A SHOCK TO PAUNCEFOTE

Peeped Into Root's Moving Picture Machine.

AND SUCH SIGHTS HE SAW!

Washington, June 25.—Probably the nost remarkable gift ever tendered to the War Department now occupies a very prominent location in the office the War Department now occupies a very prominent location in the office of Secretary Root, in the great pile of alcoves and windows known as the State, War and Navy Bullding. Those who come and go in the editice are to-day wearing a broad grin when they think of the new feature added to the harness of the "dogs of war." The apparatus is nothing less than a moving picture machine—one of those affairs which occupy odd nooks in saloons and poolrooms, whereby, with the aid of a nickel, one may, by gazing intently into the lenses, see strange female godlesses. The enterprising manufacturers of the chicken feed getters went to Adjutant General Corbin one day this week, and, by some means or other, managed to get him interested in a project to present one of the machines to Secretary Root on condition the latter place it in his office where all who other than the place might see it free of charge. Mr. Root saw, nothing unusual in the proposition, and gave his consent. So it happens that to-day the first and most prominent thing which greets the visitor haphist consent. So it happens that to-day the first and most prominent thing which greets the visitor hap-pening in the office is this picture-scope, garbed in a dress of silver, with American flags and eagles painted all over it.

Selected the Pictures.

Now, the mechine is all very well in its place, but the place should properly be a bar room. To add to this sad state of affairs, the agent who attended to the instalment of this particular machine overstepped all discretion in his anxiety to make the occasion and the machine something to be remembered. Therefore, he selected from his stock of warm goods the most startling outfit of the lot, which he yesterday inserted in the machine and prepared for its use.

Secretary Root had a busy day with the Chinese Boxers yesterday, and bothered little about anything else. While the smilling agent was fixing the machine about 11 a. m. the head of the War Department hurrled off to attend the Cabinet meeting at the White House, and did not return for nearly three hours. Then it was the picture machine man got in his deadly work. After viewing the result of his selections, he was apparently satisfied that they would produce a sensation and went Away well pleased.

Mr. Root's Caliers.

As it happened, the two first visitors to the office of Secretary of War

As it happened, the two first visit ors to the office of Secretary of War were Lord Pauncefote, the British Am r, and Mr. Wu Ting Faug, the Minister. Both of these illustrious diplomats were worried over the smacking of war with China, and had called to discuss the situation. As Secretary Root was attending the Cab-inet meeting the visitors decided to wait for a time.

After some gossip about the weather After some gossip about the weather Mr. Wu's discerning eyes spied the picture machine, and with the bland curiosity familiar to residents of the capital he walked over to examine it. He then pressed the button, and peering, eagerly into the lenses watched the choice of a picked flock pass before his wondering gaze. First on the list came an alleged Atlantic City fairy capering lightly through the surf, garbed in an elaborate costume composed of a an elaborate costume composed of a bracelet and a pair of garters. Then appeared the boudoir of a fair maid who evidently was preparing to retire and who had managed to pile lingerie all over the floor. What the fair one did to Johnny Green is shown in four remarkable pictures.

Pauncefote Shocked.

Pauncefote Shocked.

There were other scenes, too, not to be described here. All manner of sprites who dwell in that strange land wherein there are no cruel laws requiring the garbing of the human form were there, and in many of the scenes they came in couples and trios. The very genial Mr. Wu simply stared his eyes almost out of their sockets and then after a second round he unselfishly gave way to the staid Lord Pauncefote.

He reported having seen most of the city denists and that they had agreed to give one-half a day each month to the service of a dental hospital should one be established here and to reduce their charges by half in the case of poor people. He also reported that a number of prominent citizens had agreed to go on the board of such an institution. Dr. Adams' ultimate idea is to get dental hospitals established under Government regulation and assistance. Another meeting is to be held on Thursday night, when the plans are expected to be further advanced.

BEAUTY SPOTS MULTIPLYING.

Beautiful Lawns and Flower Garden All Over the City.

Hamilton has always been noted for its well-kept residential streets. This is essentially a city of homes and well-shaded avenues lined with handsome boulevards that have been for years the pride of home lovers. The advent of the Hamilton Improvement Society and the progressive policy adopted by the city in the matter of substituting handsome cement pavement for the old wooden sidewalks have had much to dio with the exceptional strides taken by the city at large this summer in regard to beautifying of street fronts. Wherever it had been advisable the Board of Works has granted requests to have the new granted requests to have the new walks laid out to the curb, this widening the available frontage of lots for lawns. Men in the business of laying sod say they never had such a heavy lawns. Men in the business of laying sod say they never had such a heavy year's business as at present, and it is astonishing, in walking about the streets that have had new sidewalks, to note the improvement made by property owners. Bright green sod now covers the street front of hundreds of lots which were formerly expanses of arid earth, and the decoration of housefronts with bright flowers has in some sections of the city become a rage. There is no lack of friendly rivalry on some of the avenues in the matter of securing the best results in lawn and window decoration along this line.

Of course there is no law to compel a property owner to fix up the front of his place, but some people would like to see such a law in force, that they might get at those who lack public spiritedness to the extent of begrudging a couple of pounds of grass seed to make their lawns uniform with those on either side of theirs for, on some streets, a distance of three and four blocks.

On one street which has recently one street which has recently been paved out to the curb, a property owner has had a strong enough pull with the Board of Works Department have the old plank sidewalk in front of his property retained close to his house, although the cement walk parallels it. This is the only blot on the lawn-like appearance of that side of he street in two blocks.

