St. Cyprian's v. Albion.

This C. & M. League game, played at Willowvale on Saturday, resulted in a victory for the home team by 12 runs only. Albions winning the toss, put St. Cyprians in to bat, and the score stood at 86 at the end of the innings, of which Stokes, Gering and Allshire contributed 13, 18 and 27, respectively, by sound batting, the latter especially showing great form. The bowling honors fell to Tunbridge, 4 for 22; Taylor, 4 for 28, and Ellis, 2 for 19. On Albions going to bat, Blackman alone stood against the bowling of Barber and Stokes, making 16 runs out of 38 compiled by the first eight men, but when Tunbridge 14 and Lennox not out for 18, got together, a new aspect was put upon the game, and, assisted by some erratic bowling, which piled up the extras, ran up the total to 78, when a very sharp catch by Holt at point dismissed the former, the innings closing for 86. Hinton's catch of Blackman low down behind the wicket was also meritorious. Score:

PIPEFISH CARRIES YOUNG IN POUCH

Kangaroo Has Not the Monopoly of Convenient Way of Carrying Its Babies.

The kangaroo has always seemed to have the monopoly of that convenient way of carrying its babies in a pouch, but it has been discovered that a fish has the same useful receptacle, which it uses for the same purpose. The pipefish, as it is called from the length of its jaws, has a pocket on the under side of its body nearly half its length. It is found in the male species only and is the only part of its body which is unprotected by large flat plates, which take the place of scales in its protective armor.

If a pipefish is taken from the water and its little ones shaken out of the pouch back into the water they always seem either unable or disinclined to run away. But if the father is placed in the water again, all the small fish immediately swim back into the pouch. These curious little creatures have prehensile tails, which they use to hold on to the seaweed to prevent themselves being carried away by the tide. The pipefish, is similar to be the small eel, being about a foot in length and an inch in thickness But, unlike the eel, it has a very long jaw and the peculiar defensive armor already mentioned.

WEAR SLIPPERS IN THE HOUSE

In England it is the custom not only for grown persons but also for children to wear slippers in the house. English children, as well as English grown-ups, wear shoes, as we in America wear rubbers, only out of doors.

This is not only a more comfortable custom with regard to footwear than ours but it is also more healthful. The streets and sidewalks and even the yards, are dusty. This dust, full of germs as it is, should not be tracked all over the house.

We would do well in the interests of preventive medicine to provide slippers for our children and to insist upon the wearing of them in the house. It is less trouble to change from shoes to slippers even three or four times a day than it is to cure an illness ,the germ of which may have been brought into the nursery on the soles of the children's shoes.

A five-barreled megaphone, with tubes radiating in as many directions, has been invented by a Maine woman to save a person turning around and repeating his words when making an announcement.

Leather pads have been patented to protect the knees of persons who kneel at work.

WILLS THAT PROVIDE DOWERIES FOR GIRLS

Britain Has Many Bequests Which Provide for Maidens About to Marry.

At different times thoughtful people have stipulated in their wills that a certain sum of money shall be set aside to provide dowries for girls. The best known example is the Bute Marriage Dowry, established by a Marquis of Bute, who left $5000 for purpose. The annual interest upon this sum, about $150, is presented each year to a claimant for it. the fortunate girl being chosen by the mayor of Cardiff. When handing the money over to the lucky young lady and her sweetheart, it is customary for the mayor to read the young couple a portion of the second chapter of St. John. which refers to the marriage in Cana of Galilee.

Dowries for girls are also presented at Guildford, the practice of throwing dice for what is called the "maid's money" taking place annually. The money is derived from capital set apart in the will of a certain John How, who requested that dowries should be paid to poor servant girls who had worked faithfully in the borough for some years. John How was presumably an opponent of public houses, for he stipulated that no maid working in licensed premises should be eligible to compete. The gift generally amounts to $60 per annum.

St. Cyrus in Scotland also distributes dowries. but they are rather peculiar ones. Sixty years ago a native of the village died, and decreed in his will that the interest on a certain sum of money should be distributed amongst the oldest, youngest, tallest and shortest ladies to get married in the parish during the year.

The somewhat unenviable task of deciding which ladies can claim the various distinctions is left to the minister. Notwithstanding the smallness of the dowries—they amount to $30 each—there is keen competition amongst all the brides of the year, no reluctance to claim the oldest bride's share being shown. "Bride-measuring day" is looked upon as a public holiday in St. Cyrus.

Another curious ceremony takes place every year in the German town of Hachmann. The founder, a Polish nobleman, hoped to render the plain girl's chance of getting married equal to her pretty sister. He left $2500 to be distributed annually amongst brides of the town, stipulating that plain girls should receive a large portion, whilst pretty girls should get hardly anything.

A French scientist who has been experimenting for 18 years to ascertain the effects of low temperatures on fish and animals has found that common snails can withstand the greatest amount of cold.
