

Prospectus for 1883.
THE BEST PAPER.
THE NEW YORK
FIRESIDE COMPANION.

THE FIRESIDE COMPANION is the best paper of the kind published. It has the largest circulation, as may be ascertained by questioning any newsdealer. Its popularity is entirely owing to good stories. Stories of detective life and service have always been one of its great features. No effort has been spared to obtain records of real detective business.

"OLD SLEUTH'S" STORIES
 are universally admitted to be
THE BEST DETECTIVE STORIES
 OF THE
AMERICAN DETECTIVE POLICE.

The best lativ talent is employed in every department. Among its female writers are

Mrs. Lucy Randall-Comfort,
 Mrs. Charlotte M. Stanley,
 Mrs. Alex. McVeigh Miller,
 Mrs. Sumner Haydep,
 Christine Carlton,
 Rose Ashleigh,
 Bertha M. Clay,
 Mary Cecil Hay, etc., etc.

The most delightful love stories are to be found in its pages. The highest standard is maintained. Only the most interesting contributions are published.

AND LITERARY MISCELLANY.

Comic Sketches, original humor from Funny Contributors, Short Stories, Poetry and Biography, Answers to Correspondents, Humorous Articles, Reading for Little Folks, Fashionable Chat-Chat for the Ladies, containing the most reliable information in regard to every article of dress; Household Recipes, and other interesting departments, will be maintained without regard to expense.

A new continued story will be commenced about every second week, so that new readers will be able to get the beginning of a story of the newsdealers, or of us, no matter at what time they may subscribe. Back numbers can always be had containing the commencement of every story.

All of the old contributors continue to write for THE FIRESIDE COMPANION. Every number is full of lively and charming original matter. Our aim is always to make for both young and old, aiming to combine entertainment and amusement with desirable information on matters relating to the home, courtship, marriage, society, and dress; to gratify the innate curiosity and interest of all in the pure and natural romance of life; to cultivate a taste for reading and intellectual pleasures; and to inculcate good sentiments and principles in the minds of the young. Nothing of an immoral tendency is ever admitted into its columns.

A Valuable and Attractive Paper

Reading for Little Folks.

This is, and will continue to be, one of the prominent features of the paper. The contributions to this department are by the very foremost writers for children in the country. This alone makes THE NEW YORK FIRESIDE COMPANION invaluable to every household where there are children. We know of instances where the little ones insist upon having these articles read over and over again to them before the paper of the following week is issued.

Correspondents' Column.

No efforts or pains are spared to make this department most attractive and useful to our readers. It is edited by a gentleman of wide experience and sound judgment, and a vast amount of information is given: answers to questions relating to love and etiquette, legal and medical questions, information for the kitchen and household; in fact, answers to all questions that turn up in life can be found in this column.

Every number contains desirable information relative to courtship, engagements, society, marriage, dress, and manners.

Questions on all subjects of interest are answered free, and readers frequently save much trouble and expense by applying directly for advice in social and business matters.

THE FIRESIDE COMPANION

is the best weekly paper published, combining entertainment with valuable information, inculcating good sentiments and principles, and excluding everything of an immoral tendency.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

STORIES OF JEWISH LIFE: OR, SCENES FROM THE GHETTO. Translated from the German of Leopold Kompert; No. 1581, Seaside Library; price 30 cents. Kompert's Jewish sketches have a great reputation, which has been recently increased by the revival of Judenhetze in Russia and Germany. The English reader has a translation of them here which does not obscure the individual and original savor of the stories. The first, "Schlemiel" (which in Jewish phrase does not mean a man without a shadow, but a persistently clumsy and unlucky person), and the last, "Without Authorization," are the best. The first has a great deal of pathos. The longest story, "The Randal's Children," illustrating the curious hatred of the Jews as publicans which is said to be at the bottom of most of the recent riots.

THE BRANDRETHS, a sequel to "Strictly Tied Up"; No. 1530, Seaside Library; price 20 cents. Readers of "Strictly Tied Up" will doubtless be pleased to hear more of the people whom the author drew with so much ability. "The Brandreths" is a pleasant book to read. The charm of the book is in the delicate and appreciative description of that earlier period, and of the effect which the memory of it had upon him. When the Duchess comes upon the scene the story begins afresh, and a number of chapters are devoted to an elaborate portrait of her. The political sketches and allusions are made with a good deal of humor, and those who read between the lines will be amused by many transparently disguised references to contemporary characters and events.

A GOLDEN BAR, by the author of "Christina North"; No. 1578, Seaside Library; price 20 cents. In this novel the interest derived from incident is confined to narrow limits, but within these limits the story is worked out with much art and a happy discrimination. In lieu of incident we have vivid pictures of modern life which succeed each other with engrossing rapidity. It is one of the merits of this book that there is no preaching in it, while the spirit is always sound and salutary. It is written with singular felicity of style and uniform purity and refinement; it abounds in lively dialogue, while it is free from all that is sensational.

THE SMALL HOUSE AT ALLINGTON, by Anthony Trollope; No. 1538, Seaside Library; Parts I and II; price 20 cents each. A reprint, in clear, fresh, large-sized type, of one of the best of the numerous works of the renowned novelist of common, every-day life. One scarcely knows how to say wherein consists the charm of Trollope's books, for there is nothing resembling the sensational in them from beginning to end; but the charm is there.

THE WANDERING JEW, by Eugene Sue; No. 129, Seaside Library; Parts I and II; price 20 cents each. This great romance, when it was first published, astonished Europe. In many respects it still remains without a parallel. Its weird attractiveness and fascination are irresistible. It is, indeed, more than a romance; it is, in addition, a discussion, from the liberal and popular standpoint, of a score of social and religious questions which have agitated and still agitate France and the world.

UNSPOTTED FROM THE WORLD, by Mrs. G. W. Godfrey; No. 1573, Seaside Library; price 20 cents. This is a love story, pure and wholesome yet ardent and glowing, and abounding with the trials and crosses which perhaps are always necessarily attendant upon true love either for the purpose of preventing it from growing flat and stale, or else keeping it from too nearly resembling the condition of the blessed in Paradise. Mrs. Godfrey is evidently at home with the subject.

COALS OF FIRE, by David Christie Murray, author of "Joseph's Coat"; No. 1541, Seaside Library; price 20 cents. This is a charming book of minor novels, by one of the finest English novelists of recent date. Mr. Murray is in his element in dealing with the plungers and scamps of the Stock Exchanges. His novels show the knowledge of a man of the world.

SWEET INFAIR, by Richard Dowling, No. 1563, Seaside Library; price 20 cents. There are passages and situations in "Sweet Inifair" marked by that peculiar descriptive power which Mr. Dowling has at his command. There is in it also much thrilling incident, and all who enjoy an old-fashioned story of real villainy and its exposure and punishment should read it.
