IN 1908

It is not too soon to speak about what we may expect on Vancouver Island in the year 1908 in the way of development. The first thing that everyone will think of is the extension of the E. & N. railway. Doubtless that line will be completed by the end of the year. The railway also will make a beginning in its great land-clearing scheme. The latter enterprise has not matured as quickly as was expected, but it is not abandoned. The company is only awaiting the decision of the parties who proposed entering into a contract to do the work. If they decide to go on, clearing will begin at once. The work will be done. The areas have already been selected. The two things of themselves will mean very much to Vancouver Island.

We look for rapid progress at Alberni. The probability of great ocean liners making the head of Alberni Canal their terminus may be open to question. There is plenty of water to float them, but the canal is long and narrow. That is only one feature of the case. Alberni is certain to be a point where extensive lumbering will be established. It seems likely to be the great coal shipping port of the island. It will be surrounded by a fine fruit-growing region. It may become, and we think it is very likely to become, the site of extensive smelting works. These things all may not be in what we now mean when we speak of Alberni, but they will be in that vicinity. A new and important town is certain to be built up at whether it becomes a C. P. R. terminal point or not. A good beginning will be made in the development of Alberni next year. This will signify much for the whole West Coast.

IS THIS CIVILIZATION?

The Chief of Police of Vancouver told Mr. Commissioner King the other day that there might be further Oriental riots in that city. There were no riots in that city, when Europeans, who landed in China, Japan or Korea, were the victors from the interior. Occasionally we hear from the interior which missionaries are treated. This makes our blood boil, as it used to boil in days when the reception accorded to foreigners in the coast cities of that country was the reverse of friendly. True, we explained the outrages by saying that the British public could be expected from a lot of heathenish heathens, but all the same we went warships to shell them into common decency. We do not try to protect the missionaries in the interior by physical force because they are too remote, but we claim damages and insist on them being paid. Of course this is because we are the exponents of Christian civilization, the elect of the earth, who have a divine right to walk roughshod over heathen whenever we see fit. When the missionaries of being a white, civilized Christian old heathen has any rights which are bound to be respected. Suppose, however, that we happened to be heathens, with complexions that were somewhat yellow, and that we went to a land, which we supposed that the fairness of its laws, the protection accorded every one, the respectability of its population, or a portion of them, came against us with violence and destroyed our property, endeavored to drive us out of the country. What would we think about it? We do not want Asiatics in this country. On this point there is little or no difference of opinion. But those people who think that the problem presented by the contact of the two races is to be disposed of by rioting in the streets of Vancouver is sadly mistaken. In every case of this kind, the proper remedy is to be found in the law. The white race could make over the yellow race, which the latter were compelled to admit, was that we protected all people in their legal rights, and that there was always a perfect and abiding persons under our flag. If the Orient is taught that this claim has no foundation in fact, the consequences will be exceedingly serious. Let every legitimate effort be made to prevent an influx of Orientals into Canada; but let us not forget that those who are already here, and those who may be let into just the same protection from the law as are those of us who were born in the country. We cannot advance any claim to civilization if we make a distinction between the color of men's skins when it comes to their right to live unmolested in a community as long as they obey the laws.

CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of representatives of the Conservative party of British Columbia was held at Vancouver on the 22nd and 23rd inst. for the purpose of forming a Provincial Association. Elsewhere in today's issue will be found particulars as to the manner in which representatives are to be chosen. We have no doubt that this gathering will prove a conspicuous success. It is timely for the Conservatives of the province to perfect their organization, not only because a Dominion election is not very far away, but because it is important that the party should be got into fighting trim upon general principles. At this particular time, when the feeling of confidence among Conservatives is greater than it has been for many years a convention ought to do a very great deal of good. This party has by the logic as events become the standard bearer of provincial rights, and now is the time to assess its opinions upon that exceedingly important subject and formulate plans for carrying them into effect.

SOCIALISM IN ENGLAND.

The municipal elections in England show that the Socialist movement has met with a check. Out of nearly two hundred boroughs, the Socialists carried only four. The fact that the Liberals made a very poor showing as compared with the Conservatives is also exceedingly significant. During the last few years the Socialists have been apparently making a great deal of progress in the United Kingdom and especially in London. It has been expressed that they would soon come to dominate the politics of the country, but the municipal elections seem to remove that probability. English Socialism has been a great obstacle to reform. Like Socialism in Canada it is opposed to the progress of its leaders say only signifies a perpetuation of existing conditions. This was particularly evident in connection with the efforts made of late to promote emigration, which the Socialists opposed in every way in their power. The reason for this opposition was that they do not desire to see the condition of the masses of the population ameliorated. They cherish an idea that they can do something out of being done in that direction, they will precipitate a revolution. Probably they are not very clear what a revolution would mean. They are also, they are not, in point of fact, more bloodthirsty than other peoples. But the probability of great ocean liners making the head of Alberni Canal their terminus may be open to question. There is plenty of water to float them, but the canal is long and narrow. That is only one feature of the case. Alberni is certain to be a point where extensive lumbering will be established. BY WHAT CAPITAL?

The special correspondent of the Western Mail of Cardiff, who visited Canada a few months ago, closes one of his articles on the Dominion by asking whether England or the United States will furnish the capital that is necessary for the development of this country. It is perhaps of greater importance to the United Kingdom than to Canada how this question shall be answered. We think the claim sometimes made of an increase in the investments of money from south of the International Boundary will weaken the feeling of loyalty to British capital among the Canadian people, has no real foundation. Capital is cosmopolitan and it would be difficult to point to a single instance in which any representative of United States investments in this country sought to severance of the Imperial tie and the union of the Dominion with the Republic. On the contrary, investors from the United States find a great degree of security under British law as exemplified by the laws probably be the last people to advocate a change in this respect. But if our neighbors are to furnish the bulk of the capital which is expanding in the industries of the country, we will unquestionably lead to very close commercial relations with the two countries, and this in the long run will be far less beneficial to the United Kingdom than a commercial point of view, than that degree of business intimacy which would be brought about if the requisite capital were furnished from that source. A Canadian would greatly prefer to see the latter course prevail, and we find no difficulty in believing that the British public would do the same.

We are not disposed to complain of the comparative slowness of British investors to seek Canadian territory. As a matter of fact there is a very great deal of British capital in Canada, more possibly than in most of us suppose, but undoubtedly in the newer and more speculative lines people from the United States have shown themselves more ready to try their fortunes. One reason for this is that they are close at hand, and they know, as we do not, that what is offered. Another is that they are familiar with the lines of investment which Canada presents. It is a great mistake to suppose that the British investor is exceptional. He takes care for his own interests, and he is not any other person in the world. But he has not yet got in the way of looking to Canada as a place to put his money, except in certain lines. For example, a good area of timber land is very soon taken up by United States buyers, but this country has very few English moneyed men have been buying timber. Almost any amount of money can be got in the United States for the purchase of Canadian real estate in large blocks, but English capitalists do not appear to have turned their attention in that direction. As for mining, we are not surprised at the slowness with which our friends in the United States display about taking hold of new properties. These three lines are those in regard to which the most surprise is expressed as to the difficulty of interesting English capital, and we regret that we do not see any reasonable cause for complaint; not that we would not prefer the money to come from our own people, but because we cannot blame them for not engaging in investments with which they are unfamiliar. But there is a vast field outside of these lines, and it includes industrial and local transportation undertakings. We confess to surprise that the men who have made Great Britain such a marvelous workshop, have not as yet to any considerable degree realized the opportunities offered by Canada. We suppose this is because the country is yet "in the making," and financial circles, in the United Kingdom, have been chiefly concerning themselves with the larger transportation questions, which are at the foundation of the country's development. While we may regret that more British capital does not find its way into Canada, we ought not to lose sight of the fact that it is that our railroads go when they want money.

THE DREADNOUGHT'S GUNS.

