GOOD NIGHT.
Good night, my love; when you reprove,
The surely time to me;
But time with flight with love at night
We lovers never know;
You say depart, while my poor heart
Keeps me to stay;
'Tis I that twist the two what must I do
I find it hard to say:
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
The stars are not too bright;
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!
Good night, my dear; there's no one near,
No human eye can see;
Each night as this were made for me,
And you were made for me;
Then don't reprove, since only love
Can make me so or stay;
Good night, sweetheart; 'tis hard to part;
But love bids us away.
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!
Good night, sweetheart; from this part
It were thus by day;
But love is not so easily met
Some little share of pain;
Then if you, 'tis hard to show
The fate to mortal eyes;
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
I'd think that this were heaven;
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
The stars are not too bright;
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!

Journal des Debats his personal opinions,
which have lately collected with the general sentiment of the Journal.
A lady lecturer has sought advice at the Westminster Police Court, London. She alleged she had been engaged by a series
of lectures on his life travels, etc., at a salary of £5 per week. She delivered lectures and incurred expenses, and wanted to know how she was to be paid
the amount due, £25. The magistrate could not help her further than to say
she might proceed by action at law.
A wonderful merchant has just died in Liverpool, England. His name was Mr.
Edward Garsion. In youth he was a traveller, and he had an accomplished linguist, so that he acted as interpreter at Queen Caroline's trial. He engaged in the Greek revolution, and showed great bravery. Afterwards he kept the draperies of Naples in terror with his exploits, and he was afterwards
settled down as a merchant in Liverpool.
He was, in addition to his other occupations, a member of the Society of Friends, and he was a member of the Anti-Slavery Society. He was a man of great energy and high character.
To show that the Emperor William has long held the sentiment expressed in his late reply to the Pope's letter, it is now
published that, when in Constantinople,
Switzerland, two years ago, he said:
"I have entered on the inheritance of the old emperor, but I will never lead a double life, one for which he is excused,
and another for which he is not. The Emperor spoke here in the council hall
and looking at a fresco painting of a triumphant procession, which represented
or signified as represented as leading Pope Martin's horse."

The terminating sketches, stories, etc., in the December number of this magazine
will be read with interest by all who receive it. It is a number that the reader can peruse with pleasure and profit. The publisher offers the magazine with the chromo "Cosmos" to new subscribers
for $1.00. The chromo represents a view of the Yosemite from a very attractive
standpoint, and is a most beautiful thing. It is published by the
The Aldine. The December number is one of the finest of the year, containing
six full page illustrations, with numerous smaller ones. The magazine is published in the fine style for which the magazine has gained an enviable reputation.
The price of the magazine is $1.00 per copy. The magazine is published by

GOOD NIGHT.
Good night, my love; when you reprove,
The surely time to me;
But time with flight with love at night
We lovers never know;
You say depart, while my poor heart
Keeps me to stay;
'Tis I that twist the two what must I do
I find it hard to say:
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
The stars are not too bright;
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!
Good night, my dear; there's no one near,
No human eye can see;
Each night as this were made for me,
And you were made for me;
Then don't reprove, since only love
Can make me so or stay;
Good night, sweetheart; 'tis hard to part;
But love bids us away.
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!
Good night, sweetheart; from this part
It were thus by day;
But love is not so easily met
Some little share of pain;
Then if you, 'tis hard to show
The fate to mortal eyes;
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
I'd think that this were heaven;
Good night, sweetheart; one little kiss?
The stars are not too bright;
They will not see, no, no, two, three;
Good night, sweetheart, good night!

Journal des Debats his personal opinions,
which have lately collected with the
general sentiment of the Journal.
A lady lecturer has sought advice at the Westminster Police Court, London. She
alleged she had been engaged by a series
of lectures on his life travels, etc., at a salary of £5 per week. She delivered
lectures and incurred expenses, and
wanted to know how she was to be paid
the amount due, £25. The magistrate
could not help her further than to say
she might proceed by action at law.
A wonderful merchant has just died in
Liverpool, England. His name was Mr.
Edward Garsion. In youth he was a traveller, and he had an accomplished linguist, so that he acted as interpreter at Queen Caroline's trial. He engaged in the Greek revolution, and showed great bravery. Afterwards he kept the draperies of Naples in terror with
his exploits, and he was afterwards
settled down as a merchant in Liverpool.
He was, in addition to his other
occupations, a member of the Society of Friends, and he was a member of the Anti-Slavery Society. He was a man of great energy and high character.
To show that the Emperor William has
long held the sentiment expressed in his
late reply to the Pope's letter, it is now
published that, when in Constantinople,
Switzerland, two years ago, he said:
"I have entered on the inheritance of the
old emperor, but I will never lead a
double life, one for which he is excused,
and another for which he is not. The Emperor spoke here in the council hall
and looking at a fresco painting of a triumphant procession, which represented
or signified as represented as leading
Pope Martin's horse."

The terminating sketches, stories, etc., in
the December number of this magazine
will be read with interest by all who receive it. It is a number that the reader
can peruse with pleasure and profit. The
publisher offers the magazine with the
chromo "Cosmos" to new subscribers
for $1.00. The chromo represents a view
of the Yosemite from a very attractive
standpoint, and is a most beautiful
thing. It is published by the
The Aldine. The December number is one of the finest of the year, containing
six full page illustrations, with numerous smaller ones. The magazine is published in the fine style for which the magazine has gained an enviable reputation.
The price of the magazine is $1.00 per copy. The magazine is published by
