ALCOHOL AND EXPOSURE THE CAUSE OF SAMUEL EMERY'S DEATH

Finding of Coroner's Jury Last Night — Recommended Restriction in the Sale of Lemon Extract—No Evidence of External Violence Found by Post Mortem Examination.

"We, the jury empaneled to enquire into the death of Samuel Emery, find:
"That the deceased came to his death on the night of November 23, 1918, on the Mispec Road, about six miles from the city of St. John, by accidentally falling from a wagon into the water while in an intoxicated condition, due to over-indulgence in lemon extract.
"We strongly recommend that the proper authorities restrict the sale of lemon extract."
"J. A. Kennedy, foreman; Charles Donald, P. E. Piewelling, George Reynolds, Fred Cook, J. M. Northrup, Samuel Wood."

Dr. H. L. Abramson.

Dr. H. L. Abramson who performed the post mortem was the first witness.
On examination he had found bruise on the face, and on the nose and chin dried blood, with two small abrasions on the shin. The organs of the body were fairly normal. The liver was full of blood, the spleen showed evidence of infarction. On the stomach came a strong odor of lemon extract, and the lining of the stomach was thick. In the intestine was a small amount of stale liquor, and the membrane of the brain congested.
There was no sign of fracture of the skull or neck, and no evidence of external violence which would cause death. From the conditions presented he would say the probable cause of death was alcohol and exposure.

Sergt. I. P. Edwards.

Sergt. I. P. Edwards, who was the first to discover the body of the deceased, said that on Sunday afternoon between two and half past two he was going out the Mispec Road in an automobile, when he saw the body in the brook. He got out of the car and found the body of a man sitting up in the brook with a robe over his face and shoulders. He removed the robe and found the body was that of Emery, whom he knew by sight. He also saw wheel tracks and a man's hat, and a carriage with a short distance from the body. On reaching the body he had telephoned to the military police, and awaited the coming of the coroner. He sent the phone message from the house of a Mr. Anthony. The body was held in a sitting position by the bough of a tree. The brook was about ten feet away from the road, and had about six or eight inches of water in it. He did not think the body could be thrown from a carriage while the carriage was on the road and land where Emery was found. The rug was over the head and the hands inside it.

Cyril Moore.

Cyril Moore, East St. John, knew Emery. The deceased had called at his home on Saturday evening about half past eight, and stayed about ten minutes. There was a man with him who he understood was Mr. McBride.
Witness could tell that Emery had been drinking. When Emery started to leave the house he had fallen down the stairs and skinned his nose. The blood had been washed off his face by the witness and his brother, and Emery and McBride had gone on towards Emery's home. Mr. McBride might have had a drink or two.
Emery was driving the horse. The two men seemed to be friendly enough.

James Moore.

James Moore, brother of the previous witness, said Emery seemed to be intoxicated when at his brother's home. He did not see the deceased fall down stairs. He did not know McBride. They were in a light driving wagon. He did not see which way they drove.

Samuel J. Thomas.

Samuel J. Thomas, an employee of Grant and Horne, whose home is at Mispec, told of leaving Stephenson's store, Marsh Road, accompanied by two others, at twenty-five minutes to eleven on Saturday night. On the way out they had stopped at Mr.
Bond's and Mr. McAfee's. Near the old Cole place they heard loud talk-

TOOK BRONCHITIS
AFTER THE MEASLES

Measles is a disease that is very hard on children, and it generally leaves the system in such debilitated condition that it is liable to attacks of some other trouble. One of the most common of these is bronchitis, which starts with a short, painful dry cough, a feeling of tightness through the chest and difficulty of breathing, accompanied by a wheezing sound from the lungs.

There is a raising of phlegm from the bronchial tubes which is very often streaked with blood.

Bronchitis although not really dangerous, should never be neglected as some serious lung trouble is most liable to follow if it is.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will loosen the phlegm, soothe and heal the irritated bronchial tubes, and in a short time the bronchitis will disappear.

