Fun.

"What," said a teacher to a pupil, "makes you feel uncom-fortable after you have done wrong?" "My papa's big leather strap," feelingly replied the boy.

Two young ladies of La Crosse were standing by the side of a ditch thirteen feet wide, which they didn't know how to cross, when their escort said "snakes," and they cleared it at a bound.

When a burglar gets hurt in climbing through the scuttle of a Louisville house the charitable inmates take him in, nurse him tenderly, make out the papers carefully, and when he gets well, tuck him away tidlly in the penitentiary.

The Courier-Journal thinks it must be very gratifying to the descendants of Homer, that the recent discoveries of Dr. Schliermann on the site of ancient Troy "go to show that the old man was not the consummate liar that most people suppose him to have been.'

As an illustration of the widespread use of a certain popular title, it is related that a gentleman recently stepped into a salon in Denver, and cried out in a loud, cheery tone, "Hello! come, Professor, take a drink." Six men sitting in the saloon at once arose and came forward, while a bootblack, whose stand was just outside the door, and a passing corn doctor smilingly accepted the invitation, and stepped in.

The following tender missive was picked up in the ladies' sitting-room at a railway depot: "Dear Chas, do you love me as much as you did at a quarter to twelve last night? Say you do, dearest, and it will give me spirit to go down and tackle those cold beans left over from yesterday." The Fonda Democrat is responsible for the above paragraph. Probably by next week Mr. Loadwick will be prepared to give Charles' answer which will undoubtedly run somewhat in this wise: "Dear Susan, I do. Tackle them beans.'

A Detroit man recently forwarded the following letter to the insurance company in which his wife's life was insured: " Dear sir—I take my pen in hand to let you know that I am well, but that my dear wife, insured for $5,000 in your company, is no that my dear wile, insured for $5,000 in your company, is no more. She died to-day. Her policy is No. —. I can truly say that she was a fond wife and a good mother. I have the doctor's certificate, so that there will be no trouble about the policy. She was only sick a short time, but suffered much. Do you give check in advance or must I wait sixty days for the money? Yours, &c."

In Suilivan County, N. Y., there is published the Liberty Register, and of those who enrich its advertising columns is one Register, and of those who enrich its advertising columns is one Dusenberry. His notice thus begins: "It is admitted that we not only love our wives, but also our children, brothers and sisters. They die. We want a suitable coffin or casket for the jewel, and a tender and careful hand to take it up and bear it to its last resting-place. Who will do it for us?" Dusenberry answers this by saying he will, and he further remarks: "A good hears and rescious team of horses in waiting at all times." good hearse and peerless team of horses in waiting, at all times, to receive and deliver a corpse at the railroad-station, or go elsewhere as far as human voice is heard or human track is run."

You have probably noticed, says the Danbury News Man, what You have probably noticed, says the Danbury News man, what a thoughtful woman your wife is. She never forgets anything, and when she goes down cellar after an article, she is sure to bring up something besides that she may need. She calls that "making her head save her heels." Once in a while she may forget something, but that is because she has so much on her mind she can't think of everything at once, and if some people ining she can't think of everything at once, and it some people had as much to think of as she has, there would be nothing done at all. After she says this, it is time you either left or busied yourself with something else. We never knew a man who continued the conversation to appear satisfied afterwards. She exhibits this thoughtfulness in many ways, but more particularly some night when you have just got to bed, and neglected to leave a match near the lamp, then she starts up with the exclamation: I declare, I forgot to set emptyings to-night, and there isn't only bread enough for breakfast." So you get up and skim around for a match, and, after securing a light, accompany her to the kitchen, where you hold the light while she goes through with the operations required in "setting emptyings." And after you have stood around in your bare legs for ten minutes, holding the lamp in one hand and frequently slapping yourself with the other, you go back to bed oppressed by the consciousness that in some way you are responsible for the whole trouble.

A good story is told by a friend of Daniel Drew, which the news of his illness calls up. Remaining one evening late in the office, and having occasion to use the safe, he permitted the cashier to go home, remarking that he would close the safe and fix the go home, remarking that he would close the safe and fix the combination on the word "door." But when the cashier undertook to open the safe in the morning he found the lock refused to yield to the magic "door." He tried and tried again, but without success. Finally, happening to remember that Daniel's early education had been neglected, he attributed his ill-luck to poor orthography. He therefore tried the lock upon "dore." Still no success, and then upon "doar," with no better fortune. Finally, becoming discusted, he proceeded to the St. Nicholas. Finally, becoming disgusted, he proceeded to the St. Nicholas, routed "Dan'l" out of his choicest morning nap, and as he stuck routed "Dan'l" out of his choicest morning nap, and as he stack his nightcap out of the door this colloquy ensued: "Mr. Drew, I can't open the safe on 'dore.' You must have concluded to change word." "Change the word! Nothin' o' the kind, I shut it on door." "Are you sure, sir?" "Sure, sir, you tarnal ape; of course I'm sure! Go back to your work, and don't come foolin' roun' here this time o' the mornin'." "Well, perhaps, Mr. Drew, I don't spell the word right. How did you spell it?" "Spell it! Any fool can spell door. D-o-a-r-e, doare, of course, sir." "If you can't spell door, sir, you're no cashler for me. Pack up your duds and go out of the 'door.'" And shutting the "door" in the cashler's face, Daniel returned to his bed in a passion, and the clerk to his safe. Armed with the open-sesame of sion, and the clerk to his safe. Armed with the open-sesame of "doare," however, the safe flew open without further trouble and when Daniel arrived, mollified by a good breakfast and his morning prayer, he advised his cashier that he might keep his place provided he would improve his time and "go tu speilin' skool in the evenin'."

MERTIFICATE FROM MR. ALFRED KNUCKLE, American House, St. Joseph

MONTREAL, March 7th, 1872.

DEAR SIR.—I was afflicted during the beginning of this winter with a most severe COLD, attended with incessant COUGHING and DIFFICULTY OF BREATHING, which reduced me solow that many persons supposed I could never recover. I tried a great many things, which were given me both by my doctors and friends; but did not receive any benefit from anything until I commenced using your "HOARHOUND AND CHERRY BALSAM," which seemed to give me relief immediately. I continued using it until I was completely cured, and now I belive I am as well as I ever was in my life. I would gladly recommend it to any person suffering from a similar complaint. Almost anybody who knows me can certify to the above. ALFRED KNUCKLE.
