

TAKE IT FOR
CRAMPS—COLIC—DIARRHOEA
APPLY IT FOR
BRUISES—SPRAINS—SORE THROAT

PERRY DAVIS Painkiller
 The Home Remedy

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER V.
 "I never see an orchid, Fulke, without thinking of Lady Iris," said Lady Clyffarde. "Have you done anything to win a flower yet?"
 "No," he replied, gloomily, "and I begin to think I never shall. I shall grow desperate soon, and come out in some new character—'Tribune of the people,' or something of that kind."
 "On the same day Mrs. Bardon asked her son if he had thought any more of what she had said about Lady Iris. "I have thought too much of it for my own peace of mind," he replied. "I wish with all my heart I had never seen Lady Iris."
 The millionaire's wife smiled to herself. It was quite evident, she decided, that her son was in love with the lady.
 But Marie, his sister, was wiser. One clear spring evening, when the lamps were lighted, she showed him a moth that would linger round one of them.
 "It will be burned to death, John," she said; "you understand—to death."
 "Better that than to live maimed," he replied. Then she knew that his case was hopeless indeed.

CHAPTER VI.
 Sir Fulke was, as his rival called him, a white handed aristocrat, handsome, with a Saxon style of comeliness that is in its way equaled. His hair seemed to have caught the sunshine, his gray eyes were frank and clear, and round his sensitive mouth drooped a fair mustache.
 John Bardon was dark and strongly built. What was most noticeable in him was his great vitality. He was almost terribly in earnest with everything. Now that this fierce passion had taken hold of him, he was no longer the same man. He was eager to win honors, to make himself famous, to do anything which should win her admiration. So desperate was his infatuation that he

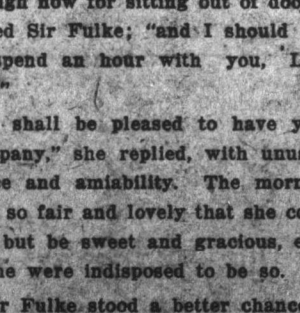

Your Home
 Can be made more easily comfortable and pleasurable by the installation of this simple, economical device. Saves you one-third of your fuel bill. Keeps out cold and draft, dust and noise, deadens noise and stops rattle.
 Ceco Metal Weatherstrips placed on your windows and doors relieves you of the bother with storm sash. They are cheaper than storm sash, far more effective, and last as long as the building.
 For both new and old houses, etc. Let us tell you more about

Ceco METAL WEATHERSTRIPS Distributed by EUGENE H. THOMAS,
 P. O. Box, 1251; Phone, 757.

would far rather have drawn her attention to him by a crime than that she should ignore him altogether. He vowed that he would either win her or kill her. She should be won by no other man.
 Would military glory touch her. He could not join the army, for his father needed him at home; nor did he wish to leave the neighborhood in which she dwelt. But he had been very much struck with the uniform of the Eastshire Yeomanry; and he had heard that ladies liked a handsome uniform. He determined therefore to join the regiment at once, if there was a vacancy. Fortunately one of the cornets had just resigned, so John Bardon took his place.
 Sir Fulke was greatly amused when he met John Bardon resplendent in full regimentals.
 "Good morning, Mr. Bardon," said Sir Fulke in his cherry voice—"playing at soldiers?"
 "I never play at anything, Sir Fulke, as you will know some day," he replied, savagely.
 "I shall never know it," said Sir Fulke, scornfully; "it does not concern me. Why not do the real thing—join the army, and endeavor to distinguish yourself in Afghanistan?"
 "Thank you. I have something more important to do nearer home," answered John Bardon.
 As he said the words, it struck Sir Fulke that the "something more important nearer home" meant the winning of Lady Iris. His fair Saxon face flushed hotly. Did this low-born fellow dare to think the peerless young beauty would stoop to him? His future wealth would not weigh with her—she who looked for heroism to the man she loved. An expression of intense scorn came over his face.
 "Take care you don't aim too high," he said, significantly.
 Sir Fulke rode on with rage in his heart. He recalled his mother's words—that Lady Iris would be sure to marry some one out of his common groove. John Bardon was certainly different from other men, although every good quality that he might possess was more or less marred by his want of refinement. There were women—and Sir Fulke knew it—who would prefer John Bardon and his wealth to his own high birth and noble lineage, who would find more to admire in John Bardon than in him.
 Sir Fulke realized now how much he loved Lady Iris, and he saw that the happiness of his whole life depended upon her. He had left Clyffe Hall to ride to King's Forest; but both business and pleasure vanished from his mind. He must know if there was any foundation for his suspicions.
 He changed the direction of his ride at once, and went to Chandos. He knew that he dared not break into Lady Iris' presence with an abrupt question on his lips; he would have to wait patiently until he could introduce the subject. The earl's daughter had to be approached with caution.
 He found her alone, finishing a spirited sketch of a magnificent cedar tree.
 "It fate had not made you a great heiress, nature would have made you an artist, Lady Iris," said Sir Fulke, as he looked at the sketch. "I consider that drawing perfect."
 "I am glad you think so, Sir Fulke," she replied, with a smile. "How proud we always are of our own work!"
 "You may be proud of yours," he said admiringly. "It is quite warm enough now for sitting out of doors," added Sir Fulke; "and I should like to spend an hour with you, Lady Iris."
 "I shall be pleased to have your company," she replied, with unusual grace and amiability. The morning was so fair and lovely that she could not but be sweet and gracious, even if she were indisposed to be so.
 Sir Fulke stood a better chance of winning her favor on this morning than he had ever stood. He was growing desperate with suspense. Through the vista of green foliage and sunlit gardens he saw the dark stalwart man clad in the handsome uniform; but when he looked at the fresh glorious beauty of Lady Iris Payne, he thought that not all the military adornments of modern Europe would make the least impression upon her. Still the stalwart figure flashed most uncomfortably across his memory. He resolutely to open the subject at once.

 "I saw what I consider a most absurd sight as I came along the high road," he began.
 "What was the absurd sight?" she asked, with some interest.
 "A bird in borrowed plumage," he replied—"John Bardon in the uniform of a cornet of the Eastshire Yeomanry."
 "Why do you call the sight absurd?" she asked coldly. "The Eastshire Yeomanry are a fine and useful body of men."
 "He does not look like a soldier," replied Sir Fulke.
 "The uniform does not make the soldier any more than the habit makes the monk," she said, laughingly.
 "Still I cannot see why you should call Mr. Bardon absurd."
 In his heart Sir Fulke knew that the dark, stalwart man in the handsome uniform of the Eastshire Yeomanry was anything but absurd. However, now was his time for discovering what her real thoughts about John Bardon were.
 "I shall be afraid to say another word against him, or even about him, Lady Iris, since I find he is such a favorite of yours."
 "I did not say that he was a favorite," she said, coldly.
 "I assume it, since you espouse his cause so warmly," he declared.
 "I prefer to take the part of the absent," she said.
 "I wish some one would speak evil of me in my absence, in order that you might defend me!" he cried.
 "Are you sure that I should find one word to say in your defense?" she asked.
 "I hope so. But, Lady Iris, you know how anxious I am always to please you. If you tell me that you have thrown the shield of your friendship over the Bardons, I will like them, or at least try to do so, from this time henceforward."
 "You need not make any effort, Sir Fulke," she said.
 "But do tell me, do you really like them or not, Lady Iris?"
 "You have asked a question I do not feel called upon to answer, Sir Fulke," and he was compelled to leave without knowing in the least whether she cared for John Bardon or not.
 Lady Iris had not at present given much thought to either of her admirers. She liked Sir Fulke for his bright pleasant manner and his refined poetical mind; she disliked him for the vanity and egotism that marred an otherwise fine character. She felt interested in John Bardon; but she disliked the thin veneer of polish that only half hid the fierce strong nature. Of the two she preferred Sir Fulke.
 The rivals had not met together in her presence; but the fire had been smoldering, but the flame appeared at last.
 The Honorable Mrs. Motra came on a visit to Clyffe Hall; and Lady Clyffarde saw that some amusement must be provided. She knew that Lady Iris would not attend any great entertainment or ball until after her presentation; but there could be no harm in a quiet garden-party. Lady Clyffarde thought Lady Iris would enjoy it; so she sent out invitations for a garden-party to be held on the first of May.
 (to be continued.)

Cuticura
 Clears the Pores Of Impurities

Daily use of the Soap, with occasional touches of the Ointment as needed, cleanses and purifies the skin and keeps it free from pimples and blackheads. Cuticura Talcum is ideal for powdering and perfuming.

NOTE:—Owing to the continual advance in price of paper, wages, etc., we are compelled to advance the price of patterns to 15c. each.

Household Notes.

Sausage will not burst if tried in an ungreased pan.
 Crisped slices of bacon make an appetizing garnish for cheese toast.
 When making oyster stew, cook the oysters until their edges ruffe.
 French dressing made with tarragon vinegar is excellent on salmon salad.
 A little chopped onion gives an added savoriness to broiled mushrooms.
 Grape juice is a good substitute for wine in preparing grape fruit for table use.
 Three tablespoonfuls of cracker crumbs make a pleasant addition to an omelet.
 When preparing loin chops for baking place a whole cored apple on top of each.
 Fried potatoes should not be salted until they are in the dish, ready to be served.

Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Patterns. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A COMFORTABLE HOUSE OF HOME DRESS.

4081. Long waisted effects still prevail, as this style shows. It is nice for tub silk, gingham, voile and also for tulle, gabardine and crepe. Blue and white checked gingham is here portrayed with bindings of blue chambray and organza for collar and cuffs. The sleeve in wrist length is fitted with a dart.
 The Pattern is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 1/2 yards of 3 1/2 inch material. The width at the foot is 2 1/2 yards with plaits extended. Collar and cuffs of contrasting material require 1/4 yard 3 1/2 inches wide.
 Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A POPULAR STYLE.

4088. Here is a simple sleeveless style, with a neat gimp that may be finished with wrist length or 3/4 length sleeves. Plaid gingham is used for the dress and voile for the gimp. This style is nice for tub silk, for crepe and gabardine.
 The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. A 36 inch size requires 2 1/2 yards for the gimp and 3 1/2 yards for the dress of 3 1/2 inch material.
 Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

ELLIS & CO.,
 Limited,
 208 WATER STREET.

SAN-O-SPRAY will knock flies off the wall, and not harm paint or paper. Will keep the Kitchen, Bedroom or Verandah clear of Flies, Mosquitoes, etc., for several hours after a few sprays.

NO INSECT CAN LIVE
 where SAN-O-SPRAY is used. Yet SAN-O-SPRAY is non-poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in Pantry, Kitchen, Dining Room and Cellar.
 In addition, SAN-O-SPRAY is a disinfectant and germicide.
 Keeps the home sanitary and free from infectious diseases. SAN-O-SPRAY.

ELLIS & Co.,
 Limited.
 208 WATER ST.

FATHER'S TRAGIC DISCOVERY—MOTHER CHARGED WITH MURDER.

