After the programme of music and song followed the lecture on "Ireland's

Hayes, M. H. Quinlan, W. J. Devlin,
Geo. Ball, J. J. Daly, Thos. J. Begley, P. J. Doris, E. Phelan, Peter Simmons and J. Hickey cocupied seats on the platform during Mr.
Devlin's cration. The lecture can be classed as one of the ablest that has been heard in Peterborough for some time.

The concert given by the Guelph Catholic Union, under the auspices of the League of the Cross, in the Opera House was a most unalified success, not only in point of attendance, the advance sale of scats being only exceeded by the sale for the "Yeomen of the Guard," but in the artistic excellence of the programme provided. Mr. E. J. Doyle presided.

LONDON.

The Grand Opera House was crowded from footlights to foper, and from the pit to the gallery, with a jolly, patriotic, Irish Ornadian crowd, with the inherited love for Irish pathos and a distinctive delight in Irish humor. The audience was distinctly Irish, and so was the programme, with the exception, probably, of one number—" "Joyennertayz"—and demure George Angus gave even that Dutch-looking name a burst or two of what sounded suspiciously like Irish music. It commenced with the opening overture by the Musical Society Orchestra, skillfully conducted by Mr. Fred L. Evans. "The Rage in Iroland" (Beyer, was the name of the selection, and it certainly seemed to embrace all the pretty, tuneful airs that could be gathered from one end of Ireland to the other.
