

The Public Is Now Told All About Tanlac

Leading Authorities Quoted And Show Conclusively Just What This Medicine Really Is.

In a recent issue of this paper announcement was made that Tanlac now has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world, and that more than twelve million bottles had been sold during the past four years.

These are unusual figures, and the question naturally arises in the mind of the reader why this phenomenal success and why has this preparation so far outstripped all other medicines of its kind. It is only natural therefore that the manufacturers should offer some explanation to satisfy public interest.

In the first place, Tanlac is manufactured in one of the largest and most modernly equipped laboratories in this country. Its formula is purely ethical and complies with all national and state pure food and drug laws. Altogether there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value.

Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Encyclopedia Britannica says: "It has long been the source of the most valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered."

In discussing another ingredient contained in Tanlac the 13th Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states that—"they impart general tone and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

This same well known authority describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac which is of value in treating what is commonly known as "a run-down condition" uses the following expression: "It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescence from acute diseases."

There are certain other elements in Tanlac which because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimilation and elimination improve the nutrition and vital activity of all the tissues and organs of the body, and produce that state of general tonic which is called health.

In discussing another ingredient in the Encyclopedia Britannica says: "It is one of the most efficient of that class of substances which act upon the stomach so as to invigorate digestion and thereby increase the general nutrition. It is used in dyspepsia, chlorosis, anemia and various other diseases in which the tone of the stomach and alimentary canal is deficient."

Concerning still another ingredient this same standard authority says: "It causes dilatation of the gastric blood vessels, increases secretion of the gastric juice, and causes greater activity in the movements of the muscular layers in the walls of the stomach. It also tends to lessen the sensibility of the stomach, and so may relieve gastric pain."

The United States Dispensatory makes the following comment regarding another ingredient: "It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required. Dyspepsia, a tonic gout hysteria, and intermittent fever are among many affections in which it has proven useful."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensatory and in other standard medical text books as having a beneficial action upon the organs of secretion, whose proper functioning results in the purification of the blood streams passing through them. In this manner objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed, and the entire system is invigorated and vitalized.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and the thorough elimination of the waste products must therefore have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it, and have told other millions what it has done for them. That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in this country, and that is also why it is the most widely talked-of medicine in the world today.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.

THE DAILY DOPE BY THE CUB-EDITOR

LITTLE GIRL!

Little girl, you look so small. Don't you wear no clothes at all? Don't you wear no shimmy-shirt, Don't you wear no petty-skirt? Just your corsets and your hose—Are these all your underclothes?

Little girl, you look so slight. When I see you in the light, With your skirts cut rather high Won't you catch a cold and die? Ain't you 'traid to show your calf? It must make some fellers laugh.

Little girl, what is the cause Why your clothes is made of gauze? Don't you wear no undervest When you go out fully dressed? Do you like those peek-a-boo's? 'Steard of normal underclothes?

Little girl, your 'spenders show. Why you wear 'em on you, I can see your tinted flesh. Through your little gown of mesh, Is it modest, do you suppose? Not to wear no underclothes?

Little girl, your socks has shoals. Of those little tiny holes. Why you want to show your limb I don't know—is it a whim? Do you want to catch the eye Of each feller passin' by?

OVERWHELMED.

Two Hibernalian workmen were verbally setting affairs of state in a refreshment room of a hotel and one remarked: "After all is said and done the great masses of the payroll must constitute the bulk of the population."

The other disputant, deliberating for a brief moment over this oracular statement that sounded so truthful, replied: "There for you, unless they are overwhelmed by the vast numbers of the privileged few."

Moths have been caught in mid-ocean, 1,200 miles from the nearest land.

TRAVELING FINGERS.

Typists' fingers are the most amazing travelers in creation, and are capable of going tremendous distances without the fatigue that would come to the feet and legs in performing a similar journey, says an exchange. In ordinary typewriting the hand may travel, according to an expert, 10,000 miles a year and not indicate any impairment in efficiency. This refers, of course, to the average typist in an office.

