.

MEMOIR OF ANNA.

From a book called "A Lamb gathered into the fold," or a "Memoir of little Anna," we abridge the following short account, for the sake of our very young readers:—

Anna was born in Dublin in the year 1830. When she was four months old, her parents sailed for Canada, and took her with them. The voyage was for some time safely made, but when they came near land, the ship struck on a rock and was wrecked. Little Anna, wrapped in a blanket, was taken on deck to await the watery grave which seemed opened to receive all on board. But God had mercy on them, and through his goodness they were all got safely to shore, on the barren coast of Newfoundland. This was a very sad event to Anna's parents, for it caused them great loss, yet God overruled it for good. Some tracts which they had taken with them, and which they left in that dreary island, have been made the means of converting many souls. Anna was very ill after the shipwreck. Her parents thought that God was going to take her, but it pleased him to spare her a little longer.

When she was three years old, they returned home.— She was at that time a very lively child, but even in her most playful moments, she became very quiet and attentive when family worship was engaged in—or holy subjects were conversed on. As soon as she could speak, she began to learn texts of Scripture from cards. A new one was learnt each morning, and the card was then fastened to a string, and hung round her neck during the rest of the day. This she always called her dear necklace, and every Sabbath she repeated all the texts she had committed to memory during the week.