Gives Full Play to Suspicions in Will

UNHAPPIEST MAN IN THE WORLD WAS APPARENTLY A RICH ENGLISHMAN.

The unhappiest man in the world was apparently a rich Englishman who died recently. Not many poor men would have been willing to change places with him if they could have read the will which he wrote to dispose of his property. This is the document which proves that it takes more than wealth to bring happiness:

"To my wife I leave her admirers and the knowledge that I wasn't the ool she thought I was. To my son I leave the pleasure of earning his living. For thirty years he thought the pleasure was mine. He was mistaken. To my daughter I leave $50,000. She will need it. The only good piece of business her husband ever did was to marry her. To my valet I leave the clothes he has been stealing from me regularly during the past 10 years. To my chauffeur I leave my cars. He has almost ruined them and I want him to finish the job. To my partner I leave the suggestion that he take some other clever man in with him at once if he expects to do business."
