Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less female trouble than they think. Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, and a dragging-down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble." Why, then, blame all your trouble to female disease? With healthy kidneys, few women will ever have "female disorders." The kidneys are so closely connected with all the internal organs, that when the kidneys go wrong, everything goes wrong. Much distress would be saved if women would only take

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Miss Nellie Clark, Lambeth, Ont., tells of her cure in the following words:—"I suffered for about two years with kidney trouble. I ached all over, especially in the small of my back; not being able to sleep well, no appetite, menstruation irregular, nervous irritability, and backache. I was in a wretched state of mind. I took Doan's Kidney Pills. The pain in my back gradually left me, my appetite returned, I slept well, and am essentially cured. I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble."
Price 50 cents per box, or $1 for 3 boxes. All dealers, or DOAN KIDNEY PILLS CO., TORONTO, ONT.

Christians Smokers and Smokers.
An Egyptian smoker of hashish is even more helpless slave than the Chinese opium fiend. He knows that in the end he will become a madman, yet he rushes toward the awful goal with unrelenting speed. With the strange exaltation which first comes to the smoker he feels himself floating from cloud to cloud or alighting in the gardens of palaces all his own. Most of the hashish which Egypt consumes comes from Greece. From the husks of the hemp seeds and the tender hops of the hemp plant the Greeks manufacture a greenish powder whose fumes bring the ecstasy its victims desire.

HOW TO GET CONSUMPTION.

Ninety per cent. of the "lungers" contract consumption by allowing power of resistance to fall so low that a favorable condition for the development of the bacilli is provided. In a healthy system consumption can't take root. But where there is weakness and debility, there you find tuberculosis. For developing strength and building up the weak, nothing equals Ferroquine. It makes the blood nutritious and the nerves enduring. The way it converts food into nutriment, the appetite it gives is surprising. Just what the man verging on consumption needs—that's Ferroquine. If tired and weak don't put off. Fifty cents buys a box of fifty tablets at all dealers.

A Curious Legend.

Early in the ruins of which lie close to the river Swale, a short distance from Richmond, in Yorkshire, England, is the home of a curious legend, says Photography. One of the main walls of the building is cracked and crumbling, but has not yet fallen to the ground. Nor do the natives expect it to do so, at least not until it receives the impulse which it is said to await. For a tradition relates that the wall, when it does fall, will bury in its ruins a newly married couple, and as the tale is well known the chance of a honeymoon pair resting beneath its shade is remote.

HAVE YOU HEARTBURN?

It's quite common with people whose digestion is poor. Immediate relief follows the use of Nerviline. Stomach is strengthened, digestion is made perfect, lasting cure results in every case. Use Polson's Nerviline once and you'll never be without it because every type of stomach disorder is conquered by a few doses. One 25c bottle of Nerviline always convinces. Sold everywhere for the past fifty years.

KITTY

By FRANK H. SWEET
Copyright, 1905, by Frank H. Sweet

As they walked she told her companion of new plans. That very day she had secured employment in the blanket factory and would commence work the next morning.

Six months before she had come home a broken wreck—her husband recently killed in a drunken brawl, her own life spoiled, as she thought, by the man against whom she had been warned. But now, with renewed health and resolution, she was about to commence life again, to build up from the wreck. Halstead listened quietly until she finished, then broke out:

"You know there ain't no need for it, Kitty. You know I've been waitin' for you to get strong so I could say the same thing I did before—before you met him. It didn't seem right to persuade you when you first came, you were so weak and tired. But now you're strong again, an' you know your own mind. An', Kitty—his voice trembling in spite of his efforts at self-control—"I've been waitin' a good many years. I've never felt to marry anybody else." Her hand rose impetuously to stop him.

"But you must think to marry somebody else, Halstead," she said earnestly. "You're too good a man to be wasted that way. An' you must stop thinkin' of me, for it can't ever be after—after what's gone by. I ain't much, but I couldn't be so mean as to harm a man like that. Now, Halstead, please—touching his arm as she saw the grim amusement on his face—"Don't make me go on feelin' I've ruined your life. There's Nelly Bocup. She likes you, an'—"

Halstead laughed aloud.
"No use talkin' that way, Kitty," he interrupted. "I want you, an' if I can't have you now I'll wait till I can wait awhile. When it gets too hard I shall grab you up an' run so fast an' far you won't be able to get breath to say 'No.'"

"I'm sorry, Halstead." There were tears in Kitty's eyes, but her voice was firm. "I shan't ever marry any man to hamper him. It won't be no use for you to wait an' ask me again ever."

"WILL YOU MARRY ME, HALSTEAD?"

There was much sickness in the town that fall—a malignant spotted fever, highly contagious—and one by one the poorer portions of the town were put under quarantine. Then one evening Halstead helped what he thought to be a drunken man to his home, and the next day the man came down with the fever and—within an hour was dead. Within an hour after Halstead heard that he was on his way to the woods for what he said was to be a few days' hunting. In reality it was to watch himself.

One morning before people had begun to appear on the streets he staggered to the sidewalk outside the fence of his sister's home, where Kitty boarded.
"Mary! Oh, Mary!" he called. Then when his sister appeared at the door: "Don't come any nearer. You know that empty cabin up by the big rock where we walk sometimes?"
"Yes."

