

PARLIAMENTARY.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

JUNE 25.

Mr. A. A. Dorion moved an amendment to the motion for proceeding with the order of the day, that the appointment of Mr. Yarborough to the Presidency of the Council, and his continuing to hold office without seeking a constituency to be against the principles of a responsible government, and a violation of the privileges of the constitution. After much discussion the amendment was put to the vote and lost by 37 to 59.

The report of the Committee on the Quebec and Lake Huron Railway was adopted, but the third reading was postponed.

The estimates came up next. Mr. Brown moving an amendment shutting off all grants into institutions of a sectarian character, which was lost by 28 to 64.

A number of items were agreed to. Upon the item for the erection of Parliament buildings at Quebec, Mr. Holton moved to rescind the original resolution and to vote an address to His Excellency, stating the superior advantages of Montreal for the seat of Government, and that an appropriation for suitable buildings there, be made. It was rejected by 66 to 29 and the main motion to appropriate £50,000 towards the construction of the buildings at Quebec carried by a majority of 4.

THE GRAND TRUNK BILL. MINE 26. Mr. Brooks in the Legislative Council, affirming the right of the council to be consulted on the selection of the future seat of Government came on, and were carried 12 to 9.

The Grand Trunk Aid Bill was carried through the council by 15 to 5.

In the Assembly the third reading of the Quebec and Lake Huron Railway Bill was carried 36 to 25, an amendment that the land should be granted to the railway in alternate blocks ten miles wide was agreed to.

The consideration of the charges against Mr. Brown occupied the House till 12 and was adjourned till next day.

JUNE 27.

In the Legislative Council the Quebec and Lake Huron Railway Bill which gives 4,000,000 acres of the public lands to this project, came up for the second reading. The Hon. Mr. Blaquier strongly opposed it on the grounds that the Province ought to throw its whole energies and resources into the support of the Grand Trunk. The second reading of the Bill was carried by the casting vote of the Speaker, the vote otherwise standing 11 to 11, was agreed to.

In the Assembly Mr. Merritt moved an address to Her Majesty asking that a pension be conferred on Captain Schofield and other surviving officers of the war of 1812, this, however, was after some conversation withdrawn.

Mr. Cayley moved the second reading of the Supply Bill. After some conversation on other subjects, Mr. Merritt moved in amendment to expand the appropriation of £50,000 for public buildings at Quebec, while after much discussion it was lost by two votes. Several members who voted for the supply bill stated that in doing so they did not wish to impede the business of the country, in consequence it passed, 76 to 18.

Mr. Cartier brought down a message from His Excellency recommending the sending of supplies which was agreed to, viz : £2,000 to finish the Brock Monument; £3,000 in aid of the sufferers by the late fire at Pembroke on the Ottawa; and £75 to the widow of Mr. Madden the late mail conductor, who was killed by the explosion at Montreal.

PORTRAITS OF PALMER, THE POISONER. A clever mode of raising the wind was successfully practised on some of the generally wide awake inhabitants of the Northern Counties of England and who might have been supposed to know better. An enterprising individual got a large quantity of portraits of Richard Cobden, the great anti corn law agitator, which had missed their market at the time of the zenith of his popularity, and boldly hawked them round as faithful likenesses of Palmer, the condemned poisoner. They were eagerly bought up, and numerous would-be physicians of course, at once discovered in the calm but intelligent features of the champion of peace, all the indications of a ruthless and cold blooded murderer.

We learn the crops in the Country continue to show the most favorable indications of an abundant and excellent harvest.

ROTATORY STORMS. On Monday evening, the 19th, a meeting of the members of the United States Service Institution was held, when Captain Fishbourne, R. N., read a paper on "Rotatory Storms in the Chinese Seas." After describing the well-known phenomena of trade winds, he explained the well-accepted theory that hurricanes, typhoons, and other such storms move in a circuit, the centre of which advances on a tract generally well known in different latitudes. In each such case, there was a centre or vortex of greater danger, of a diameter in the China Seas of about 250 miles. The influence of the revolving centre extended in widening circles to about 1200 miles. It was most dangerous for any ship to get into the centre, while, by reaching the outer edge of the circles, she might have fine weather, sail round the storm with a fair wind, and actually make her passage quicker than if the cyclone or storm had not occurred, and with no inconvenience. From ignorance of this rotary character of storm, however, a ship would often run into the focus of danger, or else have to wait for the danger to approach her. The indications of the barometer were of great importance—the fall of a quarter of an inch in the mercury was sufficient to warn the seaman of approaching danger. By attention to other phenomena, the veering of the wind and the presence of a swell, he might easily ascertain in what direction the storm was moving, and avoid the dangerous centre and ascertain which
