

THE RESULT IN IRELAND.

Armagh.

ALEX. BLANE, SOUTH ARMAUGH—ELECTED NOV. 27 WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Speaking at a public meeting in Armagh immediately after the Convention on Nov. 13, Mr. T. M. Healy said, "The best test of Mr. Blane's fitness and capacity is that those amongst whom he lived and worked, priests and laymen, recommended him to the Convention, and on their recommendation he has been selected without a dissentient voice."

Carlow.

EDMUND DWYER GRAY, CARLOW COUNTY. Election, Dec. 3, Carlow County, E. D. Gray, Nationalist, 4,501 votes; Sir T. Butler, Loyalist, 751 votes. Mr. Gray has been also elected for the St. Stephen's Green Division of Dublin City.

Mr. Gray had the honor of being sent to jail and fined £500 by the infamous Judge Lawson in 1882. His offence was exposing and denouncing the revolting conduct of the Orange jury that "tried" and sent to the gallows Francis Hynes, a man known to be innocent of the crime charged against him. During the night before delivering their "verdict" the jury carried themselves in drinking and carousing in a hotel in Dublin. For calling public attention in his paper, the Freeman, to this shameful outrage on justice and decency Mr. Gray was fined and imprisoned on the charge of "Contempt of court."

Cavan.

THOMAS O'HANLON, WEST CAVAN, ELECTED NOV. 30, WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

"During the past six years Mr. O'Hanlon has fought the battle of the Irish cause in the far North—in the Orange North—and knowing this fact I believe Mr. O'Hanlon will make a trustworthy representative."—Chairman Cavan Convention, Nov. 19.

Mr. O'Hanlon is a well-known resident in the City of Derry.

JOSEPH GILLIS BIGGAR, EAST CAVAN. Election, Dec. 3, Cavan County, East Division, J. G. Biggar, Nationalist, elected by a majority of 4,626 over Sanderson, Loyalist.

The name of honest Joe Biggar is a household word both in Ireland and out of it. wherever Irish people are to be found. It was Mr. Biggar who first began to give the British House of Commons serious trouble about Ireland. Before his time the Irish representation in the London Parliament was a mockery and a fraud. Irishmen and their "questions" were treated with utter contempt by the British bullies. Mr. Biggar saw that the old quiet system would never gain anything, so he conceived the idea of obstructing John Bull's business. In this policy he was soon after joined by Mr. Parnell, and subsequently by all the honest Irish members. Mr. Biggar is a native of Belfast and a convert to the Catholic Church.

Clare.

JOSEPH R. COX, EAST CLARE. Election, Nov. 28, Clare, Eastern Division, J. R. Cox, Nationalist, 6,224 votes; L. O'Brien, Loyalist, 289 votes.

Joe Cox is a native of Roscommon County. When Davitt and others were arrested in 1879 for speeches delivered in Galway, County Sligo, it was Joe Cox who proposed that the accused should repeat outside the Court house in Carrick on Shannon, where they were to be tried, the speeches for which they had been apprehended. There was a monster demonstration. The speeches were repeated, and when shortly afterwards the prisoners appeared in the dock the Attorney-General announced that "the prosecutions had been abandoned."

Jeremiah Jordan, WEST CLARE.

Election, Dec. 1, Clare, West Division, J. Jordan, Nationalist, 7,851 votes; R. W. C. Reeves, Loyalist, 286 votes.

Jeremiah Jordan is an Enniskillen Protestant, who, as Mr. Healy said at the Clare Convention, "has worked faithfully and bravely to promote the interests of Ireland in the County of Kerrymanagh." Mr. Jordan's certificate of nobility as an Irish patriot is to be found in the fact that he was one of Forster's imprisoned Suspects. Clare County—two members.

Cork.

CHAS. S. PARNELL AND MAURICE HEALY, CORK CITY. Election, Nov. 27, Cork City, C. S. Parnell, Nationalist, 6,356 votes; M. Healy, Nationalist, 1,481 votes; Capt. Bainbridge, Loyalist, 1,401 votes.

Mr. Gladstone in a speech in Elinburg on Nov. 25 remarked that "Mr. Parnell is generally one of the most astute speakers in the present or perhaps any Parliament." Mr. Parnell's skill as a Parliamentary tactician is universally recognized, even by the hostile British press.

A recent biographical sketch of Mr. Maurice Healy, who is brother of Tim Healy, has the following:—

"As a student he was noted for his legal knowledge, so much so that the late A. M. Sullivan, who appreciated him warmly, used humorously to inquire 'When will Mr. Blank (the able solicitor to whom Maurice Healy was indebted) be out of his time to Maurice Healy?'"