"Well, I want you to send some food and water there soon's you can. I've got the fever. Wait," raising his voice a little bitterly as she withdrew hurriedly into the house. "There ain't a mite of danger this far, nor for you nor the children. I won't go near the cabin till you get the things in, so it'll be safe. I'll stay off in the woods a couple of hours. But please hurry, for I'm beginning to lose sense of things."

"Halstead!" It was a quiet but peremptory voice from an upper window. Halstead raised his eyes and tried to fix his mind on what he saw there.
"Kitty," Kitty," he said dreamily, "that you? Better go in an' shut the window. Maybe the wind's blowin' that way."

"Halstead," the voice said slowly and distinctly, "can you go straight to the cabin by yourself?"
"Course," indignantly, "straight as an arrow. But I'll wait two hours."

"No," peremptorily, "you must go at once, straight. I will see about the food an' everything else. I'll have a doctor there almost as soon as you are. An' I'll have a nurse. I'd make you come in here, but there's your sister an' her children, an' there's children in both the next houses. So maybe it wouldn't be best. Now go, straight, straight to the cabin."

Halstead raised his hand to his forehead undecidedly. But the voice had been clear and incisive, and just now it was easier for him to obey than to think. So he nodded vaguely and staggered up the sidewalk. Kitty watched him anxiously until she realized that in spite of his wavering steps he was heading toward the cabin. Then she hurried downstairs. Mary met her at the foot.

"What do you mean, Kitty?" she began wildly. "You're not going up there to him an' then come back to me an' the children? Most everybody's died of the fever so far."

"That's all right, Mary," answered Kitty soothingly. "I'm not comin' back. You wouldn't have Halstead be without a nurse, would you?"
"But everybody dies most, an' you'll sure take it," remonstrated Mary hysterically.

Halstead did not die, but it was more than three months before he was able to leave his bed and totter across the cabin door to a seat in the doorway. There he sat for a long time gasping for breath and gaining moodily at the distant mountain tops. Kitty came to him there after she had arranged his bed and tidied the room.

"Doesn't it look good, Halstead?" she said.
He did not answer at once, but presently turned to her with a dreary smile.

"I don't know as it does, Kitty," he replied. "You heard the doctor tell me it would likely be six months before I would begin to do any work an' that my eyes an' hearin' wouldn't ever be quite so good again. That's just the same as if I was gettin' to be an old man." He was silent for some minutes, then added: "An' that ain't all, Kitty. I'll take every cent I've got to pay the doctor. You see, before you came I never saved anything. I didn't feel any need. What I got I spent to help Mary an' the children. I've only been puttin' in the few months you was here before I was sick. What is it?" For she was now standing by his side, her hand upon his shoulder, smiling down into his face.

"Will you marry me, Halstead?" He gazed at her stupidly for a moment, then his lips began to quiver.

"Don't, Kitty," was all he said.

"But I mean it, Halstead," earnestly. "I said I would never marry a man to hamper him, but I'm strong an' well now, an' you're weak, an' the doctor says I can get all the work I want to do. I can be makin' money while you're gettin' strong, an' I'm lowerin' her voice a little, 'I believe I've always loved you, Halstead, always. That—that other was only a crazy spell. Why, Halstead?' her voice suddenly catching and then breaking into a sob.

For the tears were streaming down Halstead's face now. But he held out his arms.

Supposing.

An official of one of the departments of luncheon says that while going to his luncheon one afternoon he saw a military funeral passing down Pennsylvania avenue. As the pageant passed the official was standing on the curb, hat in hand, and noting with interest the reversed arms, the flag draped coffin and the riderless horse behind, when some one touched him on the elbow and said:

"I hope you'll excuse me, boss, but would you mind tellin' me whether the dead soldier was anything to you?"

"Why, no," answered the official, smiling in spite of himself as he turned and beheld a solemn looking old dandy of perhaps sixty years of age.

"Excuse me again, boss," continued the negro, "but you kinder looked that sorry I thought maybe he was something to you."

"He was a brave soldier," answered the official.

The dandy said nothing for a moment. Finally, with a sigh, he added:

"Wouldn't it be grand, boss, mournin' for a man like that 'sposin' he was something to you?"—Harper's Weekly.

The Friendly Onion.

The onion, whether young or old, is a friend to mankind. It is good for a whole list of ailments. Now, that very fact ought to suggest that it contains something stronger than water. That something is a volatile oil. It is called an oil because of its chemical composition, but no one seeing the stuff in a bottle would judge it to be an oil. It is said to be "volatile" not because of any innate wickedness, but because when exposed to the air it passes away in a state of vapor. If we eat it with bread or something similar, all is serene. If we think that it is impossible to have too much of a good thing and that we ought not to adulterate it and so eat of the onion more liberally than wisely, we may get a starter in the shape of indigestion. In fact, the oil of the onion will greatly irritate the stomach, and it may set up a mild inflammation.

Curious Bird Ways.

How birds know when to go and which way to turn are things not yet well understood because the flights are at night and the great movements start a long time before it is really necessary for the birds to go. They leave their winter homes (perhaps in Mexico) when there is no perceptible change in the weather and return from their breeding grounds in most cases while their food supply is at its very height—long before it is cold or the grass and weed seeds and insects begin to get scarce. In many cases, too, the young birds of the year, who have never left their homes before, lead the long procession in the great southward flight and are followed later by their parents.—St. Louis.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

THE WATCHWORD OF WOMEN.

Modesty is woman's watchword. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to true modesty. Any sick woman may write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as "a God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

Each woman is sure she deserves the very best sort of a husband and no trouble.