Mrs. Murdoch McLean, Adanac Apts., Winnipeg, Man., writes—"About two years ago my little girl had bronchitis, took them after having the measles. I tried several cough remedies, and oils of all kinds, but they all failed. At last I got Dr.
Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. After using three bottles she has never had any sign of it since. I can honestly recommend it as being a grand medicine."

The genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ing, and on coming closer found a man in the road standing alongside a team.
He called out to them and asked if they had a hat, as he had lost his.
They had none and advised him to go to Anthony's. The witness did not know the man, who was in civilian clothes. The place where the team was standing was about two or three hundred yards away from where the body was found. The place where the body was found was called Cole's watering hole.

On Sunday he had visited the place where the body was found, and had seen the body before the coroner had arrived. He saw wheel marks in the bed of the brook. The man he talked to Saturday night seemed to be intoxicated. When he saw this man his horse was headed toward the city.
It was not Emery, for he would have recognized the voice if it had been.

E. L. Stevens.

E. L. Stevens, the next witness, was acquainted with Emery and had last seen him alive about three weeks ago.
Last Saturday night he had spent the night at Anthony's. About 11:30 a man had come to the door and asked for a hat, saying that he had lost his hat, and also had lost Sam Emery. He understood the man to say his name was O'Brien. He was driving a dark horse and light rig. He gave him a hat and advised him to drive into the city. The Anthony house was about a quarter of a mile from where the body was found, and Emery's house was about one hundred and fifty yards from the scene of the accident. He understood the brook was called Thomas' Brook. The man also asked where Emery lived.

F. Cyril Hopkins.

F. Cyril Hopkins, deskman at Central Police Station, had gone with the coroner to the scene of the accident.
The body of Emery was in a sitting position in the water. The rug was over the face and shoulders. He saw tracks leading into the brook and found a hat in the middle of the wheel marks. The bushes along the brook were skinned, though they had been brushed by something. In the hat was the initial J.M., and he had gone in search of James McBride.
When he found McBride he had placed him under arrest. McBride had, however, been liberated the next morning, and there was not now any suspicion against him of foul play in the matter. He gave as his opinion that Emery had fallen out of the wagon and had been smothered by the robe.

James McBride.

James McBride, who was with Emery on Saturday night was the next witness. He said Emery had been driving a horse of his for about two weeks, but his own harness and wagon. He had broken one of the straps and witness had said if he would come to his barn he would give him another. Emery had driven to his barn and the horse had been given a feed. While the horse was feeding, Emery had gone out, and when he came back he had two bottles of lemon extract, some of which he drank. After a horse had finished his feed the witness helped Emery to lurch up, and as the horse was a nervous one, and he felt Emery was the worse for what he had drunk, offered to take him to the end of the car line. They had started, and on the way stopped at the home of Mr. Moore. The next thing the horse went off the road, and both were thrown out of the carriage. The witness jumped to his feet and started after the horse, which was going up the road. After a long chase he caught the horse and came back to look for Emery. After driving a little way past where he thought the spill occurred, and not seeing any signs of his companion, the witness turned around and drove out the road again.

Finally he came to the conclusion that Emery had gone into some house for the night, and after getting the hat at Mr. Anthony's house, he had come back to the city. He supposed it was about two o'clock when he got home. Sunday morning he had driven out to bring Emery into the city, as he knew he had no horse. He enquired until he found Emery's house and asked his wife for him. She informed him that Emery had not been home since Saturday. He then told her about the accident on Saturday night, and she remarked: "Sam is in some house with his feet against a fire."

He had taken some of the extract, Emery was a man who could stand very little liquor. He did not remember telling anyone that he had lost Sam Emery.

Coroner Sums Up.

Dr. Kenney, in giving the case to the jury, pointed out that according to the post mortem there was no sign of violence, and that there were signs of alcoholic poisoning. On the body there had been found a bottle of Brayley's lemon extract. Lemon extract contained alcohol and some of it very indifferent alcohol.

The jury then retired, and after about half an hour's deliberations returned the verdict as given above.