THE EASIEST WAY OUT.

"We now hear," remarks "Punch," "that the question regarding the possession of Kladzastafagatofotofka, in Poland, which has caused so much of the delay at the Peace Conference, has been satisfactorily settled. The Big Powers are to have a couple of syllables each and the remaining three will be raffled for."

SAFETY FIRST.

"Rastus, how is it with you given up going to church?" asked Pastor Brown. "Well, sah," replied Rastus, "it's dis way. I likes to take an active part, an' I used to pass de collection basket, but dey's give de job to Brothah Green, who jest returned from Ovah That-ah." "In recognition of his heroic service, I suppose?" "No, sah, I reckon he got dat job in recognition o' his having lost one o' his hands."

It is the custom in Japan for parents to label their children with their addresses so that in case they wander any wayfarer may send them home.

Cricket Hicks was at the postoffice this morning when the mail was opened and came within one box of getting a letter.

HEAVENLY MUSIC!

"The verra best music I effer heard whate'er was down at Jamie MacLaughlan's," said the piper. "There was fifteen o' us pipers in the wee back parlour, all playin' different chunes. I thocht I was floatin' in heaven."

AN ADMIRABLE CUSTOM!

A bride in Korea begins her married life in silence. During the first day she must not speak, even to her husband. It is considered a breach of etiquette. But the next morning she is permitted to give full reign to her tongue.

TUST SO!

Speaker—Thank God, the country has gone dry. It will bring sunshine to many a home. Skeptic—Yes, and moonshine, too, brother!

FAVORABLE OR OTHERWISE.

New York Evening Post.—The Kaiser's lawyers ought to feel pretty safe when it comes to drawing a jury. It should take some time before twelve men could be found who have not already formed an opinion concerning the defendant.

TOO GOOD TO LAST.

With fear and trembling he approached the doctor. "I know there's something wrong with my heart, doctor, I have a feeling that I'm not going to live very long."

"Nonsense! Give up smoking."

"Never smoked in my life doctor."

"Well stop drinking."

"I am a total abstainer from alcoholic drink."

"Well, try going to bed earlier; get more sleep."

"I'm always in bed by 9 o'clock."

"Oh, well, all I can say is, my dear sir, that I think you had better let nature take its course. You're altogether too good for this world."

THE MEMORY LINGERED.

"You don't call me a 'cutie' any more."

"No girlie, that word is too reminiscent of life in the trenches."—Manchester Evening Gazette.

UNSPEAKABLE GENEROSITY.

"What did Mr. Flint give his wife for her birthday?"

"He took her to a store and told her to choose the best thing in the house."

"How lovely! Was it a jewelry store?"

"No, a five and ten cent store."

Washington, Sept. 10.—Away back in 1882, when Timothy O. Howe, of Wisconsin was Postmaster General in the Cabinet of President Chester A. Arthur, a letter was mailed from the Ebbitt House here to Col. Charles E. Sherman, a guest at the Metropolitan Hotel, seven blocks away.

The letter bore the admonition, "Postmaster will please return to above address if not called for in ten days." But the letter, mailed on April 27, 1882, apparently was not called for in ten days or even in more than thirty-seven years, for it was returned to the Ebbitt House to-day. And it was returned in the Administration of Postmaster General Burleson.

While the letter was going the seven blocks and returning there have been sixteen Postmaster Generals. The letter came back to the Ebbitt with the regular return mail and bore only two postmarks, that of April 27, 1882, and Sept. 7, 1919. The hotel management is attempting to locate Col. Sherman, to whom the letter was addressed.

The Yarn of the Blue Star Line.

When I was a lad and went to sea in seventy-seven or six maybe, There was ten tall ships on Merseyside. Did sail or berth with every tide; There was "Hills" and "Halls" and "Dales" and "Bens," "Counties" and "Cities" and "Locks" and "Glens." And none was there so fast and fine As them that sailed in the Blue Star Line.

