Tre Woman Who Complains

There is a certain type of woman whose presence is a wet blanket to others and who subtly radiates an atmosphere so displeasing that one groans inwardly when she appears. This is the woman who is always complaining.

Is there anything more tiresome in life, anything more aggravating, than complaints, complaints poured into our ears? It is not because the majority of mankind are hard hearted or that people are not symphathe. tic and willing to do what they can to help one another, but the impulse is irresistible to escape if we see one who continuously complains upon the instant of joining us. The whole world likes grit and wants to see an individual facing life courageously. We will do anything we can to help such a person alone, but after we have listened to complaints, complaints about the business position, about the home life, about everything in general and all things in particular, all desire to help is killed, all sympathy is gone, and we wish the constant "complainer" world take herself and her troubles away, face them out alone and learn to stand upon her own feet.

And the "complainer" carries her atmosphere around with her. She is not wanted in a business office because though she may not open her lips while there to those in authority, they feel that there is something unpleasant about such a woman. The average employer prefers to be in contact with a more pleasing

In the shops customers come to the girl with the the cheerful manner behind the counter, while the one with the pretty face loses half her trade.

Strange as it may seem, it is usually the little things of life that brings he complaints to our lips. When a arge difficulty or a big trouble arises somthing within us lifts its head and aces the circumstances bravely, un-ess we are hopeless "quitters. Often the habit of complaining comes without our suspecting it or realizing how much we are indulging in that pernicious habit. It is a habit easy to acquire and as hard to throw off. The only way to do is to keep stern watch upon yourself. If possible do not even think complaints, but if you cannot help this, don t let the words slip through your lips. Shut them tight instead. office or behind a counter has increased a hundred fold.

Complaints help no one In fact, they are always a hindrance, and the more we complain the more we harm ourselves. We do it from the same sort of feeling that makes a child cry, not because it helps to ourt any, but because it hasn't the trength not to do so.

You cannot blame any one for isliking to have a fretful child a- to-day. and, neither can any one be expected to want a fretful woman aound. Just think of this if you ave even started the habit of comblaining, and break yourself of that habit if you want to make a success of your work and of your life. DETROIT NEWS.

Heaven Lies In Yourself.

Whatever heaven beyond may be am sure that your heaven here is the echo of your own purity, charity and truth. Whatever hell may be yonder, you cannot doubt that hell here is your own dark and wrongful passions and greeds returned to mock and to affright you. You remember that exquisite verse of Fitzgerald's Omar?

"I sent my soul throughout the invisible Some secret of that after life to

And by and by my soul returned And whispered, 'I myself am heaven and hell!''

Friends, let us begin right now. Every day we will plant noble purpose, unselfish deeds, helpful words. as men plant orchards for their children's children.

Every day we will lift the trumpet and send out a hearty peal of hope and love and fearlessness against an untoward world, so that in after years, or perhaps in another world the echoes my come trailing back to us in heartening sweetness.

Every day we will sing not whine that our evening may be filled with music and not weeping. Every day we will smother the weak, unworthy, selfish, irrivable feelings, and utter only the good and the sane; we will present to the universe our love, our faith, our hope and in time all the angels will come to us bearing for our refreshment th fruit we have given. - Dr. Frank, Crane in Woman's World for

That Missing Schooner.

Last evening the Colonial Secretary had the following messages from Mr. E. J. Samson, J.P., of Winterton:—

"Description of schooner: tons, white mastheads, pink main boom, patched sails. What time was wreckage seen? Her crew consisted of five men and one boy two of the men are married, and three are single. Kindly wire if anything further."

"Please inquire from Catalina if the hull was submerged, and whether mastheads and spars were cut clear and floating. Kindly get as full report as pos-

The Colonial Secretary communicated with the Marine and Fisheries Department to arrange for a steamer to go in search of the missing craft and this morning at daylight the tug the supposed disaster.

Hurt By Fall.

Going up the steep hill at the head of Adelaide Street at dusk last evening a man who had too much liquor taken fell heavily backwards, his head striking the ground with much force. People passing thought he had been seriously hurt and picked him up. He was revived a while and was then taken to the station for safety by Consts. Sheppard and Carnell.

Another Theft.

Wednesday night while Skipper Kenneth Butler and his crew were absent from their schooner which is laying at an uptown wharf, some thief boarded her and stole a half barrel of pork off the deck. Mr. Butler has not and you'll find your desirability in | the slightest idea as to who the thief

Tea and Coffee

are a frequent cause of many human aches

But people seldom lay the blame where it belongs until troubles multiply doctor says "quit tea and coffee"

The tea or coffee drinker who is annoyed by headache, nervousness, indigestion, heart palpitation, biliousness or lack of sleep, can prove to a certainty whether tea and coffee are the cause by stopping ten days and using

This healthful beverage, made entirely of choice Northern wheat and the juice of Southern sugar-cane, tastes much like coffee, but contains no caffeine, the habit-forming, health-destroying drug in both tea and coffee.

Everyone can drink Postum with fullest benefit.

Thousands of former tea and coffee drinkers have found it a means of regaining health and increasing their comfort.

She suffered from nervousness by day and sleeplessness by night. "Up to three years ago," writes a young woman, "I was in the habit of drinking coffee freely and did not realize that it was injuring my health," (tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee) "till I was suddenly made the victim of nervous headaches so violent that I was compelled to give up household activities and stay in bed much of the time. Then insomnia came upon me and the wretchedness of sleepless nights was added to the agony of painful

"This lasted till a year ago, when I was persuaded by a friend to give up coffee entirely and use Postum.
The result was, in less than a week
