July 2.-Rose very betimes for work now that the holiday is over and much yet to be done. A great, glorious day yesterday, which is the birthday of Dominion and celebrated by man;

And from what has been done in the past, there is every surety that Canadians will do much more than duty. Out the last night in June to a circus and have never enjoyed a little show so much in my life, Clean, amusing, entertaining. A triology of excellence that I never expected to see in a small show. But St. George! I shall never forget my entry into the great tent and praise heaven that my wife was not with me. Enter on pass and here comes a plain looking woman who touches my arm and asks the price of reserved seats. Think her pretty silly, but, having a pass, tell her that I know not and make to go on her that I know not and make to go on. sight, and that even if the prejudice She grabs me and asks the price of other seats. Then she brushes invisible were overcome, that importers would dust from my shoulder. Whereat I perme. So, being virtuous and a great crowd—besides the poor creature was not burdened with good looks—I rush off blushing the reddest I ever was, and the tent roaring at this comedy. But this "woman" is a man and a clown. and she did more to entertain the tent than any other one person in the show. Finally, as the show starts, she takes off her wig. But to see Don Juan-like men swell mighty pleased on being ac-

Hear talk of cleaning up the Trades and Labor Council by the Lord Mayor and his first minister, Alderman Bridge. But, sober people ask, is there not a Council to clean up? Especially when Master Bridge turns to Master Ashton. who is an alderman and a street car conductor, calling him "Quitter." Mighty humorous, because the street coach men ended the strike sooner than the higher fare people wanted. Master Bridge says: "Had the strike lasted two weeks longer, higher fares would have been granted!" Maybe so.