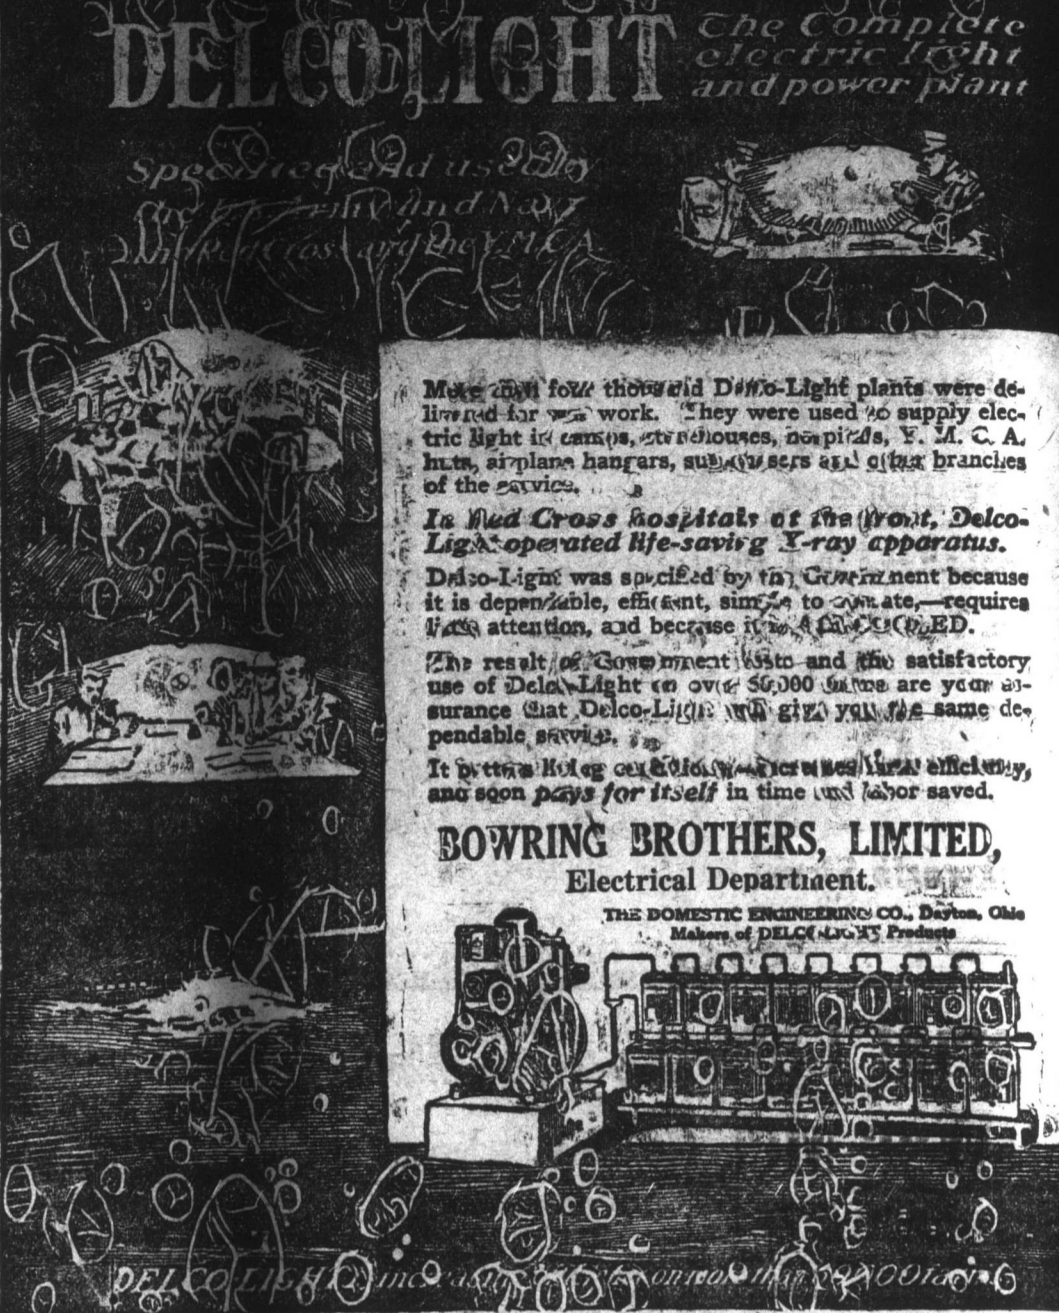

Two little girls were found drowned in the bath of a burning house in Ripple road, Barking, Essex, yesterday. The discovery was made by their father, a motor-driver named William Harnden, on returning from a successful search for work.
 The mother of the girls, Mrs. Sarah Harnden, who had been missing all day, reported to the police at Barking last night. She was charged with murdering the children and will be brought up at Stratford Police Court this morning. The police had circulated a description of her.
 When Mr. Harnden returned home at 10.30 a.m. he failed to get a reply to his knock, and, not having a key with him, asked Mrs. West, a neighbor, to let him go through her house. After climbing over the fence into his garden he saw smoke pouring from the two back bedroom windows. He unlocked the back door, but found it locked.
 Mr. Harnden forced an entrance by smashing the window above the door. The bath is fitted in the scullery, and in it he found his two little girls, Violet aged two, and Lily, aged four, lying together drowned in a foot of water.
 The fire brigade was called, but the fire had destroyed the two bedrooms before it was put out.

NEIGHBOR'S STORY.

