Last evening a Star reporter visited all the committee rooms in the North all the committee rooms in the North ten feet high, surmounting a pedestal, which will be of grey New Brunswick granite thirteen feet in height, including the steps. The intrepid explorer has his right arm extended, pointing with surprise and delight at the great discovery which he has made. The attitude in which he stands, with his head slightly thrown back, gives a very graceful curve to the outline of his figure.

The reporter asked how it was that so many were present when a little farther up the street a public meeting was being held.

The conservatives were jubliant. Apply at 12 Mecklenburg street.
