

The Rev. Dr. Henderson and His Critics

"Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles and both are preserved."—Matt. 9: 17.

Honoured leader of a church in this city burdened his soul on the subject of the of those who offered up their lives and their all for the establishment of freedom and righteousness upon the earth. He has come to the perfectly sane, just and humane conclusion that, having made the supreme sacrifice, they are forever safe. Having sealed their beliefs, their ideals with their heart's blood, whatever their respective pasts may have been, they will be found acceptable in the sight of God. All must be well with them on any sea or shore.

One should suppose that this, the belief of the average person, would attract no particular attention, and that, in fact, it would receive the hearty commendation of all thoughtful and tender-hearted men and women. To imagine for a moment that a fine lad of twenty or twenty-one is suddenly parted, not only from the sights and sounds of earth and from those intimately dear to
