SOME FAMOUS SIEGES.

Famous Investments in History Which Contribute Interesting Particulars for Comparison With Each Other.

Sieges vary in their length and their intensity and it is impossible to make of one from the other. But some have become famous in history, and for the sake of comparison the particulars of them are here given:

Azoth, which was besieged by Psammetichus, the Powerful, held out for 29 years. This was the longest siege in the annals of antiquity, but the most celebrated was siege in the annals of antiquity, but the most celebrated was that of Tryy for ten years. Tyre was besieged by the Assy s unsuccessfully for five years, 7.—.C. Jerusalem was besieged many times, but probably the most famous was that of Titus, who on September 8, A. D. 70, captured and sacked the city and temple, and it is estimated that 1,100.000 of the Jews perished.

Acre was taken by Richard and other

Acre was taken by Richard and oth-Acre was taken by Richard and other Crusaders, July 12, 1191, after a siege of two years, with a loss of six archbishops, twelve bishops, forty earls, five hundred barons and three earls, live hundred barons and three hundred thousand soldiers.

Antwerp was taken after fourteen months' siege by the Prince of Par-ma, August 17, 1585.

Calais was taken after a year's siege by Edward III., August 4, 1347.

Constantinople was taken by Mahomet II. after 53 days' siege, May 29, 1453.

Gibraltar suffered several sieges but the most celebrated was that of the British by the Spanish and French, lasting three years, seven months and twelve days, until February 2, 1783, when the Duc de Crillon announced the conclusion of peace.
Yorktown, Virginia, was taken by Lord Cornwallis in Aug., 1781, but after a disastrous siege he was com-pelled to surrender on Oct. 19, 1781, to Washington and Rochambeau, and this mainly led to the close of the Kars was defended by General Fenwick Williams with 15,000 men and 8 months' provisions from June 18, 1855, to November 28, 1855, against the Russian General Mouravisea, with 40,000 infantry and 10,000 cavalry. The Russians made a grand assault on September 29, but were repulsed with a loss of 6,000 men, and the garrison were finally overcome by hunger alone.

Leyden, between October 31, 1573, and October 3, 1574, when it was relieved, endured two sieges by the Spaniards, during which 6,000 of the inhabitants died of famine and pestilance.

The siege of Lucknow began July 1, 1857. Havelock arrived with temporary relief on September 26, but was compelled to wait reinforcements. The siege continued until Sir Colin Campbell fought his way in on November 16. Even then it was impossible to hold the city, and on November 20 the residency was evacuated for a while to the enemy. On March 2, 1858, Sir Colin Campbell returned and after a week's hard fighting drove out the enemy.

After the disastrous defeats of Woerth and Forback on August 6, 1870, the whole French army, cept three corps, was concentrated at Metz on August 10 and 11, and was gradually hemmed in by the Germans. Metz surrendered on October 27, 1870, with Marshals Bazaine, Canrobert and Le Boeuf, 66 Generals, 6,000 officers, 173,000 men, 400 pieces of artillery, 100 mitraileuses and 53 standards The two sieges of Paris during the var with Germany, 1870-71, are mong the most dramatic in its history. The first began on Sept. 19, 1870, when the Germans occupied the heights on the left side of the river, and two days later the investment was complete, Gen. Trochu had 400,000 men, who ought to have been able to hold out against the 240,000 Germans besieging him, but they consisted for the most part of raw levies, with inexperienced officers. Three unsuccessful sorties were made, an armistice was signed Jan. 27, 1871, and the capitulation on Jan 28. On March 1 the Germans and 28. On March I the Germans entered Paris. This, which marked the close of the siege, marked also the beginning of the "oommune" and its excesses. The whole city would have been involved in ruin if the national troops had not gained a decisive victory over the insurgents on May 28.

May 28. Plevna was the scene of fierce fighting in the Russo-Turkish war of 1877. Osman Pacha captured it from 1877. Osman Pacha captured it from the Russians on July 6, and resistwhen a regular siege began. He at-tempted to cut his way out on Dec. and was surrounded, defeated, with great slaughter, and compelled to surrender Dec. 10.

