Run Into by an Engine.

A serious accident was narrowly averted at the Wellington street crossing of the G. T. R. yesterday morning. A lengthy freight train was being shunted on a track cast of the street. An engine was attached to both ends. The engineer directing that nearest the thoroughfare mentioned when he saw that two wagons which were crossing the track could not do so without being run down, reversed his engine. But the motive power at the other end of the train kept propelling the cars westward. A vehicle belonging to J. C. Dodd, the carpenter, was grazed, while one of Stanton's toe delivery wagons was caught in the center. John Price, the driver, jumped to the ground and escaped unhurt. The conveyance, though, was badly smashed.

Coi. Clark's Proposition.

The finance committee of the council met in special session yesterday afternoon to continue the consideration of Col. Clark's proposition for an electric street railway in this city. Ald. Moule (chairman), Carrothers, James Fitzgerald and Parmell, City Treasurer Pope, Col. Clark and Solicitor Johnston were present. It is proposed that the line on King street run east from Wellington instead of Talbot. A double track would be laid there. Connections would be made and a line run to the asylum. The committee did not consider it within their power to grant permission for the use of Richmond street north from St. James to city limits. Such permission will have to be obtained from the Proof Line Road Company, The matter of running on either St. James or Oxford was made optional with the proposer.

Bring to the surface every latent pain.
A change of even a few degrees makes the difference between comfort and pain to many persons. Happily disease now holds less sway. Science is continually bringing forward new remedies which successfully combat disease. Polson's Nerviline—nerve pain cure—has proved the most successful pain-relieving remedy known. Its application is wide, for it is equally efficient in all forms of pain, whether internal or external. 25 cents a bottle at druggists.

THE YOUNG MAN.

That is to Say One Kind of a Young Man. (New York Sun.)

Do you see the young man? Do you see the young man.
What is his name?
Something with a hyphen in it.
Where is he from?
No place in particular; he is equally a roduct of all large cities and a few small es. Isn't he ever from the country? No; he is an artificial growth. Where did he get his clothes? London.

London.
Why there?
Because he is a very swell young man.
Ah! Then he must have money?
He has.
How did he make it?

He didn't. How did he get it? Ho was born that way. It's the unearned increment that he is ars the uncarned increment the trawing on, is it? Not exactly; his father carned it. Ah!

Do fathers owe their sons a living? The sons think so.

All sons?
No; there are some millionaires' sons who are as good men as their fathers were, and with a better start.
This young man is not that kind?
Hardly.
What does he do for a livelihood?
Oh, yery many things.

Hardly.
What does he do for a livelihood?
Oh, very many things.
What, for instance?
Sits at his olub window and gazes at girls; rides a little; drives sometimes; does society; fiftrs during the summer in the mountains or by the sca; runs over to Europe takes in the races; drops in at the theaters; yachts it a bit; coaches in fine weather; bets on sporting events; drinks when he wants to; smokes a good deal; plays a card occasionally; eats, sleeps, and so forth.
Does he ever read?
He doesn't have to; he's in society.
But he ought to know something?
He does; be knows all the hest people, all the best cooks, the best brands of cigars and champagne, and a lot of other useful things.

Has he a home?
Cortainly; he lives with his father.
He has a good home, then?
Of course; an elegant one; the house cost

$250,000.

Is the cost of the house any indication of the kind of a home it is?

It seems to be so considered.

It's a pity he isn't domestic in his tastes so he could marry.

Oh, bless your life, he doesn't want to. Could he, if he wanted to?

He could indeed.

He could, indeed. He doesn't look it. Looks don't count. He's rich and in the wim, and he could pick the girl he wanted or a wife and get her.

Would she be happy?
Didn't I say he was rich and in the wim?
But is that happiness—a woman's happi-

Of course, why not? That's the kind of a man the girls seem to want most.

All girls?
Oh, no; there are a few old-fashioned ones left, who have quaint ideas that their husbands should be manly men.
Does the young man know this?
Whether he does or not, he does not care; a wife of that character would make a life a lumber to him.

How?

She would demand the devotion of a true husband.

Wouldn't he give it to her?

He might for the first few months. After that, the club would claim him.

Wouldn't home and a good wife be far pleasanter and better?

He isn't built that way. Who's to blame? His environments.

Not with her, probably, but away from her; and he would marry her because he could do as he pleased, while she was doing as she pleased.

Is that the true theory of marriage?

It is the practice where money is the natrimonial factor.

natrimonial factor.
Couldn't this young man inaugurate a

Hardly; martyrs are born, not made.
Is he a nambly-pamby youth?
Not necessarily; but there is no demand

What would he do if reform were forced
