While making scenes in Pasadena, Cal., for "Pollyanna." her photoplay for the United Artists' Corporation, which will be shown at the Grand the last time today, Mary Pickford had the distinction of being the centre of attrac-tion for a school of five hundred pupils. While making rain scenes at South Pasadena recently, the El Centro School, two blocks away, was dismissed so the kiddies could see Little Mary at work.

When the El Molino School, twice as large as the El Centro School, learned that the smaller institution had been granted a half-holiday in order that the pupils might see the little star at work there was quite some commotion. This resulted in the school authorities promising the El Molino School a half-holiday the next time Miss Pickford appeared in Pasadena. Pasadena recently, the El Centro School,

One of the Crown City's beautiful homes was used by Little Mary as a setting for the home of John Pendleton, the hard old bachelor in "Pollyanna," and the school children were furnished many thrills as they watched "America's Sweetheart" doing laughable stunts.

"MERCEDES" AT LOEW'S.

"MERCEDES" AT LOEW'S. 'Mercedes," the macvellous genius of epathy, has made the remarkable telepathy, has made the remarkable statement that very soon the navigator and pilot of an aeroplane will be able to communicate with each other by what he calls "thought-radio." In other words, instead of tapping morse codes on the cowl of the machine, or trying to yell over the roar of the engines through megaphones or radio-telephones, the two important flight officers will be able to propel their brain waves to each other by the science of telepathy.

waves to each other by the science of telepathy.

He maintains that this is the science which he has developed and uses in communicating with his assistant, Mile. Santone, in their bewildering demontration. In the production, which he calls "Miracles of Today," this renowned psychic goes among the audience, ask's anyone to whisper a selection of music, and instantaneously the beautiful Santone, propelled by the brain wave of "Mercedes" announces the name of the melody and plays it. Skepticism in the matter is allayed by the personal tributes to "Mercedes" of such great mentalities as those of President Wilson. Hon. Lyman J. Gage, ident Wilson. Hon. Lyman J. Gage, Charles Schwab and Prof. Hyslop.
"Mercedes," therefore, at Loew's Theatre, promises much that is mystifying, and of keenest interest to the students of advanced telepathy. See him today