J. C. FLYNN, NORTH CORK.

Election, Dec. 8, Cork County, North Division, J. C. Flynn, Nationalist, 4,972 votes; Walsh, Loyalist, 102 votes.

Mr. Flynn is a London-born Irishman, just 33 years old. He is a very clear-headed and able debater, and since 1880 has distinguished himself as an energetic and pertinacious Nationalist.

DR. J. C. KENNY, SOUTH CORK.

Election, Dec. 9, Cork County, South Division, J. C. Kenny, Nationalist, 4,820 votes; O'Connor, Loyalist, 195 votes.

Dr. Kenny, of Dublin, was one of the good and true men who braved the terrors of Dublin Castle during Forster's reign of blood. As medical attendant of Messrs. Parnell, Dillon and others of the leaders, he visited those gentlemen in their prison cells in Kilmainham, and Forster "suspecting" that the Dr. was carrying communications from the Leaguers in jail to their friends outside put the Dr. himself in jail.

WILLIAM J. LANE, EAST CORK.

Election, Dec. 2, Cork County, East Division, W. J. Lane, Nationalist, 4,314 votes; Mr. Stuart, Loyalist, 266 votes.

William John Lane, of Cork, commenced business life in the Provincial Bank in

Dungarvan, and his knowledge of accounts

watcher over the financial transactions of the Cork Corporation. His evidence before a select committee, on the subject of Irish dairy farming, has gained for him a great reputation as a sound thinker as well as a practical Nationalist.

J. GILHOOLY, WEST CORK.

Election, Dec. 9, Cork County, West Division, J. Gilhooly, Nationalist, 3,920 votes; Payne, Loyalist, 373 votes.

Mr. Gilhooly is a merchant of Bantry and a thorough Irish Nationalist.

R. LEAMY, NORTH-EAST CORK—ELECTED UNOPPOSED.

"All Ireland," said Mr. O'Brien at the Cork Convention, "will be proud of your selection of Mr. Leamy, one of the most eloquent of the party."

J. HOOPER, SOUTH EAST CORK.

Election, Dec. 2, Cork County, South-east Division, J. Hooper, Nationalist, 4,620 votes; Mr. Warren, Loyalist, 661 votes.

John Hooper was for some time on the staff of the Freeman's Journal. As a press-man he has few superiors in sagacity and executive ability.

CHARLES TANNER, M. D., MID CORK.

Election, Dec. 2, Cork County, Middle Division, C. Tanner, Nationalist, 5,033 votes; A. Patton, Loyalist, 106 votes.

Boycotted by the Cork Tories because of his protest against the humbug of royal visits, Dr. Tanner has been warmly taken up by the people whose cause he espoused, and he bids fair to become one of the greatest favorites in the whole Parliamentary party.

Derry.

TIMOTHY M. HEALY—SOUTH DERRY. Election, Dec. 4, Derry County, South Division, T. M. Healy, Nationalist, 3,723 votes; Col. McCalmont, Tory Loyalist, 2,343 votes; W. Findlater, Liberal Loyalist, 1,816 votes.

During the debates on the Land Act in the House of Commons a member of the Government said that there were only two men in the House who thoroughly understood all the details of the Bill, and the two men were Mr. Gladstone and Mr. T. M. Healy.

Donegal.

J. E. O'DOHERTY, NORTH DONEGAL. Election, Dec. 1, Donegal, North Division, J. E. O'Doherty, Nationalist, 4,597 votes; Col. Stewart, Loyalist, 952 votes.

Mr. Thomas Sexton, speaking at a public meeting after the Donegal Convention, said of Mr. O'Doherty:—"James E. O'Doherty is a man who has been a tower of strength to the National cause in Ulster, and I regard him as the ablest Catholic layman in Ulster."

BERNARD KELLY, SOUTH DONEGAL.

Election, Dec. 8, Donegal County, South Division, B. Kelly, Nationalist, 5,055 votes; Mr. Foster, Loyalist, 1,369 votes.

"Mr. Kelly is one of the brilliant young men who have been rising into public life in Ireland within the last few years."—Thos. Sexton at Donegal Convention.

ARTHUR O'CONNOR, EAST DONEGAL.

Election, Dec. 4, Donegal County, East Division, A. O'Connor, Nationalist, 4,089 votes; T. Lea, Loyalist, 2,992 votes.

"Arthur O'Connor is a man whom Mr. Parnell with that wonderful instinct of his singled out many a day ago as one of the men that would make the Irish party a terror in the House of Commons."—W. O'Brien at Queen's County Convention.

P. O'HEA, WEST DONEGAL—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Chas. O'Neill, of Coatbridge, Scotland, was selected at the Convention for the West Division of Donegal, but by his own desire his name was withdrawn. Patrick O'Hea is a Cork solicitor.

Down.

J. F. SMALL—SOUTH DOWN. Election, Dec. 8, Down County, South Division, J. F. Small, Nationalist, 4,995 votes; W. H. Kibsey, Loyalist, 3,743 votes.

In the last Parliament Mr. Small was one of the Nationalist representatives for Wexford County. This time he is selected for his native County of Down.

J. H. MCCARTHY, NEWRY, COUNTY DOWN—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

(NEWRY BOROUGH).

Justin Huntly McCarthy was the first Nationalist elected at the late elections. He has the honor of being the first Nationalist ever elected for Newry, which in the past has always been an Orange stronghold in the matter at least of Parliamentary elections. This time the Loyalists had not the courage even to nominate a man for the borough. Mr. McCarthy is a son of Justin McCarthy, the member for South Londonderry.

Dublin.

T. D. SULLIVAN, COLLEGE GREEN, DUBLIN CITY. Election, Nov. 30, Dublin City, College Green Division, T. D. Sullivan, Nationalist, 6,548 votes; D. Sherlock, Loyalist, 1,518 votes.

T. D. Sullivan is one of Ireland's national poets. Speaking of him at the Westminster Convention Thomas Sexton said:—"It is sixteen years since I came as a boy to the city of Dublin and entered the office of Mr. Sullivan (the Nation office), and I sat in front of him from day to day and from year to year, from the year 1869 till the date of my election for Sligo (in 1880). I know Mr. Sullivan's mind and heart as well as he knows them himself, and I say that never was there a man of the Irish race whose heart more truly burned with an inextinguishable love of his people and whose mind and intellect were more honestly devoted to the elevation of his race."

EDMUND DWYER GRAY, ST. STEPHEN'S DIVISION, DUBLIN CITY.

Elected, Nov. 30, Dublin City, St. Stephen's Division, E. D. Gray, Nationalist, 5,277 votes; Sir E. C. Guinness, Loyalist, 3,334 votes. (See Carlow for which Mr. Gray has been also elected.)

T. HARRINGTON, HARBOR DIVISION, DUBLIN CITY.

Election, Nov. 30, Dublin City, Harbor Division, T. Harrington, Nationalist, 6,616 votes; Sir R. Blennerhassett, Loyalist, 1,652 votes.

Mr. Harrington was sent to jail by Buckshot Forster for admonishing the farmers of Westmeath that if they did not give justice to the laborers the country might not do any more for them (the farmers).

WM. M. MURPHY, ST. PATRICK'S DIVISION, DUBLIN CITY.

Election, Nov. 30, Dublin City, St. Patrick's Division, W. Murphy, Nationalist, 5,330 votes; M. Dockrell, Loyalist, 1,162 votes.

"Wm. M. Murphy is well known to have always sympathized with and frequently promoted National objects. He is a man of great ability, and his services in connection with the interests of the city will be invaluable."—Dublin Freeman.

J. J. CLANCY, NORTH DUBLIN COUNTY.

Election, Dec. 2, Dublin County, North Division, J. J. Clancy, Nationalist, 7,560 votes; R. Calbeck, Loyalist, 1,425 votes.

Mr. Parnell, speaking at the Dublin Convention, eulogized Mr. Clancy as follows:—"I have known Mr. Clancy for many years. He has shown by his distinguished ability and his capacity for hard work that he is well fitted for the onerous position of Member of the Irish Parliamentary party."

SIR THOS. H. G. EDMONDE, SOUTH DUBLIN COUNTY.

Election, Nov. 28, Dublin County, South Division, Sir T. H. G. Edmonde, Nationalist, 5,114 votes; Lon. Trant Hamilton, Loyalist, 3,735 votes.

In his speech after the Dublin Convention Sir Thomas Henry Gratton Edmonde uttered the following pronouncement on Irish Landlordism:—"My belief is that the days of Landlordism in Ireland are at an end. There will never be peace or prosperity in this country until the very last landlord has disappeared."

Fermanagh.

W. H. K. REDMOND, NORTH FERMANAGH. Election, Dec. 1, Fermanagh County, North Division, W. H. K. Redmond, Nationalist, 3,255 votes; J. C. Bloomfield, Loyalist, 2,822 votes.

Willie Redmond had the honor of beating O'Connor Don, the Dublin Castle Privy Councillor, at the Wexford election a few years ago. Redmond was in Australia at the time, while O'Connor Don was in Wexford canvassing the voters, yet the Castle man was beaten by the patriot at the other side of the globe.

