DIVIDING UP AFRICA.

Arrangement Between Britain, France and Germany.

A despatch from Berlin says:—The Belgian Minister to Germany, Baron Greindl, states that diplomatic negotiations are on foot between the Congo Free State and Great Britain, on the one hand, and Germany and France, on the other, looking to the obtaining of the acquiescence of France and Germany in the treaty of May 12, 1894, between Great Britain and the Congo Free State. By the terms of that treaty Great Britain was to lease to the Congo Free State a territory including the Province of Bahr-el-Ghazal for the term of the reign of King Leopold, and a lease of a goodly portion of the territory was to be continued to his Majesty's successors. Great Britain was to receive from the Congo Free State a lease of a strip of territory which substituted Great Britain for the Free State as Germany's neighbour on the western boundary of German East Africa. In deference to Germany's objection Great Britain withdrew the article of the treaty whereby it was provided that territory should be leased to her, and France induced the Free State to renounce her claim under the British lease to the Bahr-el-Ghazal territory.

For the concessions that are now asked France and Germany are to receive compensation in other parts of Africa.

Dr. Malherbe, who had charge of the case, sent immediately for the scalp. He had the hair shaved off, and the scalp carefully washed and dipped in an antiseptic solution, and then carefully applied to the head.
