

There is nothing of extraordinary interest from Philadelphia
 At the church of St. Philip de Neri, in South-work, the usual religious services were observed on Sunday.
 The examination into the origin and incidents of the revolt is in progress.
 The troops remain in Philadelphia. The Common Council have passed the ordinance for organizing a permanent military police of 1,000 men—to be formed, if practicable, from the present uniform corps, constituting the City Brigade.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE AT SEA.—A very singular circumstance has been communicated to us by Mr. Vickers, of the schooner Henry Curwan, of this port, deserving of the notice of scientific individuals. On the 7th of May last, in lat 44 N., and long 32 35, about four o'clock in the morning, it was discovered that all the watches on board, and the chronometer, had stopped; and on referring to the compasses, of which there were three on board, they pointed to different parts, and were for a time useless. In about two hours afterward the watches and chronometer recommenced going, and the compasses became again as before.—Liverpool Mail.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.—On opening a vault in St. Andrew's Churchyard, Devonport, last week, for the purpose of committing to the dust the body of a gentleman who was the last of his race, there were in the vault, in addition to 13 skulls of persons who had been buried therein, the remains of a muff, walking cane, a small comb-brush, wine glass, and a phial bottle containing a mixture. It appears that agreeably to the directions of an eccentric lady, a member of the family, these articles were, on her burial, many years ago, placed in her coffin, but the coffin itself and the body it contained were, with the exception of the skull, reduced to dust.—Western Luminary.

AN ERRAND BOY'S EDUCATION.—A boy of thirteen or fourteen was about to be sworn to give evidence at an inquest held on Monday evening at the Golden Lion, Dean Street, Soho, when he said, as if he feared he was unfit to take an oath, that he could not read. He, however, said that he was in the habit of going to chapel, and was accordingly sworn. Having given his evidence in a tolerably clear manner, he, much to the surprise of the jury, wrote his name in a clear legible hand at the end of the depositions. A Juror thought it rather a strange mode of education to teach a boy to write before he could read, and felt curious to ascertain how he learned. The boy said that he had learned to write nothing but his name; and a juror informal the coroner it was a common thing for errand boys, who had to sign their names frequently, to be taught to write their autographs, and nothing else.—Pictorial Times.
