

NOLAN, DOLAN AND ANOTHER.

(From Black and White). After a day of drenching downpour... an unrelenting plunge of rain which began in the grey of morning and lasted till the grey of sunset...

self Mrs. Hatters, who told pretty much that sort of story. Did she ever give you any clue to her husband's profession?

"No," said Nolan, "not that I remember." He paused and relit his pipe. "We never so much as named her to a soul till now," he went on rather haltingly. "I mean I've never hinted at my infatuation for her. But it's a sort of deathbed confession, I suppose. I've never been much of a believer in presentiments, but I don't think I shall come out of this scrap too well."

"You'll die when your time comes, my lad, like the rest of us," said Nolan. "Mrs. Hatters now. Little brown-eyed woman wasn't she? Brown hair with a tinge of auburn in it. Adeline Mary were her Christian names."

"Oh," said Nolan, "I know her pretty well. I know her husband, I never had any particular liking or respect for the fellow, but that's all rot about his beating her. He was a harum-scarum, worthless sort of a fellow, but womanly feelings were never his line of country."

"Naturally," the other answered. "Have you got any presentiments about tomorrow, Clive?" "Except that I know that we're in most particularly ugly corner," I responded, "and that it's something like a ten to one chance against all of us."

"Well," said Nolan, "I have mine. You two will come out of this scintillating and I shan't. I know it." "Why, my dear Nolan," I began, "you've been in as tight a corner as I've ever had, and you've always come out of it with your hair and your family always dealt in second sight. I'm going to turn in, boys."

"I'm not worth a lot of money," Dolan went on, "but I have something like three hundred a year in the funds, and if I drop tomorrow I'm afraid I shall give my executor a bit of trouble. I'm not quite certain about my own future, but I'm not quite certain about my own future, but I'm not quite certain about my own future..."

SAUSAGE AND BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

The feast of Lucretia. Were only quick lunches. Deliciously dainties. But boarding house steaks. The Waldorf-Astoria's spreads only lunches. Compared with fried sausage and hot buckwheat cakes.

It may be at six. Of a cold winter's morning. It's a breakfasting night. That a fallow dip makes. The true epicure. All his contentment scorning. Will gladly eat sausage and hot buckwheat cakes.

MAN WHO TRIED TO PLEASE. (From the Washington Star). Once on a time there was a man who never made mistakes. And all his contentment scorning. Will gladly eat sausage and hot buckwheat cakes.

WOMAN'S CAPRICE. (Chicago Post). The telephone bell rang loudly. Fredrick Billson was very busy with an important conversation. "Who is it?" he called to the office boy. "It's a lady."

MURDER AT WATERBURY. Death Due to Strike of Organized Labor. A Policeman Killed by Masked Men and Another Man Found in Insensibility. No Clue to Perpetrators of the Deed.

Vertigo or Dizziness

Accompanied by sick, nervous headache, irritability, nervous exhaustion, stomach troubles and sleeplessness is the forerunner of PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY AND INSANITY. No ailments are so horrible to contemplate and none cause such misery as those which end in Mental and Physical Helplessness.

Suddenly the victim of vertigo is thrown to the ground as though struck by a blow, and though not unconscious he is unable to help himself. He may have been warned by confusion of vision and thoughts and by the sight of objects apparently moving around him, by sparks before the eyes or a rising and falling motion like the swell of the ocean; he may have been subject to indigestion, liver disorders, constipation, pain or oppression after meals, nausea, heartburn, belching of wind, nervousness, headache and sleeplessness, but the first stroke of vertigo or dizziness may come on him unexpectedly at his work or on the street.

As the sufferer from vertigo or dizzy spells comes to realize that his trouble is likely to end in paralysis, locomotor ataxia, epilepsy, insanity or some dreadful form of helplessness he becomes morose, irritable, suspicious and melancholy and it is only with patient and persistent treatment that he is restored.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD
