

BOSTON EVENS UP IN THE SECOND GAME OF SERIES

FOSTER WINS HIS OWN GAME; MORAN'S TEAM RETURNS WITH ONE VICTORY TUCKED AWAY

Second Game of Series as Brilliant as Opener Was Lacking in Real Baseball — Foster and Pres. Wilson Divide Honors of the Day — Boston Boxman at His Best and Hammers in Deciding Tally in Ninth

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—The breaks of the game, those fields favors of fortune that sway the pendulum of fate, smiled upon Boston today, and to-night the red-hosed champions of the American League and the Philadelphia pennant-bearers of the National circuit, were on their way to Boston with the honors of the 1915 world series all at even.

President Wilson and his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt, shared the honors of the second contest with a stoutly built young Boston pitcher known to baseball fame as George Foster. Foster may never go down in history as an Alexander, a Walter Johnson or a Christy Mathewson, but when the story of the second battle of the current series is filed away in the archives of the National pastime it will be found that all he did today was to hold the fighting Phillies to three hits, to strike out eight of their best wielders of the willow, to make as many hits himself as he allowed the entire opposition, including a sizzling smash in the ninth, that sent Gardner across the plate with the winning Boston run. In addition to these few meagre activities in the box, young Foster sped to first base a couple of times and took throws from his fellow fielders that turned two seeming errors into sensational outs.

Foster and President Wilson Divide Honors of the Day

Mr. Foster on the field and Mr. Wilson in the stand were indeed the heroes of the day. Foster won by 2 to 1. The President had a wider margin, for the more than 20,000 baseball enthusiasts crowded in the friendly little Philly park were on their feet for and with Mr. Wilson time and time again. They greeted him with cheers when he came, and forgot the sting of defeat to send him on his way to Washington with shouts that echoed for blocks around. Mrs. Galt was greatly cheered by the episodes of the day, and was smilingly happy over the attention showered upon her.

The President, rooted loyally for the home team. When the signal for "all up" came in the supposedly mystic seventh inning, Mr. Wilson was among the first on his feet. But when the tumult and the shouting died the Philly cause had not been bettered, for Foster in this frame turned back the first three men to face him. In the last half of the ninth, when the Phillies' plight was desperate, a band in the grandstand began to play the Star-Spangled Banner. Mr. Wilson caught the first strains of the national anthem and again was on his feet, followed by the entire crowd. The bleachers in the far left stands heard the music too, and joined the standing throngs with hats in hand. The scene was one of genuine dramatic tension. But it was not written in the book of baseball that the Phillies should win today, so neither the patriotic presence of the President nor the appealing influence of the latest White House romance could help them to a victory.

Real Baseball From Start to Finish

It was real baseball today from the moment that Hooper, the first man up, was passed on four balls, until Tris Speaker, one of the greatest outer gardeners the game has ever known, ended the contest by reaching into the center field bleachers to snatch a bullet-like drive from Paskert's bat and turn a potential home-run into a meteoric out, thereby saving for Mr. Foster his well-earned ball game.

The play was sharp and brilliant through all the innings, as different from the somewhat saffron-hued contest of Friday as world series games should differ from battles on the sand lots. The field was fast and the players of both teams seemed to have found themselves. The nervousness of yesterday had disappeared, and there was not a semblance of the lack of thought that gave an ivory finish to some of the episodes of the first of the series. There was little to choose today between the teams in the field. The only error was charged to Catcher Burns of the Phillies, who dropped a difficult throw from second and thereby allowed Hooper to score in the first.

Manager Moran of the Phillies placed his faith today in Erskine Mayer, the elongated underhand slinger from Atlanta, Georgia, and Mayer pitched a far better game than the detailed score will show. Although he allowed more than three times the number of hits registered of Foster, he was seldom in real difficulty and kept the fence wreckers of the Red Sox crowd batting pop flies most of the way. Speaker was able to make but one hit—his first of the series, and his batting average for the two games stands tonight at .167. Although young Mr. Foster's occupation is supposed to be that of keeping the other fellows from hitting, he promises now to be the batting hero of the series, getting away today with an average of .750 in four times up. When he first faced the puzzling underhand delivery of Mayer the Boston pitcher ignominiously whiffed.