Hitherto it has been the practice of the Assessment department to "boost a man's taxes just as soon as he paint-ed his house, sodded his lot and made ed his house, sodded his lot and hade it look pretty with flowers, and this has been a great deterrent to those who wished to beautify their prem-less. It is to be hoped that the prac-tice will be discontinued and that every encouragement will be given those who seek to improve the appearance of the houses and streets.

ON ST. PATRICK'S LAWN.

Delightful Time and Big Crowd at the Annual Lawn Social.

The beautiful, spacious lawn of St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a joyous and picturesque gathering last evening. It was the annual ice-cream and strawberry social given by the ladies of the parish, and more than 1,500 persons were present. The grounds were illuminated with many electric lights, and Chinese lanterns were strung from booth to booth. The several tents and booths were prettily decorated with flags and buntings. In a large tent forty young ladies, dressed in white and wearing natty uniform caps and aprons, worked hard attending to the demands the Annual Lawn Social. natty uniform caps and aprons, worked hard attending to the demands of overheated and parched humanity. Liftle girls with trays of carnations and June roses relieved the unwary youth of small silver. The Thirteenth Band provided delightful music, for promonading, and hundreds of couples spent the evening in this way, while the old folk were content to sit on camp chairs and smile a be-nignant approval of the entire pro-ceedings. Mayor Teetzel and a numniguan. ceedings. ber of the city fathers were observed discussing ice-cream and strawberries with an earnestand whole souled purpose that would do justice to municipal deliberations. The local Roman Catholic clergy were well represented.

The representative in the United States of Great Britain and Ireland spied the first view on the list. He rubbed his eyes to make sure that he had not been mistaken, and then almost fell over in amizement. Then he grasped his silk hat and boited for the door. He was at once followed by Mr. Wu.

The machine still stands in the office of Secretary Root, but the views have been removed. A set of warviews in the Philippines are being prepared, and these will be substituted for those which the diplomats saw. The machine is also to be placed in Adjt. Gen. Corbin's office.—N. Y. Telegraph.

NO ROOM FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Prevent Its Existence,

Humanity has been afflicted with Dyspepsia, Indigestion and other stomach diseases since the world began. But until lately, there were no Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to cure these complaints.

In years gone by people had to suffer from Dyspepsia, etc. To-day there is no more need to do so than there is for a millionaire to sterve with hunger. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure Dyspepsia as easily and almost as quickly as the millionaire's dollars buy his food.

There is nothing boastful in this assertion. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cannot help curing these diseases. They cannot possibly have any other effect, once they are taken into the stomach. The ingredients of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets form the same digestive agent that a health is recovered.

The Pew Preaches Back To the Editor of the Times:

To the Editor of the Times:
Sir,—One of the city ministers has just reached the end of a series of sermons on the ten commandments. In his treatment of the sixth and eighth particularly, he has passed very lightly over the ordinary and direct application, but has taken the broader ground against what he calls social crime, such as is involved in a lady by unreasonable demands on her dressmaker's time driving her to her death, or in the owner of an unseaworthy vessel sending her out regardless of the lives of her crew, or n a merchant getting extortionate in a merchant getting extortionat prices for goods through false adver

It is unfortunate that the reverend gentleman did not still further broaden his view and give his people the benefit of an inquiry into the more distinctively social crime which lies between society on the one hand and the individual on the other, and in which sometimes the one and sometimes the other is the victim, although ultimately the burden falls usually on the same shoulders. If he had been addressing the street he might have found it necessary to show that the Creator of the universe had not been niggardly with His creatures, but had foreseen and richly provided the raw material and natural forces to meet the wants of every one of them. But addressing a church audience he could safely have assumed that poverty could arise only through indolence and shiftlessness bringing their own righteous penalty, from individual cases of disability or misfortune, or from the It is unfortunate that the reverend penalty, from individual cases of dis-ability or misfortune, or from the crime of society in frustrating the beneficient designs of Providence. Even in this new land there are many thousands of industrious and fairly capable citizens, whose time is spent in dreary and anxious drudgery with no hope for this world beyond supplying their barest physical supplying their barest physical wauts, and seeing their children started on the same monotonous struggle. Such conditions are surely anything but favorable to moral and spiritual growth, and if any part of our cooler extens part of our social system is found responsible for the killing and stealing involved in them then surely the thunders of the preachers' elo-quence could not be better directed than in exposing and removing the cause. For the killing which plunges the steel into the victim's heart and cause. For the killing which plunges the steel into the victim's heart and gives speedy release is not less merchess than a social arrangement which robs life of its fullest enjoyment and its opportunity for mental and spiritual development. In the first case, however, the criminals risk the prison and the gallows, while in the second case they may be lauded as gracious dispensers of charity and good citizens generally.

If the reverend gentleman wishes to assist in the prohibition of the worst forms of stealing and killing he must begin by recognizing that so long as human needs and human selfishness exist so long will men it their dealings with their fellow men drive hard bargains and impose hard conditions. He will then inquire why dressmakers or sailors or any others for whom in common with their kind 60d has made His sun to shine, and His earth to be fruitful, can be made to accept anything short of their natural share in the paternal inheritance. In the course of his inquiry it may dawn on him that there is some human contrivance which prevents some of the children having room at the Father's table, and is making murderers and robbers of its defenders. Before he proceeds far he may even adopt the conclusion of Prof. F. W. Newman: "Here is the fundamental error, the crude and monstrous assumption, that the land which God has given to our nation is or can be assumption, that the land which God has given to our nation is or can be the private property of any one. It is a usurpation exactly similar to that of slavery."—Nicodemus.