During the American Civil War

Richmond stood an intermittent siege of 1,452 days, and was evacuat-ed by the Confederates on April 2 and 3, 1865.

and 3, 1865.

Quebec capitulated on Sept. 18, 1759 to the British, after a siege lasting 69 days, and ending with the memorable battle on the plains of Abraham.

Immediately after the battle of the Alma on Sept. 20, 1854, the allied English and French armies marched guinary fighting and frequent bombardment, the grand assualt was made on Sept. 8, 1855, and the Russians evacuated the fortifications during the night.

Khartoum was defended against the Mahdi by General Gordon from Feb-ruary, 1844, to January 26, 1885, ruary, 1844, to January 26, 1885, when the town was surrendered and Gordon and his followers killed. Strasburg was invested by the Germans during the Franco-Prussian war on Aug. 10, 1870, and, though one of the strongest places in Europe surrendered on Sept. 27.

Oddities of La Fontaine. La Fontaine, the famous French poet and writer of fables, was a nota ble example of the eccentricity of genius. When he lost his entire fortune, a lady, who was one of his best friends and an ardent admirer of his works, hastened in alarm and distress to find him. She met him in the street, penniless and cheerful.

"You must come to our home," she said. "I was going there," he replied, and then began a visit which prolonged itself into years, during which La Fon taine never seemed to be troubled by a thought that he was dependent. Nor did the lady or her family have any other feeling than one of delight and pride that he made his home with

An old cherished superstition about the prairie dog is thus ruthlessly brushed aside in the American Natural History by William T. Hornaday: It is not true that the prairie dog lives in peace and harmony in the same burrow with the rattlesnake and burrowing owl. The snakes would make short work of the young prairie dogs. and the latter would quickly kill the owl! It is safe to surmise that when a deadly of quarrelsome rattler invades the line of a prairie dog family the latter speedily seeks a home elsewhere. The burrowing owl is in the habit of taking refuge in abandoned burrows and nesting in them to save the labor of digging a burrow for itself. In the Philadelphia Geologica garden Mr. A. E. Brown once tried the experiment of associating burrowing owis and prairie dogs. The owls were immediately killed and torn to pieces by the dogs. Ferdinand.

It was the Spanish Goths who gave it its earliest vogue in the peninsula as Fernando or Fernan. San Fernando. king of Castile, sent it on to Aragon and thence to Naples, where it became Ferdinando and figures in "The Tempest" accordingly as Ferdinand. With Ferdinand and Isabella its fame grew worldwide. Again, in Spain itself it became Hernando and Hernan, in which last shape it was immortalized by Cortes. Who would have suspected the conqueror of Mexico of bearing name which on analysis turns out to be pure Anglo-Saxon?

Losing a Couple of Anchors.

"It makes me weary," said the skip per of a clipper ship just in from South America, "to buy a newspaper just after I have landed and read that my vessel suffered no loss from the storm except slipping a couple of anchors How many persons who read that know that ships' anchors are sold by the pound and that each pound costs from 5 to 7 cents? I carried two 5,000 pound anchors and the loss of them means that I am out $600. That wipes the profit of a voyage in double about ship anchors as though they didn't cost more than marlinspikes."

When a dyak of Borneo makes love he helps the girl in the hardest portion of her daily toil. If she smiles upon him, no matter how sweetly, he does not immediately respond, but waits un-til the next dark night. Then he steals to her house and wakens her as she to ner nouse and waters ner as she lies asleep beside her parents. The parents, if they approve, make no sign, but sleep on or pretend to. If the girl accepts she rises and takes from her lover the betel and sweetmeats he has brought her. That seals their betrothal, and he departs as he came, neither meaking nor heirag scalery to. eaking nor being spoken to.

MARCUS AURELIUS. A Stole Who Was Called the Most Chris

Marcus Aurelius, who has been called the "flower of stoicism" and the "most Christian of pagans," was born in Rome early in the year 121 A.D. He was brought up by his grandfather and in 137, at the request of the Emperor Hadrian, was adopted by Marcus Titus Antoninus Pius, who was heir to the throne.

