THOUSANDS SPLASH EACH YEAR. BROOKLINE SWIMMING TANK. Success of Natatorium is Regarded as Indicative of What Might Be Done by Many Other Communities.

It is almost 30 years since James Whitcomb Riley sang the delights of "The Old Swimming Hole." A good deal of water has been spilled, rivers, streams, large and small since the Hesperus poet immortalized in verse the experiences of his fellow countrymen. But the rush of industrial activity makes it less and less feasible to use waters in the open for swimming purposes.

The Brookline Natatorium. A description of the Brookline public baths may have its interest at a time when the country is concerned in the subject of indoor swimming tanks. The building is T shaped, brick and fronts on Tappan street. The location at Brookline Mills station, is in the centre of the population of the town. It is close to the new high school and faces the principal playground.

Of late there has been a general awakening in the country to the necessity of making adequate provision for indoor swimming. In the case of Brookline it may be said that the municipality that the town had the first municipal all-the-year-round bathing establishment with indoor swimming tanks in the United States. The initial steps toward securing the public baths were taken at the adjourned annual town meeting held on April 11, 1895, when it was voted to put the matter of improved public bathing facilities into the hands of a committee.

At a later meeting the committee reported in favor of a new $25,000 bathhouse on the site of the old Tappan street, near Brookline Hills station, and this was voted on favorably. Later more money was voted for carrying out the project. In the last annual report of the gymnasium and baths committee of Brookline some interesting figures are presented in regard to the popularity of the swimming pool. There was an attendance of 71,237 at the natatorium. The swimming instruction children is free. There were 8,000 non-residents who swam in the pool during the season by paying a small fee.

J. Leonard Mason is the director of the Brookline municipal gymnasium and baths. There is an exceptionally well equipped staff of instructors. Mr. Mason has had many years of experience as an educational factor. Asked for his opinion in regard to natatoriums as a means of securing the physical and mental development of the young, he said: "It is almost coincidental with one of your questions that I have just received a letter from the Playground and Recreation Association of America, with headquarters in New York, requesting information such as you wish regarding the construction of swimming pools. The principal point of the New York inquiry is in regard to what a town of say 5,000 people, can do in that direction. The question is further as to initial expense, method for obtaining the water and how to renew the supply."

"What I shall say to the New York inquirers I am glad to say now for the benefit of other readers," Mr. Mason continued. "For it is evident to me that all through the country there is a desire to install swimming places. Now, my advice to any municipality would be to first of all secure an expert, one who has had experience along this line, and who understands the changing characteristics of the young people. A natatorium, of course, is for all, but principally we are after the boys and girls. It is to them that the town or city authorities must look for responses to whatever is being done along the welfare development line."

"To return to the subject of constructing a swimming place where before the only recourse has been an outdoor bathing. I would advise that (not too much money be expended on embellishments. If it is a question of building a swimming place, it is better to have a simple, but well equipped hall or building which is secured and utilized until such time as the experiment shows itself of value to the community."
