Its hoofs became lodged in the trestle work, and it roll-ed over into the river about twenty-five feet below. Mr. Beattie, who was thrown out unhurt, waded into the wat-er, about four feet deep, but the ani-mal could not be made to budge. Thinking that its back or neck was broken, it was finally decided to let the animal drown, but no sooner did it get its head under water than it revived and struggled out, little worse for the exper-ience. ish It. ish lt. London, June 22.—There appears to be hope that the ridiculous censor-ship of plays to which the British stage is subjected may be reformed, if not abolished, in the not distant future. Premier Asquith, replying to a question in the House of Commons this afternoon, admitted the matter needed an enquiry, which he thought should be carried out by a joint com-mittee of the Lords and Commons.