He became Caesar in 139 A. D. About 146 he married Faustina, the beautiful sister of Lucius Verus, who was Caesar with him.

This emperor-philosopher regarded himself as being, in fact, the servant of all. It was his duty, he believed, to confront every peril on his own person, to be forer nost in the hardships of war, most deeply immersed in the arts of peace.

He practiced what he preached. He was one of those who held that nothing should be done hastily and that few crimes were worse than the waste of time.

From an early age he had been a stoic, but instead of becoming cynical and careless he softened stoicism toward others, though not toward himself. He learned to work hard, to deny himself, never to listen to belander, to endure misforture, to be slander, to endure misfortune, to be grave without affectation, not frequently to say to any one or to write in a letter that I have no leisure" or continually to excuse the neglect of ordinary duties by alleging urgent occupation.

EVILS OF MODERN SOCIETY.

John D. Long, Former Secretary U.S. Navy, on Their Correction The real truth is not that the world has outgrown the simple precepts of Jesus, but that it has never reached them in their height or depth. We have never attained to the perfect practice of that simplest Christian rule—to love those that hate us, to love our neighbor as our selves, to be pure in spirit.

Brutalities and crimes, drunkenness and misconduct are not confined to the lower classes, but they break out among young men and women who have had the opportunity of bene-iting by our boasted education. There are corruption, bribery and

There are corruption, bribery and embezzlement by our public servants. The sacred ties of domestic life are disregarded. The temple of the Lord is invaded by mere birds of prey, who should be whipped out of it with lashes of scorn.

To correct these evils is our work. The remedy is not in the effort of labor or capital to promote its material interests; it is not in the efforts men make to better their conditions by theories of social organization. These things will, under natural laws in a free country, work out their only salvation. out their only salvation.

The vital need is the religion of Jesus; it is Christ in the individual man, reverence for the great fundamental precepts of the Master: their incorporation into actual daily as controlling springs of action.

Sir Alfred Jones' Bananas I can supplement, says a correspondent of M.A.P., your excellent narrative of Sir Alfred Jones, the shipping king, and of his habit of signifying to an office visitor, by of-fering him a banana, that he desires to end the interview. The good-na-tured myth in Liverpool shipping circles is that if you accept the banana, and then prolong your call, Sir Alfred rises and presents you with a fine flower from one of the glass stands in his office. If you are likely to be a "sticker," he may turn you towards the door, and pin turn you towards the door, and pin the flower in your coat. As he al-ways has a large stock of exquisite flowers in his place, he is ready for any number of callers. But supposany number of callers. But supposing you stay after the flower? Well, the legend continues, Sir Alfred then offers you a pass to the West Indies on one of his mail steamers, with a free holiday for six weeks at his hotel! Joking apart, I must say that Sir Alfred has sent scores of clerks and others to the West Indies to recover from bad health—that he has many a time given the poor man to recover from bad health—that he has many a time given the poor man a rich man's holiday. He is as generous as he is gifted. M. A. P. readers may be amused to hear the story of the only occasion when Sir Alfred got the worst of the banana rick. One day a young reporter called on him to learn, on behalf of his newspaper, something about the shipping conflict. When, after ten seconds' conversation regarding the weather, Sir Alfred's hand was straying towards the banana plate. weather, Sir Alfred's hand was straying towards the banana plate, the reporter hooked a couple of ba-nanas out of his own pocket. Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, and escaped the surgeon's knife, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The universal indications of the approach of woman's great enemy, inflammation and disease of the ovaries, are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. On examination it may be found that the region of pain will show some swelling. This is the first stage of inflammation of the ovaries.

Suppose that our eyes were attuned to the vibrations revealed to us by the bolometer. Instead of seeing the stars that we now see we should perceive those whose light has long been extinguished, whose existence the methods of modern physics have enabled us to prove. The sun would appear surrounded by its corona, changing in form and no longer be obliged to wait for total eclipses to study this phenomenon. Currents of hot air would become visible like snow squalls, and the science of heat would have no more secrets.