This must have been a decoy, however, for the next time he danced to the plate he landed on a fast one and slammed it high up against the right field fence for the first extra base hit of the series. In the seventh Foster shot a single to centre. Each time he was left, however, Foster evidently got tired of depending on his teammates to help him home, so in the ninth, with Gardner on second and the score a tie, he decided to break up a perfectly pleasant game of ball that seriously threatened to go to extra innings. He slammed a long single to right centre and cantered to second when Paskert made a futile effort to cut off the winning run at the plate. Foster was almost as busy on the paths as he was in the box, and his red-sweatered figure grew intensely familiar about second base, while the white clad Phillies were at defensive work in the field. It was a hard hitting game on both sides, but the Red Sox got the breaks and their drives were safe. The Philly batters hit ball after ball with a smashing force that ordinarily would land them in the base-hit column of the box score. But today the drives went within reach of the fast Boston outfield, and the local players were turned back to their benches.

In the two games to date the Boston players have made eighteen hits for a total of three runs, while the Phillies have accumulated four runs on eight hits. In individual batting the Red Sox lead; Lewis, Gardner and Foster all being tied with three hits apiece. Hooper, Hobby and Barry come next with two each. The best hitting among the Phillies has been done by Bancroft and Luderus, each of whom has two to his credit; one of Luderus being the double which scored Cravath with the only run of the day for the National Leaguers.

The official figures for today's receipts and attendance: Total attendance 20,306; total receipts $52,229; national commission's share $5,202.90; players' share $28,095.66.

STUDENTS NOT TO PLAY FOOTBALL

At a meeting of the Athletic Association of Mount Allison University held last Thursday, the matter of the college team's participation in intercollegiate football came up for discussion. The members of the Association decided in view of the present war, and its crying need for more men, Mount Allison would refrain from entering the intercollegiate series for this season. This decision will be forwarded to the University of New Brunswick and Acadia College.

The football spirit at Mt. Allison has almost entirely given way to the more serious consideration of the fate of the Empire. During this fall, Mt. Allison students will be found training for the "bigger game." The work of Mount Allison's officers training corps will occupy the time and energy which would otherwise have been devoted to team work. A strong feeling of the sense of duty prevails in the minds of the boys, and at present "Tipperary" is more popular than "Roll the Old Football Along." It yet remains to be seen what action the U. N. B. and Acadia will take in the matter, and if these two colleges fall in line with Mount Allison, the Maritime Intercollegiate League will arrange no schedule for this year at least.

Many of the football stars of U. N. B. and Acadia are at present in the Empire forces and their places on the teams will be hard to fill.

AVERAGED 102.6 MILES AN HOUR

New York, Oct. 10.—A new world's record in automobile speeding was attained yesterday when Gil Anderson, at the new Sheepshead Bay speedway driving at the average rate of 102.6 miles an hour, won the 350 mile automobile race for the Astor Cup and $50,000 in prizes. His time was 3 hours, 24 minutes and 42 seconds, making a world's record by ten minutes, 42 minutes, 38-100 seconds.

Terrific speed characterized the race throughout, but although the cheering throngs banked around the speedway amphitheatre saw driver after driver forced out of the race because of engine trouble, there was not one outward incident to mar the contest. Twenty of the speediest automobiles in the world had entered, but before the race was finished more than half the drivers, including many favorites, had been forced out.

The weather was ideal, the crisp October air giving zest both to drivers and spectators. With the cup, Anderson's share in the cash prizes was $20,000. Both Anderson and Tom Rooney, who finished second, beat the former world's record. Rooney's prize was $10,000. After Anderson the finishers were: Tom Rooney, second, 3:25:28, beat the former world's record of 3:35:25:38, average speed of 102.19 miles an hour. Ed O'Donnell, third, 3:39:55, fifteen minutes and thirteen seconds behind Anderson; average speed 95.45 miles an hour.

O'Donnell's push to the front furnished one of the most exciting features of the last fifty miles of the race. As far behind as fifth and seventh place in the first 300 miles he moved into third place during the last ten miles.

Bob Burnham was third at 346 miles or four miles from the finish, when engine trouble forced him to stop.