H. CAMPBELL, SOUTH FERMANAGH.

Election, Dec. 4, Fermanagh County, South Division, H. Campbell, Nationalist, 3,574 votes; F. Brooke, Loyalist, 2,181 votes.

At the time of the dynamite explosions strict rules were made to keep all "strangers" out of the lobbies of the House of Commons. The speaker refused to admit Mr. Campbell, who was Mr. Parnell's secretary, though of course the secretaries of British party leaders were freely admitted.

Galway.

T. P. O'CONNOR, GALWAY CITY. Election, Nov. 26, Galway City, T. P. O'Connor, Nationalist, 1,355 votes; T. P. G. Hallett, Loyalist, 164 votes.

Mr. O'Connor has also been elected for one of the divisions of Liverpool.

Thomas Power O'Connor is one of the ablest journalists and literary men in London. He is a native of Galway.

COLONEL NOLAN, NORTH GALWAY CO., ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Of Colonel Nolan Mr. Thos. Sexton gives the following character:—"Colonel Nolan suffered professional injury and social prejudice because of his manly adherence to the substance of the Irish cause through those who esteemed boy-cotting a heavenly weapon when it could be used by themselves, but who indignantly denounced it as an agent of the devil when it happened to help the Irish people."

DAVID SHEEHY, SOUTH GALWAY.

Election, Galway County, South Division, D. Sheehy elected without opposition.

David Sheehy is a brother of Father Sheehy, whose name was often and favorably heard of in Land League days.

M. HARRIS, EAST GALWAY.

Election, Dec. 7, Galway County, East Division, M. Harris, Nationalist, 4,865 votes; R. A. Nugent, Loyalist, 353 votes.

Long before the National League or the Land League was heard of in Irish politics Matthew Harris was one of those few brave and devoted Irishmen who by means of the Ballinasloe Tenants' Defence Association prepared the mind of Connaught to receive the seed of the Land League.

P. J. FOLEY, WEST GALWAY—ELECTED UNOPPOSED.

In all London there is not a more popular Irishman than P. J. Foley. Thousands of patriotic Irishmen in London look up to him as a proven champion of the old country from which they were driven by force of oppression and misgovernment.

Kerry.

JOHN STACK, NORTH KERRY—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

"Mr. Harrington and Mr. Stack are two local men, who have been the life and soul of the National movement in Kerry, and they have well earned the honor which their native county has conferred upon them."—Dublin Freeman.

JOHN O'CONNOR, SOUTH KERRY.

Election, Dec. 4, Kerry, South Division, J. O'Connor, 2,742 votes; D. O'Connell, Loyalist, 133 votes.

"There will be no honest man in the ranks of the Irish party than Lord Mayor O'Connor."—Freeman.

J. D. SHEEHAN, EAST KERRY.

Election, Dec. 2, Kerry Co., East Division, J. D. Sheehan, Nationalist, 3,169 votes; Robertson, Loyalist, 30 votes.

Mr. Sheehan, who has been elected for East Kerry, is a sterling Irish Nationalist.

ED. HARRINGTON, WEST KERRY.

Election, Dec. 2, Kerry, West Division, E. Harrington, Nationalist, 2,607 votes; W. Rowan, Loyalist, 262 votes.

"Mr. Harrington was the victim of one of the foulest and most malignant prosecutions that disgraced the administration of Earl Spencer."—Freeman.

Kildare.

JAMES L. CAREW, NORTH KILDARE. Election, Nov. 29, Kildare, North Division, J. L. Carew, Nationalist, 3,168 votes; Baron De Robeck, Loyalist, 498 votes.

The chosen of the late Laurence Carew, of Kildangan, County Meath, and was born on the 23rd of April, 1853.

J. LEAHY, SOUTH KILDARE—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

At the Kildare Convention Mr. Radmond, M. P., said that, "The Irish Parliamentary party and the Irish people would welcome the decision of Kildare in the case of Mr. Leahy because they would recognize in it a reward for good and faithful service."

Kilkenny.

J. F. SMITHWICK, KILKENNY CITY—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Mr. Smithwick, in a speech in Kilkenny on the day of his election, said: "The next time I have the honor of seeking for your support I hope it will be to return me to the old house in College Green."

R. P. M. MARUM, NORTH KILKENNY.

Election, Dec. 4, Kilkenny County, North Division, R. P. M. Marum, Nationalist, 4,071 votes; C. B. Bellow, Loyalist, 174 votes.

"A man who has cast his life in the service of the people."—T. Harrington at Kilkenny Convention.

