F. W. Thompson, general manager of the Ogilvie Milling Company, expects to leave Winnipeg this month for a two months' trip to Europe.

The commissioner of the Indian department has received some very favorable reports from the agencies regarding crop prospects. From Edmonton, Touchwood Hill and the Hobnab reserves the agents state that threshing returns are showing a very fair yield. As high as 30 bushels to the acre have been taken in on some of the agencies.

In the following figures are shown statistics of the coal trade, which prove how much more coal is being used per capita than formerly: "In spite of the continued effort to increase the efficiency of engines and boilers, the progress of invention is such that coal is becoming each year more and more an important article of commerce, says a writer in the Engineering Magazine. So short a time ago, viewing the history of the world, as 1831, the annual coal production of Great Britain was 24,000,000 tons; for the year 1901 coal production will probably be 240,000,000 tons, an increase of 1,000 per cent. In 1831 the population of Great Britain was 24,000,000, and the next census, 1901, will probably show about 40,000,000 in that country, an increase of 66.23 per cent. In seventy years. Therefore the production of coal has increased from one ton per capita to six tons, and the rate of increase has been fifteen times as great as the rate of increase in population. In 1840 the production of bituminous coal in the United States was between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 tons, and the production of anthracite was 1,000,000 tons—say a total of 2,500,000 tons. At that time the population of the country was 17,000,000, so that there was probably less than one-sixth of a ton used per capita. Compare that with the present tonnage of 220,000,000 and a population of approximately 75,000,000, and it will be seen that America is now using, per capita, eighteen times as much coal as they did sixty years ago. In fact, since 1830, the per capita increase has been 50 per cent.