They had tough-nut skippers as hard as nails To crack 'em along in the Cape Horn gale. And hard-case shellbacks thirty-two There used to be in a Blue Star crew To man the captain and raise the shout At tugs and sheets when she went about. And brass-bound reefers eight or nine In them tall ships o' the Blue Star Line.

But Lord! the names them good ships had— Enough to drive a plain man mad! The way them names was spelled or said 'Ud crack your jaw like Liverpool bread; There was "Parthen-ope" and "Thucydides." And a whole lot more and worse besides. And "Melpo-mene" and "Euphrosyne" Was sort o' names in the Blue Star Line.

But the steam came up and the sail was down. And them tall ships of high renown Was scrapped or wrecked or sold away To a Dutch or the Dagoes, day by day. They went the way o' the songs we sung. And the girls we kissed when we all were young. And most o' the chaps as used to sign Along with me in the Blue Star Line.

The "Parthen-ope" she met her fate, Run down in a fog off the Golden Gate; And the "Thucydides" kept knocking around 'Tween the Cape and Cardiff and Puget Sound 'Till a fire in her main hold burned her down. To the water's edge at Simonstown; And none was left but the "Euphrosyne." The blooming last o' the Blue Star Line.

There isn't a cargo great or small But that old hooker's carried 'em all. For whether it's rubber or whether it's bread; Coal or copper or salt or spice, Teak or whale-oil or bone manure, Smelly guano or copper ore, Gulf ports cotton or B.C. pine— All's one to the last o' the Blue Star Line.

There isn't a tugboat far or near But's took her to sea with a parting cheer. Or picked her up off o' Lizard Head With the nine months' rust in her hawse pipes red; There isn't a pilot near or far From Gravesend Reach to Astoria Bar On Hudson or Hooghly, or Thames or Tyne, But knows the last o' the Blue Star Line.

She's been up and down and here and there, But there ain't no time for to tell you where; She's been sunk and raised and drove ashore. A wreck and a hulk and a prize o' war, But she's gone at the last, as I've heard tell, In the Channel chops as she knoved so well. On St. Angles Light, where a drifting mine Done in the last o' the Blue Star Line.

And it's good to know as she took her bones, When it came to the end, to Davy Jones; With the old Red Duster flying the same As it did in the days when she earned her fame. Home News From Abroad.

The following extract from a letter received from New York contains some home news from abroad that will interest readers of the Telegram as they show how some of our visitors are—

Our mutual friend W. H. has arrived from his trip to Newfoundland. He used to say so much to him and the others in the office, about home, that was "skereed stiff" fearing H. would be disillusioned. But he was most enthusiastic. Talking about the weather, he never saw anything like, was perfect during his stay, although it was a standard joke while he flers were there.

THE REGATTA.

He saw the Regatta, and you should hear him talk about Quill Yacht and its surroundings. He believes that there is not a more beautiful spot of water in the world, so congenially suited for aquatic sports. They told him Sir Edgar Bowring attended beautifying it like Bowring park, and then he assures me, and he others, that there will be nothing in the United States to approach it grandeur or beauty.

You should hear him about the rowing. He did not mind the fishermen rowing such a splendid stroke, it was only what he expected, but when he saw shop and office hands and ordinary workmen rowed like professional rowers, he wondered why the world did not send sample crews over the water to teach the professional oarsmen how to row. The boats, the crews, the lake and its surroundings, completely astounded him, and he says there is nothing in the world to compare with it.

THE PRINCE'S RECEPTION

He saw the Prince of Wales landing and what struck him, was that the Prince was so simple and unaffected, he no longer wonders why the British people are such rabid Monarchists. He said if the Prince was a fair sample of British royalty, it is no wonder the people are so loyal. All his experience both at home and abroad, he never saw anything like it.

The people welcomed him as one at the