Since the Dreadnought was launched nearly all the powers have been preparing to imitate. If not exceed, her, and it is therefore somewhat of a surprise to find that Admiral Germet, who has taken command of the French Mediterranean fleet, says: "I consider the Dreadnought a gross error—a part of the British Admiralty." He states that this great ship was built in accordance with erroneous ideas held a few months ago concerning the cause of the naval successes of Japan during the war with Russia. He disputes the claim that the defeat of the Russian fleet of Admiral Togo was due to the use of heavy guns. He says it was on account of the use of charge. At first, he states, having a finding results unsatisfactory, but employed the other variety. We quote from an interview with the Admiral, published in Le Journal of Paris, that it was with these shells that they were armed. The shells were very heavy, and it was also exceedingly significant. During the last few years the Socialists have been apparently making a great deal of progress in the United Kingdom and especially in London. It has been expressed that they would soon come to dominate the politics of the country, but the municipal elections seem to remove that probability. English Socialism has been a great obstacle to reform. Like Socialism in Canada it is opposed to the progress of its leaders say only signifies a perpetuation of existing conditions. This was particularly evident in connection with the efforts made of late to promote emigration, which the Socialists opposed in every way in their power. The reason for this opposition was that they do not desire to see the condition of the masses of the population ameliorated. They cherish an idea that they can do something out of being done in that direction, they will precipitate a revolution. Probably they are not very clear what a revolution would mean. They are also, they are not, in point of fact, more bloodthirsty than other peoples. But the probability of great ocean liners making the head of Alberni Canal their terminus may be open to question. JAPANESE IMMIGRATION.

We commend the action, which it is said the Dominion government will take in authorizing Mr. Mackenzie King to investigate the subject of Japanese immigration. While observations made by Mr. King a few days ago, as reported in the press, had somewhat of a freshness, they were not just the sort of report that one would expect to see from a man who is to be assigned. He appears to be a valuable in an administrative capacity, and he approaches his duties with a singularly well balanced mind. At one time we were given a very useful official was going to be spoiled to make what might possibly have been a not particularly valuable political; but we are glad that the country is yet in the enjoyment of his services in a capacity, where he has been able to avoid even the appearance of partisanship. The question of Japanese immigration has been probed to the bottom. Our own view of the case has always been that the influx of coolies was being made needed by persons who were making a hasty exit from the country. It was not the spontaneous movement of the Japanese, but relief from overcrowding at home, which was one of the reasons why the Oriental agitation. We could see no reason why a few agents on the lookout for a few dollars out of the earnings of Japanese, and a few irregular agitators in our own country, should be permitted to destroy the friendly relations of two nations, and interfere with the development of a country, in which means very much to Canada, and especially to British Columbia.

A FLAG INCIDENT.

The other day in Seattle a lady telephoned to the Chief of Police asking if he would not endeavor to pull down the Union Jack, which was flying on his premises. The Chief replied that he had no authority to do so, and that he would not do so. She then wanted to know if he could not compel him to put the United States flag above the other, and once more the Chief replied that he could not. A few minutes later a man called at the residence of the officer and entered a protest against the flying of the latter thereupon, being a member of peace, took down the objectionable flag. The matter is not important in itself, but it is a simple another instance of the singular narrowmindedness, which prevails in the United States; but there is a lesson in it for Canadians to be people of this country are very much given to flying the United States flag for decorative purposes. It is a matter of compromise to visitors, no Canadian cares anything about it, or rather many of them are beginning to understand that what is meant as a compliment, or has really no meaning at all, is understood by people from the United States to be prompted by demagogues, who are trying to show like to see the Stars and Stripes flying in this country under any circumstances whatever. No Canadian objects to the hoisting of the United States flag by the United States flag, but there is a difference between the people of the two countries, much the same as between the man who knows that he is respectable and one who is not quite sure about it.

WHERE THE BLAME LIES.

A good deal is being said nowadays about the responsibility of the Liberal members in the House of Commons for the failure of the government to safeguard the country against an influx of Japanese, while providing for the application of the Anglo-Japanese treaty to Canada. We do not suppose that it would have been possible in a provision excluding Japanese from entry into the country, but that would be an absurdity upon the face of it, but there ought to have been concurrent legislation in respect to immigration on the lines of the Natal Act. It is for their failure to insist upon some measure of this kind being adopted for an extension of fourteen miles next session, so that the construction might be completed next summer.