P. A. CHANCE, SOUTH KILKENNY.

Election, Dec. 4, Kilkenny County, South Division, P. A. Chance, Nationalist, 4,088 votes; R. de la Poer, Loyalist, 222 votes.

"Of the new men who will go into the House of Commons there is not one who will make a better representative than Mr. Chance—the destroyer of French, Cornwall, and Bolton."—Kilkenny Convention.

KING'S.

JOSEPH R. FOX, M. P., TULLAMORE, KING'S COUNTY.

Election, Dec. 4, King's County, Tullamore Division, J. R. Fox, Nationalist, 3,700 votes; W. H. Walsh, Loyalist, 323 votes.

Mr. Fox is well known in New York in connection with the American National League, of which he has been an active member.

B. C. MOLLOY, BIRK, KING'S COUNTY.

Election, Dec. 1, King's County, Birk Division, B. C. Molloy, Nationalist, 3,408 votes; Capt. Bernard, Loyalist, 760 votes.

Mr. Thomas Sexton says of Mr. Molloy that he is "one of the men who have been getting better and sounder, more industrious and active every year since they went into the House of Commons."

LEITRIM.

MICHAEL CONWAY, NORTH LEITRIM. Election, Dec. 8, Leitrim, North Division, M. Conway, 5,465 votes; Col. Tottenham, Loyalist, 541 votes.

Michael Conway is a son of a Sligo man. He should have a perfect knowledge of Parliamentary Rules, for he was for many years sub-editor of the Irish party in the Liverpool Parliamentary Debating Society.

L. P. HAYDEN, SOUTH LEITRIM.

Election, Dec. 8, Leitrim County, South Division, L. P. Hayden, Nationalist, 4,775 votes; J. O. Lawder, Loyalist, 286 votes.

Mr. Hayden was one of Forster's Suspects. He is editor of a Roscommon National paper.

Limerick.

H. J. GILL, LIMERICK CITY. Election, Nov. 27, Limerick City, H. J. Gill, Nationalist, 2,064 votes; J. Spaight, Loyalist, 440 votes.

At the general election in 1880 Mr. H. J. Gill proved his patriotism by paying the entire expenses of the election of two Nationalists for the County of Westmeath.

J. FINUCANE, EAST LIMERICK—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Mr. Finucane was proposed at the Limerick Convention by Father O'Kelly and seconded by E. Davoren, ex-Suspect.

W. ABRAHAM, WEST LIMERICK—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Speaking at the Limerick Convention Father Sheehy said:—"I am proud that I, as a Catholic priest, am the proposer of Mr. Abraham, a Protestant, to represent the most Catholic constituency in all Ireland."

Longford.

JUSTIN MCCARTHY, NORTH LONGFORD. Election, Dec. 2, Longford County, North Division, J. McCarthy, Nationalist, 2,592 votes; J. Wilson, Loyalist, 163 votes.

Mr. T. M. Healy says of Mr. McCarthy:—"The Irish party know Mr. McCarthy as a man of enormous literary gifts, as a man whose voice in any assembly would carry with it and represent the educated feeling, the cultured mind and the unswerving determination of an honest Nationalist."

J. CONNOLLY, SOUTH LONGFORD.

Election, Dec. 4, Longford County, South Division, J. Connolly, Nationalist, 3,046 votes; T. Wilson, Loyalist, 321 votes.

Thos. Quinn was selected at the Convention to stand for this division, but he subsequently retired and Mr. Connolly also a good Nationalist, was substituted.

Louth.

J. NOLAN, NORTH LOUTH. Election, Dec. 2, Louth, North Division, J. Nolan, Nationalist, 2,580 votes; P. Callan, Independent, 1,451 votes.

Mr. Parnell describes Mr. Nolan as an honest Nationalist whom he regards as a valuable colleague.

T. P. GILL, SOUTH LOUTH—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Mr. T. P. Gill is a member of the staff of United Ireland.

Mayo.

D. CRILLY, NORTH MAYO—ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Daniel Crilly spent nearly all his life in Liverpool. He was the constant and able associate of John Denvir in organizing the National element. His brilliant writing in the Lancet and his power of enthusiasm and focussing the Irish forces gave him great prominence. T. D. Sullivan was so pleased with his writing and with an impromptu speech made at a big meeting in Liverpool by Mr. Crilly, that he secured his services for the Nation.

J. F. X. O'BRIEN, SOUTH MAYO.

Election, Dec. 7, Mayo County, South Division, J. F. X. O'Brien, Nationalist, 4,900 votes; G. O. Malley, Loyalist, 75 votes.

Mr. O'Brien was proposed at the Mayo Convention by the famous Irish scholar, Canon Ulick Burke.
