*“ The North-west Passage to the Indies!—that Golden Dream,
“ as fatal to the English valour as the Guiana one to Spanish—
“ and yet, hardly, hardly, to be regretted, when we remember the “ seamanship, the science, the chivalry, the heroism unequalled in “ the history of the English nation, which it has called forth “ among those our later Arctic voyagers, who have combined the “ knight-errantry of the middle age with the practical prudence
“ of the modern, and dared for duty more than Cortes or Pizarro
“ dared for gold.”*