Mrs. West, the neighbor, said to a Daily Mail reporter last night: "I saw Lily going no some errands just before 10 o'clock. She was bright and happy and was a pretty little girl; so was the baby, Violet. Doris, an elder daughter, had gone to school. "I was cleaning my sitting-room when I noticed Mrs. Harnden go out. That would be soon after 10 o'clock, and about 15 minutes after Lily had returned from her errands.
 Both the dead children were fully dressed. On the kitchen table was found an open razor.
 Until last Wednesday, Mr. Harnden had been employed by a local firm, who yesterday offered to re-engage him. He was returning home to acquaint his wife with the good news when he made his tragic discovery.

At the Yarmouth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found Minard's Liniment most beneficial for sunburn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.
 Alfred Stokes,
 General Secy.

DELCO LIGHT The Complete electric light and power plant

More than four thousand Delco-Light plants were delivered for use. They were used to supply electric light in camps, stables, hospitals, Y. M. C. A. huts, airplane hangars, substations and other branches of the service.
 In Red Cross hospitals of the front, Delco-Light operated life-saving X-ray apparatus.
 Delco-Light was specified by the Government because it is dependable, efficient, simple to operate, requires little attention, and because it is a safe, reliable service.
 The result of Government tests and the satisfactory use of Delco-Light on over 50,000 farms are year assurance that Delco-Light will give you the same dependable service.
 It gives more light, and it gives more efficiency, and soon pays for itself in time and labor saved.

BOWRING BROTHERS, LIMITED,
 Electrical Department.
 THE DOMESTIC ENGINEERING CO., Dublin, Ohio
 Makers of DELCO-LIGHT Products

CERTAINLY! YOU WANT THE BEST.

You can scarcely meet a man, if he is a smoker, but will readily admit the superiority of
"EDGEWORTH TOBACCO."
 Are YOU enjoying it? It has many rivals, but nothing exceeds it for real satisfaction. Let your next purchase be EDGEWORTH.
 Sold everywhere at popular prices.

THE SILENT SERVANT.
Gas in the Home

GAS COOKERS—Efficient and labour-saving.
GAS FIRES—In the home they save time, work and worry. Clean, hygienic, heat where and when you want it.
GAS WATER HEATERS—Immediate hot water, night or day. No vexatious delay. Your bath ready at a moment's notice.
 The above represent a few of the many GAS appliances now available for adding to the comforts of home-life.
 For full particulars apply to

ST. JOHN'S GAS LIGHT COMPANY.

DR. LEHR,
 Dentist,
 329 Water St.

50 YEARS EXPERIENCE IN FITTING ARTIFICIAL TEETH.

SATISFACTORY PLATES.
 Anyone unfortunate enough to be obliged to use artificial teeth should have the very best set it is possible to secure. Many have found cause for complaint in their inability to keep plates in place. This is due to a poor fit. The Dentist may not be to blame, as one's mouth is constantly changing, only slightly perhaps, but enough to "outgrow" the plate. There is no remedy for this but have a new plate made.
 We make a specialty of Plate Work and extracting. Just as, that 1500 Sides AMERICAN SOLE LEATHER. NEW MANILLA & STEAM TARRID ROPE. Also, 2000 AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AXES 3 1/2 lbs. to 4 lbs. each. Will be sold at Rock Bottom Prices.

North Am. Fur, Hide and Metal Co'y., Water Street West (Next Door Reid Electric Store).
 sept 19

Ex S CAL. OR
 50 Brils.
 50 Half
 ALMER
 DIGBY
 LOBST
 10 lb. T
 C.
 Duckw
 Imper
 W
 Premier Speedy adian C formati
 NO REPLY YET
 The British Cab
 the Turkish crisi
 clock this evening
 morning, after wh
 Curzon will wh
 get in direct comm
 French Governme
 announced that no
 calved from Ken whether he would
 of the Straits
 on was concerni
 al and air measu
 L
 It was learned evening that Pre has not actually to supply coffin
 East. The Premi
 the urgency of th
 ed the Dominica desired to be ass
 tary steps that m
 sary.
 MUNITION FAC
 CAP
 The British Gov
 ed all small arm factories in the work twenty-four ty in preparatio
 eventually, accord
 private source
 REPARATIONS
 The reparations
 virtually settled
 Ca
 Ro
 Eq
 E va re ch of pe in 80 th q
 The