ation of their duty in that regard. It seems to us that it was especially the duty of Mr. Templeman, who holds a seat in the Cabinet, to have directed shells to his colleagues to the necessity of such legislation, and his omission to do so cannot be excused. But we think that the shells should be sought even further back. During the last ten years the British Columbia legislature has endeavored to regulate Oriental immigration into British Columbia, and every effort has been frustrated by the course pursued by the Laurier ministry. In 1897 the Dominion government passed an act which was intended to restrict the employment of Chinese or Japanese upon certain work. The Colonist defined this position in respect to such legislation while the measure was pending. It pointed out that by the B. N. A. Act the right to legislate respecting the employment of Chinese or Japanese was conferred upon the Dominion Parliament, and that any enactments passed at Victoria having such an application would certainly be disallowed at Ottawa. The fact of this measure of 1897 showed that we were right in our contention. The Hon. Dewdney was instructed to withdraw his assent to the B.N.A. which he did. He then attempted to restrict such immigration to the province, but the Oriental in the province have met the substantially the same fate. They received the only logical result of their assent, and were promptly disallowed, until this year, when Lieutenant-Governor Dewdney withdrew his assent from the Bowser Bill. There has been the least doubt since 1897 that the Dominion government did not propose to permit the legislation of this province to deal with the Oriental question. It is necessary to inquire, therefore, whether the provisions of the B. N. A. Act in regard to immigration are desirable to restrict authority in the local house to pass the needed legislation. The right of a Dominion government to legislate on this subject is not governed by constitutional limitations. The fact of its exercise upon grounds of policy. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain once made a similar statement, in which he pointed out that the remedy against an influx of Oriental immigrants was desirable to restrict the Dominion government to legislate on the lines of the Natal Act, and, if memory serves us aright, he went on to say that it was a matter of course that the Dominion government should not be permitted to pass a law which would be a matter of course. Whether he said so or not is not material, since, as such legislation would be a matter of course, it is not necessary to consider the question of its constitutionality. It is very clear that the Dominion government has no right to legislate on this subject, and for two reasons: first, because such a law ought to be applicable to the Dominion government, because the Dominion government has no right to consent to the passage of such legislation by one of the provinces. Granting that it was desirable to restrict Oriental immigration to a minimum, which is very clear that the only way in which this could be accomplished, is by means of an Act of the federal Parliament. This is so very clear that it is not necessary to consider the question of its constitutionality. The Dominion government has not the right to place any further obstacles in the way of trade with other provinces than such as are provided in the law imposing the 500 head tax upon Chinese and Japanese. The Dominion government has taken hold of the question when it became a matter of course to those, which the legislature of this province, there would have been no Oriental question.

While the Laurier cabinet is primarily responsible to the people for the omission to pass such a law and state of things as the people of British Columbia must look to their representative to remedy, it is not necessary to hold them to account. Mr. Templeman has been a member of the Senate or the House of Commons during substantially all the time during which the present government has occupied public attention, but we cannot regard a single occasion upon which he has expressed the sentiments of the people of British Columbia in regard to this matter. It is a matter of course that a conspicuous member of the House of Commons during the same period, who has made an effort to restrict Oriental immigration, and who has not forgotten the occasion. So we may say of Messrs. Macpherson, Sloan, Rose and Kilbride, that the sole exception is Mr. Kennedy, but his protest was ignored by his colleagues. We can understand that, if one should ask Sir Wilfrid Laurier why he did not request Parliament to pass a measure to acknowledge the people of British Columbia had sent representatives to Ottawa, and had his ear, and that although he had advised the Governor-General to disallow all enactments of fact, provincial legislature to that effect, which one of these gentlemen had never protested or suggested that Parliament should itself deal with the question, we do not say that he excuses him, but we do say that it shows the degree of the responsibility which rests upon the present government, who have by their inaction this regard completely misrepresented the wishes of the people whom they would represent. It is a matter of course that there would have been no Oriental question in Canada, if the representatives of the people of British Columbia in the House of Commons, who have had the confidence of the Laurier ministry, had not failed utterly in their duty. For this the people must hold them responsible, and they will do so whenever opportunity offers.

A very gratifying statement was made in London the other day at the annual meeting of the White Pass & Yukon Railway Company. The chairman announced during the course of his address that the past year had been the most prosperous of the earliest years of the company. He hoped that the Canadian parliament would pass the kind being adopted for an extension of fourteen miles next session, so that the construction might be completed next summer.
