

wounded, but the following circumstances were ascertained by me through Lieutenant Brown, of the Grenadiers of Louisbourg, and the Twenty-Second Regiment, who, with Mr. Henderson, a volunteer in the same company, and a private were the three persons who carried his Excellency to the rear, which an artillery officer seeing, immediately flew to his assistance; and these were all that attended him in his dying moments. I do not recollect the artillery officer's name, or it should be cheerfully recorded here."

EPITAPH ON GENERAL WOLFE.

In worth exceeding, and in virtue great,
Words would want force his actions to relate,
Silence, ye bards! eulogiums vain forbear,
It is enough to say that Wolfe lies here.

Epigram on the numerous epitaphs for General Wolfe, for the best of which a premium of one hundred pounds was promised.

The muse, a shameless mercenary jade!
Has now assumed the arch-tongued lawyer's trade;
In Wolfe's deserving praises silent she,
Till flattered with the prospect of a fee.

TRAFALGAR MOUNT MONUMENT — Can any of our readers give the history of this monument, on the Côte des Neiges Hill. Mr. David Denne has the prospectus of a cemetery company which proposed to purchase a site here; and finds an old legend, written by Avocat de Boucherville, of Montreal, in 1832, published first in Huston's book, and reprinted in Paris, 1852. This story is highly romantic and sensational, but what is the true narrative?
