WEEVAC is the trademark of a line of stretchers, which has been patented in Canada, the U.S.A. and other countries worldwide. They have F.D.A. approval for these stretchers which are designed and manufactured in Canada. The WEEVAC 6 system was first introduced at the Ontario Hospital Association Trade Show, October 1989 and has since been adopted by many hospitals to enhance their evacuation plans. The WEEVAC 6 can accommodate pretermatures from the NICU ward as well as full term infants from a normal nursery and paediatric ward. Further systems have since been developed for evacuation of adult patients. The 1991 National Research Council of Canada Award - Recognizing Outstanding Innovativeness in Medical Device Technology was awarded to Wendy Murphy, inventor of the WEEVAC evacuation systems and stretchers.
