

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Butter—Classification	213-215	Corks for composite samples	145
Camembert cheese	182	Cream gathering vs. whole milk creameries	120, 123
Cap cloths	170	Creasing co-efficient	198
Cement floors for making-room	125, 126, 174	Cream separator	133, 196, 197
Cheddar cheese—origin	151, 152	Cream cheese	180
Cheese and butter markets	112, 223	Culture for ripening milk and cream	190, 191
Cheese:		Curd:
Factories in Canada	151	Agitators	134
Constituents of milk	153	Knives	134, 164
Salt	169	Cutting and cooking	164
Hoops made of steel	170	Rough handling causes loss	164
Presses	171	Membrane	165
Qualities described	178, 179	Heat slowly	165
Cheesemaking pays best	151	Contracted by heat	165
Cheesemaking—main features	152	Fast working may be heated to 110 degrees	165
Cheshire cheese	181	Remove whey to control acid	165
Churning	202-204	Washing	165, 166, 168
Churn—rate of turning	203	Properly cooked	166
Cloeness in cheese	179	Dipping, matting, milling	166-168
Coloring milk for cheesemaking	157	Moisture at dipping	167
Color of cheese	179	Advantage of matting	168
Combined churn and worker	133	Mills	168
Composition of cheese	178	If matured too much before milling causes loss of fat	168
Composition of cream	198	Ready to salt	169
Composite samples	144, 145	Amount of salt	169
Composite samples thickened	145	Ready for hoops	170
Composite samples cooled to 65 degrees before testing	145	Temperature at pressing	171
Condensed milk:		Danish butter pasteurized	185
Composition of	227	Dairymen's associations	111
Factory	226	Dairy schools	112
Desirable qualities in	227	Dressing cheese	171, 172
Co-operative dairying:		Dunlop cheese	181
Advantages	107, 109	Edam cheese	182
Weakness of	110	Extractor	133
Origin of	110, 111	Factor to convert inches of cream into pounds	144
Co-operative dairies:		Fancy and soft cheese can be made in Canada	184
Methods of establishing	113-116
Cost of building and plant	114
Site for	114
Private and joint stock companies	115, 116
Charges for making	118
Co-operation not perfect	108
Cold-storage for cheese	224		